Last Kennedy Rites Seen By Multitude

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator Robert F. Kennedy, eulogized by the last Kennedy son, Senator Edward M. Kennedy, as a man who "gave us strength in time of trouble," began a sombre journey today to a final resting place in Washington's National Cemetery near his brother, also the victim of an assassin.

The flag-draped coffin, put into a hearse after a funeral mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral, was taken to Pennsylvania Station and borne in a black-draped train to Washington.

As the cortege passed slowly through the hot streets of New York, many thousands stood by—a sad, silent reminder of the wildly cheering crowds that had surged about Robert in a drive for the presidency ended so abruptly by an assassin's bullet Wednesday.

The widow, Ethel, dressed in black and wearing a black veil, was seldom far from the coffin during the day. She had been near it since Kennedy, 42, died in Los Angeles Thursday.

President Johnson, four men seeking that office, world and national figures—including Canada's Lester Pearson—gathered in the splendor of St. Patrick's for the solemn requiem.

The widow, her eyes almost unblinking, moved her lips silently, as though in prayer. President Johnson listened intently to the 10-minute eulogy.

As the funeral mass was ending, the FBI in Washington announced that James Earl Ray had been arrested in London in connection with the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. The widow of the civil rights leader was among the mourners.

Funeral Train Takes Thousand

The mahogany coffin, covered by an American flag, was taken from the church by the 13 pallbearers and loaded into a hearse.

The funeral cortege moved slowly to Pennsylvania Station. There, a 21-car train took the body and about 1,000 persons to Washington.

Edward Kennedy said the late senator from New York wanted to express "real love" toward his fellow man. He quoted his brother as saying that "real love is something unselfish and involves sacrifice in giving."

Robert was slain as he sought the U.S. presidency once held by his assassinated brother, John F. Kennedy. An older brother, Joseph Jr., died in the Second World War.

Earlier, the police search of persons entering the cathedral turned up a man with a gun. He attempted to enter through the huge bronze doors at the front about 15 minutes before President Johnson arrived.

The man was taken to a police station, where he was described as a printer from Syracuse, N.Y. He was not immediately identified.

Archbishop Terence J. Cooke, chief celebrant of the funeral mass, told the 2,100 mourners: "We are all together in our bewilderment and grief in these days. Words are such inadequate messengers of consolation at this time."

Cathedral Service Amplified

Loudspeakers mounted in the leafy maple trees on either side of the cathedral carried the church service to the many thousands standing in the sultry heat across Fifth Ave.

"Our sense of shame and discouragement tears alone will not wash away," Archbishop Cooke said. "Somehow by the grace of God, and with the strength that still lies deep within the soul of America, we must find the courage to take up again the laborious work to which Senator Kennedy devoted all his energies: the building of a great and honorable nation.

"Especially in this hour, we must keep faith with America and her destiny and we must not forsake our trust in one another."

Archbishop Cooke said:

"Gifted by nature to a rare degree, he might have sought a life less arduous, a manner of life that left more time for personal interest and for the enjoyment of the wonderful family with which God blessed him.

"Instead, he chose the broader, more demanding challenge of public service, seeing it as an opportunity to build a better world for all his fellowmen. He died in the course of that service."

John's Widow Kneels Before Casket

Before the service Mrs. John F. Kennedy, widow of the assassinated president and sister-in-law of the senator, knelt by the coffin before taking her seat. She was accompanied by her children, John Jr. and Caroline.

After the offertory of the mass, Leonard Bernstein led 30 members of the New York Philharmonic in a movement from Gustav Mahler's Fifth Symphony, a solemn, flowing piece that echoed in the far corners of the massive cathedral.

As the orchestra played, the Kennedy children went slowly to the altar and one by one handed wine and wafers to the archbishop.

Archbishop Cooke, with the other concelebrants of the mass, consecrated the bread and wine, raising the host and then the chalice for all to worship.

Cooke administered the Holy Communion to the sons and nephews of Senator Kennedy, who served as altar boys.

Then the widow, dressed starkly in black, her solemn face veiled, and other members of the Kennedy family approached the altar for the Communion.

Shipyard Deal Involves 1,000 Quebec Workers

QUEBEC (CP) — The provincial government has threatened to pass legislation to save the jobs of 1,000 shipyard workers involved unwittingly in a complex skein of business deals and contractual problems.

Premier Daniel Johnson told officials of the shipworkers union Friday night he will ask the federal government to transfer a ship-repairing contract from a firm which has been taken over by another.

Davie Shipbuilding Co. of nearby Lauzon, had contracted to effect repairs on the ship New Liskeard. But the shipyard was purchased recently by George T. Davie and Sons Ltd., which has decided to close down the yard and lay off today 1,000 employees.

Mr. Johnson said he was to recommend today in a telegram to Industry Minister Drury that the contract be transferred to George T. Davie and Sons Ltd. and the work be continued.

He said his government was prepared to pass legislation postponing completion of the shipyard sale to enable the contract transfer to take place.

The union, affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions, said Friday night Mr. Johnson appeared to have accepted the situation the ship would not be repaired because of the sale of the yard.

The premier, however, has said Davie Shipbuilding Co. is legally bound to accept the contract under the terms of agreements it had with the union.

About 50 union members have encamped on an adjacent federal government pier to protest the layoffs.

TRAIN KILLS 3 MOURNERS

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Three spectators waiting for the train bearing Senator Robert F. Kennedy's body to Washington were killed today by a train heading in the opposite direction.

EX-FRENCH PREMIER ENDS SIX-YEAR EXILE

BIDAULT
. . . charges to be dropped

PARIS (AP) — Former premier George Bidault, 68, who broke with President de Gaulle on the issue of Algerian independence, returned to France today after six years of exile. A prosecutor indicated that longstanding charges of subversive activity against him would be dropped.

Bidault's return apparently was preceded by secret negotiations with French judicial authorities. He passed into France from Belgium accompanied by three lawyers, and was met at the frontier by police. He disappeared from France in April, 1962, and had since lived in Brazil and Belgium.

French Crisis Worsens Again

PARIS (CP) — The lingering French social and political crisis today looked likely to flare again only hours after a radio and television broadcast by President de Gaulle.

The president, in a recorded interview Friday night, dismissed both capitalism and communism in favor of his concept of participation as the cure to rebellion by both workers and students.

He also warned the French people that the republic and freedom itself were at stake in general elections this month.

But even as he spoke, bands of workers and students rampaged through the countryside near Paris, setting up barricades across roads, setting fire to haystacks and fighting a running battle with police.

And in a move likely to paralyse most mail deliveries into the capital, post office workers at all but one of the Paris railway stations decided to go on strike again.

Labor and opposition political leaders used epithets ranging from "hollow" to "outrageous" to denounce the reform plan de Gaulle proposed as better than capitalism or communism.

Thousands of French auto and metallurgy workers were preparing to go back to their jobs at substantially higher wages won in the general strike that paralysed France.

Sirhan Hears Murder Charge Read in Court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan was arraigned Friday on a charge of murdering Senator Robert F. Kennedy in a hearing held behind by an unprecedented wall of security.

Sirhan, 24, calm and composed, sat Friday in the chapel of Los Angeles County men's jail as a deputy district attorney read the murder indictment, returned 62 minutes earlier by the county grand jury.

And in the same central jail building a woman was arrested Friday night on suspicion of smuggling guns to a prisoner.

Edyth Grant, 55, was booked after sheriff's officers said they discovered three handguns in a typewriter she was taking to another prisoner's cell.

A sheriff's officer said a .22-calibre Derringer pistol, a .32-calibre revolver and a 6.35-millimetre automatic were found.

The typewriter had been authorized for the prisoner, quartered in a separate wing from Sirhan's isolated cell, the officer said, and it was that prisoner, not Sirhan, to whom she was suspected of smuggling the guns.

The indictment against Sirhan said the slight, olive-complexioned native of Jordan did "wilfully, unlawfully, feloniously and with malice aforethought murder Robert Francis Kennedy."

ENTERS PLEA JUNE 28

The judge ordered Sirhan to return to court June 28 to enter a plea and agreed to a defence request that he be examined by two psychiatrists before that date.

Superior Court Judge Arthur L. Alarcon, using the chapel altar as a temporary court bench, spelled out for Sirhan his constitutional right to a fair speedy trial.

Then, Alarcon ordered all police, lawyers, court officials and witnesses to say nothing about the case or release any evidence that might in any way jeopardize Sirhan's right to a fair trial.

Any violation, he warned, will result in "swift action" in the form of a contempt of court citation.

Scotland Yard Gets U.S. Man

A spokesman for Scotland Yard said Ray was arrested at London's Heathrow Airport and was being held at Cannon Row police station in central London.

RAY (Galt)
. . . Canada passport

Announcement of Ray's arrest, while carring two Canadian passports and a loaded gun, was made here after the arrest was disclosed in Washington by the FBI and the attorney-general's office.

Ray was charged under the name of Ramon George Sneyd, the name on the passports, with possession of a firearm without certificate and possession of a forged passport.

Police sources said that Ray will appear at Bow Street court Monday.

He was picked up as he was about to embark on a flight for Brussels, with the FBI, the RCMP and Scotland Yard co-operating.

The passport descrition said Sneyd was 35 years old, born in Toronto, unemployed and had no fixed address.

CAUGHT AT AIRPORT

Ray also known as Eric Starvo Galt, was reported to have been arrested at Heathrow Airport as he was going through immigration procedures on arrival from Lisbon, Portugal.

Ray had been sought since shortly after the Nobel Peace Prize winner and civil rights leader was gunned down April 4 in Memphis, Tenn.

The announcement in Washington was issued under the names of Attorney-General Ramsey Clark and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover but neither was present when it was given to reporters at the justice department. Other FBI officials declined to elaborate on it or answer questions.

The Washington announcement said Ray was passing through England en route to Brussels when taken into custody at 11:15 p.m. London time. It said he was being held under maximum security conditions and extradition proceedings would be started shortly.

It was not explained how Ray, previously described as poor, obtained the money to travel to Europe. There has been speculation King's murderer obtained aid from conspirators and even might have been a paid assasin.

RIOTS BEGAN

King's killing sparked racial riots in more than 100 U.S. cities and came as he was organizing the Poor People's Campaign — an attempt to push the U.S. government to greater efforts on behalf of the nation's poor.

U.S. state department officials said they expect a formal request to be made to British for return of Ray through the U.S.-British extradition treaty. They said murder is one of the crimes included in the treaty.

The officials expect Tennessee, the state where a murder indictment was returned against Ray, to initiate the proceedings. This in turn would probably be the basis for the U.S. government's request, they said.

. . . IN TORONTO

don and return to Toronto May 21.

The clerk said: "I remember him vaguely. There didn't seem anything unusual or noticeable about him."

Ray was travelling on a Canadian passport that he got without a sponsor, it was learned in Ottawa.

The RCMP played a key role in his capture.

After a month-long search of passport files in the external affairs department, they discovered this week that Ray had taken out a Canadian passport in the name of Ramon George Sneyd and was travelling on it in Europe. He left Canada May 6.

Ray had two passports in the name of Sneyd in his possession when Scotland Yard arrested him. One was issued from Ottawa April 25, in response to a mailed application, and the other at the Canadian embassy in Lisbon, Portugal, May 16.

He apparently used the same application details in Lisbon that he had in Canada, an external affairs department spokesman said.

If an applicant for a Canadian passport, who must be a Canadian citizen, has no sponsor willing to declare that he has known him for two years and believes all the information in the application to be true, then the applicant can swear an affidavit before a notary public.

It was not clear here why Ray had sought two Canadian passports.

Solicitor-General John Turner said the RCMP has been looking for clues to Ray in Canada since the early days after the slaying of Dr. King, U.S. civil rights leader, April 4 in Memphis, Tenn.

As soon as it was learned that Ray had been in Canada for some weeks, had obtained a Canadian passport fraudulently, and had left for London May 6, the information was given to the FBI and Scotland Yard.

Sneyd, the alias Ray chose, is a name widely known in eastern Ontario and dates back to the United Empire Loyalists, the British subjects who fled north during the American War of Independence.

There were reports that Ray mailed his passport application to Ottawa from Toronto, gave his age as 35 and Toronto as his birthplace, and said he was unemployed and had no fixed address. An external affairs department spokesman said he is "not going to deny" these details, nor would he confirm them.

The spokesman described the RCMP investigation that led to the international tipoff and Ray's arrest in London as "colossal."

The RCMP came across a photograph that looked like Ray after going through between 200,000 and 400,000 passport applications in government files.

PRAISES RCMP

In Washington, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover praised the RCMP and Scotland Yard for their co-operation in the two-month hunt for Ray.

While the RCMP earned praise for its part in the search, the episode has become an embarrassment to the external affairs department. There have been complaints to the government in the past that foreigners have been able to obtain Canadian passports too easily.

The government has tried to tighten up the procedures for obtaining them, but an external affairs department official said it is difficult to deny a person a Canadian passport when he presents an application properly sponsored or notarized.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, contacted in Toronto, said he thinks it is too easy for a foreigner to get a Canadian passport.

Passport applicants are advised to allow two weeks between the dates of application and issue, but the passport office tries to get the applicant his passport within a week, a spokesman said.

minute arraignment and others among the approximately 200 persons admitted to the arraignment—most of them reporters—were searched before they were taken past a maze of security checkpoints to the third-floor jail chapel.

A card handed to them read: "No cameras, potential weapons or electronic devices of any description will be permitted in the spectators' section of the courtroom." The order came from the judge.

Sirhan was escorted in a wheel chair into the 400 capacity chapel by four sheriff's deputies. His left ankle and left index finger still were bandaged from injuries suffered Wednesday in the scuffle at the Ambassador Hotel after a volley of eight shots felled Kennedy and injured five bystanders.

Indictments also were returned Friday charging Sirhan with assault with intent to commit murder.

The officers helped the slender Sirhan, wearing an open-collar white shirt, shiny black shoes and blue dungarees, into a chair at a table facing the judge.

He said no more than a dozen words during the hearing. Alarcon asked him if his true name was Sirhan Bishara Sirhan.

"Yes sir, he said. "It is Sirhan" not "Seer-han."

He indicated he could not afford to hire his own lawyer and would be satisfied with appointment of a public defender, Wilbur Littlefield.

None of Sirhan's family was present, although A. L. Wirin, counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union, said he had advised his mother and brothers through their pastor that they could attend.

CAME FROM JORDAN

Sirhan was admitted as a permanent resident of the United States when his family emigrated from Jordan in the 1950s. Immigration officials say this means he can stay indefinitely without applying for citizenship.

Although police had described Sirhan as composed and cool, Wirin said he was anguished when told the news Kennedy had died Thursday, about 25 hours after he was shot in the head with a .22-calibre revolver. Kennedy was celebrating his victory in the California presidential primary when shot.

Wirin told a reporter Sirhan was "fearful the community would turn against his family and he asked me to arrange for police protection."

. . . SCOTLAND YARD

The state department officials also said they did not know how Ray obtained the Canadian passports.

The FBI announcement was made as funeral services were being held in New York for Senator Robert F. Kennedy, who was gunned down by an assassin Wednesday. In 1963 John F. Kennedy, Robert's brother, was assassinated in Dallas, Tex.

A man is being held in Los Angeles in the shooting of Robert Kennedy. The Warren commission said Lee Harvey Oswald killed the late President John Kennedy.

ESCAPED PRISON

Ray, 40, is a fugitive from the Missouri State Penitentiary at Jefferson City. He had served seven years of a 20-year sentence when reported missing in April, 1967.

A first-degree murder indictment was returned against Ray by a grand jury in Memphis last May 7 and necessary extradition proceedings will begin shortly, Hoover said.

The charges on which he is being detained in England is the use of fraudulent documentation — a passport — and for carrying a concealed weapon.

Hoover said one passport Ray was using was issued in Ottawa on April 24, almost three weeks after the murder of King. The other was issued May 16, at Lisbon, Portugal, by the Canadian embassy in that city.

In addition to armed robbery, Ray has been convicted of burglary, forgery of a postal money order and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. He also had been confined in the Los Angeles County jail, two state prisons in Illinois and the U.S. Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.

During nearly three years in the U.S. Army he received a three-month sentence for drunkenness and breaking arrest. He was discharged in December, 1948, for ineptness and lack of adaptability to military service.

The manhunt for Ray spread throughout the United States and several other countries including Canada, Mexico and Australia.

Mexican authorities question in late April a U.S. citizen they said resembled Ray, but released him without pressing any charges.

Australian police began a search May 1 for Ray after, it said, the FBI cabled that it had information indicating Ray might have fled to Australia.

The RCMP was on the alert.

Ray used a number of aliases, three of which were listed on the FBI warrant — Galt, John Willard and Harvey Lowmyer. Other names used uncluded James McBride, James Walton, W. C. Herron and James O'Conner.

A fellow prisoner at the Missouri penitentiary, Raymond Curtis, 40, said Ray told him while both were prisoners at Jefferson City he would be willing to kill King for $1,000,000. Curtis now is in Whitfield county jail at Dalton, Ga., awaiting action on appeal from a murder conviction.

. . . KENNEDY

in blessing of the body and commendation of the soul.

New Yorkers by the thousands had paid last respects to Kennedy throughout the night.

On this day he belonged to the people. The crowds who while he lived had thronged to clasp his hands, tear at his clothes and cheer the politics he was fashioning into a presidential bid, touched his coffin tenderly.

More than 151,000 passed through the grey stone portals of St. Patrick's Cathedral. They began gathering Thursday evening and the last did not go through until early today.

Youngsters in worn sneakers waited beside dark-suited diplomats. Suburban matrons mingled with daisy bedecked flower children. Many in the crowd were young. Many were Negroes.

There were 1,000 lined up when the cathedral doors opened Friday and each passing hour swelled the total until they stood packed by the tens of thousands.

The temperature rose into the 90's. The men stripped off their coats, rolled up their sleeves and loosened their ties. Women removed their shoes. There was little relief but still they came.

Parents' Values Decayed; It's Up to You, Pupils Told

By DON VIPOND

What "bugs" young people? Their parents' "utter preoccupation" with dollar worship.

The spectacle of their society selling war materials to both sides in the Middle East conflict.

Combat pilots praying to God for blessing before delivering napalm over Vietnam when the Bible says "thou shalt not kill."

"Young people tell me they find it hard to accept our worn-out and decayed table of values," Peter Bunn, chairman of the Greater Victoria school board, told an audience of about 1,000 attending Vic High's "recognition" ceremony Friday night.

MUCH GOOD

In remarks which he said were directed to his fellow parents, he argued there is much good in our way of life and changes should not be for the sake of change.

But "we haven't done too good a job of setting the stage for this generation to act upon."

The challenge lies in reinforcing real values like honesty and integrity.

"The climate for change must be created by public interest and involvement. But change comes slowly in an apathetic society and at the moment we middle - aged adults are a pretty apathetic bunch.

Student revolt is not so much a revolt as a desire to question, to examine and get reasonable answers, said the school board chairman.

TOO BUSY

"But so often we're too busy to listen, aren't we?"

The answer, he said, lies in education, in its broadest possible sense.

"Education must be given top priority, above all else, at the federal, provincial and municipal levels, if we are to succeed."

Schools must be more flexible, both academically and physically, perhaps used six days a week and more in the evening.

"Perhaps there should be summer sessions, allowing some students to have their 'long' holiday in the winter . . .It should be possible for some students to complete their five years of secondary education in four years."

NEW MEANING

Teaching and learning must take on new meaning, said Mr. Bunn, with young people respected as individuals, with their own interests, desires, feelings and speeds of learning.

"Children must not be treated as blobs of soft plastic to be pressed into a mold to produce a human spare part for industry.

"I hope to God we never lose our individualists, for if we do, we lose much that is worthwhile and important."

The teachers need a break if schools are to create an atmosphere in which students want to learn and want to go on learning and enjoy the process.

"Cramming up to 40 children in concrete or plywood boxes is not the answer."

SPECIALISTS

More specialists — businessmen, politicians, lawyers and doctors — should be brought into the schools and teachers should be relieved of "mundane chores" so they can concentrate on instruction.

"Perhaps we parents should give ourselves a passing 'C' with the added remark — 'could do better if we tried harder'."

A total of 336 boys and girls making up Vic Hi's graduating class were individually introduced.

"It's our choice whether we take the torch and illuminate the world — or burn it," valedictorian Peter McKinnon told them.

All five senior high schools in the Greater Victoria school district held recognition ceremonies Friday night.

At Oak Bay Senior, Uvic history professor Alfred Loft was speaker and A. G. Coning, manager of the Mayfair shopping plaza, addressed graduates at Mount Douglas.

Mr. Conning urged students to make politicians account for themselves and their policies at all levels of government.

"Do not allow any elected representative in any field of government to think for one minute that his seat is safe, or that it will be kept warm for him."

'SYSTEM OF CHEATING'

Our society has instituted and practises openly a system of cheating people out of value for their money, he said.

Among its greatest crimes is pollution or recreation areas with sewage and industrial waste.

"We have allowed this to happen while our representatives have discussed very solemnly and at great length the best way of impounding people's household pets."

Mr. Reid detailed four characteristics of responsible citizens for Mount View students — inquiry, examination of proof, a sense of humor and tolerance for new ideas.

FREEDOM TO LOOT

Esquimalt's Mayor Bryant scored news media for an intense breakdown in communications.

Newspapers and raido dwell on human suffering and failings which represent only 1 per cent of the population, he said.

"In this respect I feel very strongly that the news media have let us down badly in their constant emphasis and sensationalism and notoriety and their reason for this emphasis is even worse."

Many in the news field will say this is what sells newspapers, said the mayor. He suggested they are wrong.

"They are, in this manner, contributing far less than they are capable of in fulfilling their function of representing the truth."

QUIET CAVALCADE carries Conservative leader Robert Stanfield through the streets of Riviere-du-Loup in Quebec this week. Cool, relaxed ride matches the leader's approach to campaigning.

REACHING OUT to respond to forest of hands during stop at Kapuskasing, Ont., is Prime Minister Trudeau, who found similar excited crowds this week in backwoods of Ontario and Quebec.

IT'S NOT LIKE DIEFENBAKER ERA

Speed the Theme of Vote Race

By CARMAN CUMMING

OTTAWA (CP) — Outside the Lakehead Coliseum, a tiny knot of men lingered to discuss the speech they had just heard from Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield.

They ran out of comments, stood silent for a moment and then one of them observed: "It's not like when Diefenbaker was here."

The campaign for the Tuesday, June 25, general election will be remembered in many ways: the pace is fast and the impressions transient.

But whatever it is, it's not like when Mr. Diefenbaker was here.

For one thing there are the children—screaming, grasping, pushing up little pieces of paper to be autographed by Prime Minister Trudeau or Mr. Stanfield.

For another there is the frenetic shopping centre parade, with bands and cheerleaders, and people pushing up to touch The Man. And, of course, there are the kisses.

Cool Tones

Behind the frenzy there are cool undertones.

In what other campaign could a prime minister have flipped a dime to a teen-ager and suggested he buy a paper to find out what's going on?

In what other campaign would the Conservative party have spent thousands on a television film of its leader, only to watch whole precious minutes slip by while the camera panned idly over a logging operation?

Or when has a prime minister communicated with the voters by smiles or an expressive shrug of the shoulders? Or insisted that only his opponents were promising to spend more money on programs for the voters?

The mode of transportation used by the three main leaders may say something about what they are trying to get across.

While Mr. Trudeau is swinging across the country in a DC-9 jet, Mr. Stanfield is setting a steadier, more restrained pace in a piston-driven DC-7C.

Small Plane

At one point, he chartered a smaller craft which reporters instantly and dubiously called the Crashmaster.

On the ground, the contrast in styles of the leaders is even more marked.

For Mr. Trudeau there have been a series of mini-rallies on street-corners or in shopping centres, with short speeches and plenty of give and take.

The prime minister apparently welcomes heckling, although on a couple of occasions he has shown annoyance. He commented once that he gets tired of listening to himself and feels hecklers sometimes improve his speeches.

Reporters often find the news of the day in these exchanges, rather than in what Mr. Trudeau has to say in his speeches.

Meaty Speech

Mr. Stanfield on the other hand tries to lay on at least one meaty speech a day, usually to a formal, all-evening meeting.

Texts are given out in advance and reporters leaf through them in unison as Mr. Stanfield forges through his own copy, sounding at times as though he hasn't seen the material before.

On a few occasions, however, the reporters have been stirred awake with snatches of eloquence as Mr. Stanfield talks simply and movingly of Canadian society and what it should become.

When the Conservative leader encounters a touch of Stanfield-mania, as he has once or twice, he eyes it with a mixture of pleasure and dismay.

Both Mr. Stanfield and Mr. Douglas tear strips off the prime minister's swinging image, to the apparent delight of partisan crowds.

Mr. Stanfield said that when Mr. Trudeau became prime minister, he set out for a Laurentian vacation and ended up in Florida.

He started to form a government and then changed his mind and decided not to. He decided against calling an election and then called one.

Mr. Douglas says his own wife shaves years off her age and so does Jack Benny, so there's no reason why Mr. Trudeau shouldn't do so too.

Next Budget

A polished orator, the New Democratic leader can speak for well over an hour with no text or notes, putting together a smooth blend of seriousness, humor and hell-raising condemnations of the "profiteers" and "freeloaders."

Unlike Mr. Stanfield, Mr. Douglas appears to carry an audience with him, testing its mood and responding.

"Have you looked at our foreign policy lately?" he asks, leaning forward and putting the question to every member of the audience.

"Turn it over and it says: 'Made in Washington.' "

On the Doorstep

The report is an orphan, he says. It was conceived by the Conservatives and delivered by the Liberals and both parents have disowned it, leaving it on the doorstep for the NDP to pick up.

Leaders of the Creditiste and Social Credit parties meanwhile have stayed close to home and have been virtually ignored by the national news media.

FRIENDLY FIGHT

My Opponent Is Very Nice

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

FARNHAM, Que. (CP) — The big-party candidates in Missisquoi riding, on opposite sides of the linguistic fence, are almost identically nice about each other.

"He's a good guy," says Progressive Conservative Heward Grafftey of Liberal Yves Forest, a French-Canadian.

The gentlemanly approach seems appropriate in Quebec's Eastern Townships, this area of beautiful countryside and picturesque towns along the United States border. Settled by United Empire Loyalists and once an English-language preserve, the townships have become heavily French through the years.

GRAFFTEY
. . . uphill battle

Mr. Grafftey, 39, and Mr. Forest, who will celebrate his 47th birthday on federal election day June 25, agree on little besides their mutual personal regard. They were both members of the last Parliament—from different ridings.

TOUGH COMBINATION

Liberal spokesmen say the combination of a French-Canadian candidate, plus a French-Canadian prime minister with appeal for English-speaking voters, will be too much for even Mr. Grafftey, who has won a fireball electoral reputation.

Mr. Grafftey was all the things that, according to political theory, he should not be to win election here—a well-to-do Protestant Progressive Conservative raised in Montreal's exclusive Westmount. Nevertheless he won four elections in predominantly French-speaking Brome-Missisquoi, which had been Liberal since 1925 except for one Tory interlude.

Now redistribution has made Missisquoi a constituency of its own, bringing in the textile town of Magog, home of Mr. Forest and formerly part of Stanstead constituency which he won in the last two elections. Stanstead vanished in redistribution.

Mr. Grafftey puts the racial ratio in Missisquoi at 85 per cent to 15, wider than in the old constituency. Mr. Forest makes it more like 65 to 70 per cent French, and maintains that French - Canadian sentiment "certainly will" play a part in the election.

"You don't have to be an expert to realize that—it's only to be expected," he said in an interview.

MUST BE BILINGUAL

But Mr. Grafftey said in a separate talk that the French-or-English factor no longer swings elections either here or in Quebec in general, providing an English-Canadian candidate is biligual and has a "feeling for the French fact."

"There seems to be an idea that Brome-Missisquoi was predominantly English when I came, but no riding in the Eastern Townships has been predominantly English since the redistribution of 1935," he said.

Both are lawyers, Mr. Forest was educated at the Uiversity of Montreal while Mr. Grafftey went to Mount Allison University in Sackville, N.B., and McGill.

Neither candidate has found the constitutional issue foremost in the minds of voters, but rather bread and butter items—housing, cost of living, textile imports, regional disparities—in the region where the urban-rural ratio is about 60-40.

Douglas Showing More Confidence

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The New Democratic Party will make much larger gains in seats in the June 25 election that it had dared to hope five weeks ago, T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party national leader predicted here Friday.

"Many constituencies which we would have placed in the 'doubtful' column at that time we now record as 'sure wins'," said the optimistic Mr. Douglas.

He told a press conference that he had toured across the country twice now during the campaign. "I can report our campaign is going extremely well."

He forecast the NDP will pick up several seats in British Columbia.

MAKE GAINS

On the prairies the NDP will also make gains, he said. This would be particularly true if the Liberals showed greater fight in the western provinces than in the last elections. He said in recent past elections the Liberal voters had tended to vote for the Conservative party because their candidates had no chance of winning.

With the Liberals on the prairies becoming more confident that they might be able to challenge the Tories it strengthened the position of the NDP in several paririe seats, he declared.

The NDP leader also saw wind in some Ontario ridings that it did not hold in the last Parliament. He also saw it showing greater strength on the island of Montreal.

GRIM LOOK

He conceded that the Atlantic provinces looked "grim" from the NDP point of view in the campaign.

Mr. Douglas declined to make a forecast of how many seats his party would win in the election.

He scoffed at the Liberal party's declaration that it will have a re-assessment of foreign policy after the election.

"The Trudeau-Sharp foreign policy is the "election foreign policy of the Liberal party."

It was first put forward by Louis St. Laurent then by Mr. Pearson and now by Mr. Trudeau.

"The Liberals advocate a re-assessment of foreign policy as if they had been the opposition seeking to gain office and forgetting they have been in office," said Mr. Douglas.

He said Canada should get out of NATO and NORAD. He said they were "obsolete cold war" organizations. He was in favor of Canada creating a strong peace-keeping force which it could offer to the United Nations to be used as part of an international peace-keeping force operated by the UN.

The Promising Party

VICTORIA'S LIBERAL CANDIDATE David Groos has drawn attention to one of the chief fallacies of the Conservative election campaign: the Tory propensity to call for greater federal expenditures and lower federal taxes in alternate breaths. This sort of double-entry political book-keeping was as much a Tory tactic while Parliament sat as it is now on the hustings. It is one of the most popular of opposition party gambits—as long as audiences do not remember from one meeting or speaker to another what has been said.

Mr. Charman, the Tory candidate, has sought to straddle the problem by enunciating the interesting theory that because Greater Victorians are prosperous and pay higher income taxes, the federal government should recognize this by building ships here at greatly increased cost. Mr. Charman could hardly deny a similar concession to any other city in Canada which qualifies. So with the cost of everything the federal government buys released from the control of economics and based instead on the factor of pleasing local residents wherever they might be, we could expect some really whopping budgets—as though they haven't been large enough already — and some equally alarming increases in taxation to pay for them. Thus the Conservative financial merry-go-round.

As Mr. Groos pointed out, Conservative Leader Stanfield, in the desperation of his campaign, is promising to spend money faster than his colleagues across the country can save it. There is, for instance, the Conservative leader's promise to establish a guaranteed income for Canadians, his plan to build 200,000 houses a year from a multi-million-dollar fund, his proposal for a national pollution agency, and similar pleasing but highly expensive programs. The suggestions are fine, but they should not be advanced with the implication that they will not cost a great deal of money. With the need to reduce high expenditures still one of the country's most pressing items of business, Mr. Stanfield's contradictions must be apparent to every voter.

In a speech this week, the Tory leader derided the Liberal platform issued a few days ago as mere "generalities". The implication is that Mr. Stanfield's planks deal with specific, practical proposals. If proposing to spend many millions of dollars more without placing any increased costs on the Canadian taxpayer is specific and practical, then even Mr. Charman's merry-go-round book-keeping would seem to make sense.

The plain fact is that Mr. Stanfield's initial push, deriving from the Toronto leadership convention, has run down, and he and his supporters are back to the old game of promising anything and everything that might seem attractive to a voter—while still pretending that it will not cost him any more.

A Reverse Trend

A TIMELY WARNING WAS DElivered this week by Mr. R. A. Engholm, retiring president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, when he said that the United States may be driven to adopt protectionist policies which could touch off a world-wide recession. Averting any move toward restricting international trade, he said, "will be the prime test of U.S. and western statesmanship in the months ahead."

Mr. Engholm's warning was given almost on the eve of the first full-dress United States Congressional debate on foreign trade policy since 1962. And reports from Washington indicate that the protectionists have massed greater strength amongst legislators than they have had perhaps since President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull pushed the nation into more liberal trade policies in the mid-thirties.

Pending in Congress now are literally dozens of bills designed to limit imports, although a number of them are euphemistically labelled as measures to ensure "orderly marketing" or "fair trade." Heading the lobbying groups are major industries including steel, oil, chemicals and textiles, all supported by powerful segments of organized labor which decry the "export of American jobs." The climate of opinion is such that the United States could, as Mr. Engholm put it, turn inward economically.

Although the United States is committed to lowering tariff barriers as negotiated during the Kennedy Round, there are a number of ways of evading the consequences of the agreements, and some which possibly would have a worse effect than tariffs. There has been talk—usually in the interest of cutting the American balance of payments deficit—of imposing border taxes, export subsidies and rebates, complex licensing and quality control requirements, quantitative quotas and other measures.

It may seem strange that the United States, the most powerful and technologically advanced nation in the world, cannot compete with foreign countries in many areas. But American industry is only now beginning to realize that the advantage it has held in trade for so many years has been narrowing, that foreign industry has been improving in technological and managerial skill and often with American capital, to the point where it is not only competitive in many fields but superior in some.

It isn't difficult to show that any inward turning on the part of the United States would be economically unsound for everyone concerned, Americans as well as those with whom they trade. In a relatively short time it would destroy the free market economy of the world, breaking it up into productively uneconomic blocs, destroying industrial efficiency and increasing costs. The danger is that with the United States apparently unwilling, or unable, to take the steps necessary to control its own economy and reduce its international payments deficit, the pressure of special interests may be strong enough to force a retreat to an insular mercantilism.

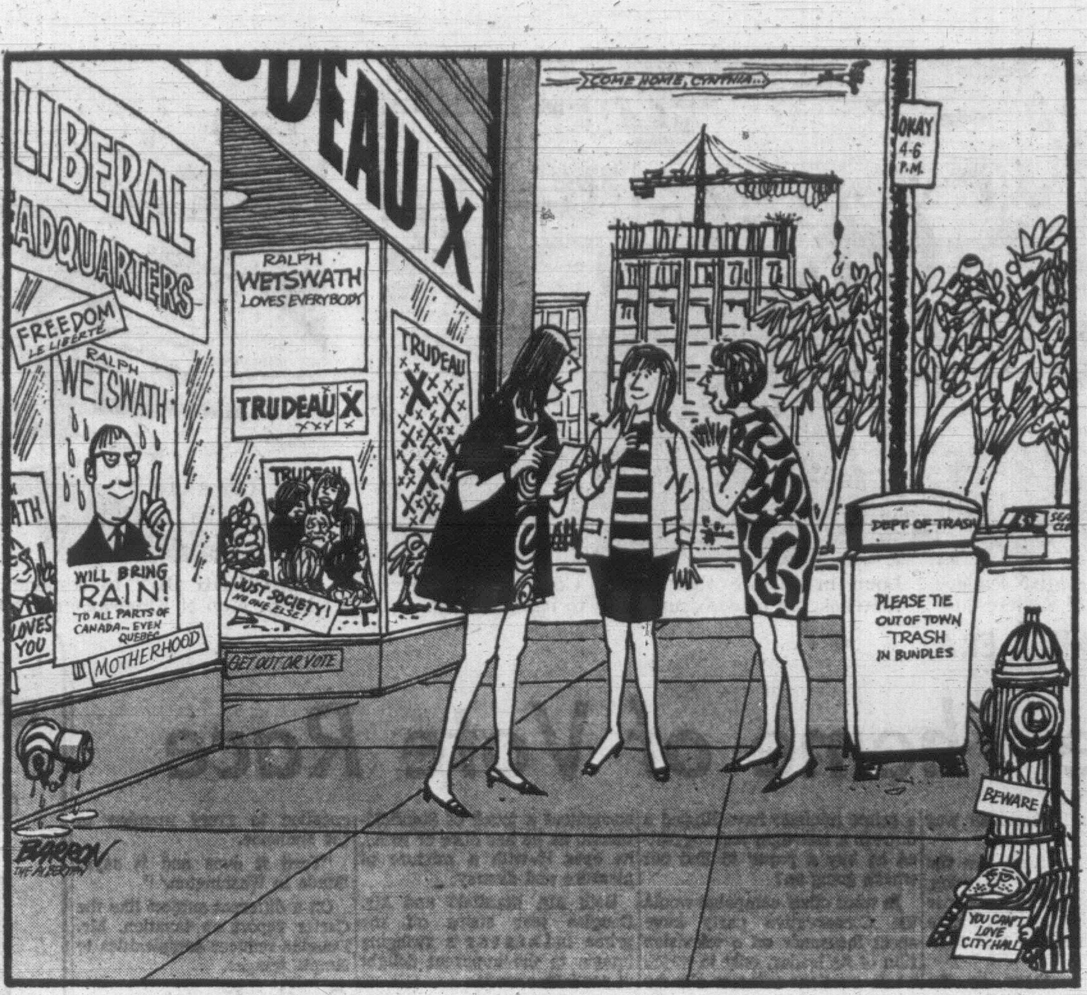
(Erudite Discussion In Terms Of a Rational and Intelligent Approach to Literality)

READERS WHO HAVE NOT been paying close attention to the news from Ottawa may be startled when the word FRED jumps out of the newspaper page. FRED is the most recent example of what has become almost an obsession of officialdom: jiggering the names of new groups or projects so that the initials will form a common word — in this case the Fund for Rural Economic Development, in the Maritimes. Just a few months ago TRIUMF — the Tri-University Meson Facility — arrived on the Canadian scene.

What seems to be needed now is ORGAN — the Organization to Resist the Growth of Acronymic Nomenclature — before the situation gets entirely out of hand and government and private organizations find themselves spending so much time thinking up snappy names that they have no energies left for their proper activities.

And, incidentally, once it was decided that TRIUMF was to be shared by four universities, rather than the original three, shouldn't it have been renamed QUADRUMF?



"... let's go down to City Hall ... there's all those ALDERMEN ... I'll bet nobody ever kisses THEM ..."

Bleak Bastion

Bastion Square will never come alive unless the cold, unimaginative cement is adorned with myriads of brightly colored flowers, gay umbrellas, chairs and tables for loafing and sipping tea. Souvenir stalls at the Government Street approach might possibly tempt the passerby to pause and it is hoped he may be lured to investigate further. It would be well worth the gamble, for gaiety and excitement are what the tourist is seeking. — An Observer.

Kidding Whom?

We have read that the barbers, no doubt actuated by "altruistic" motives, have reduced the price of haircuts to pensioners — that is, to the almost indigent ones — to a single dollar. This kids me not, on my own observation of many a vacant chair! Let's face it, the hairdressers are feeling the pinch through having literally priced themselves out of the market.

A few years ago, when the price of a haircut had almost doubled, I managed to beat the rap to some extent by extending my fortnightly shearings to three weeks but, when my earning days ceased and my crop became progressively less, I invested a couple of dollars in a little gadget for home-cutting, which has paid for itself many times over; it is simple to use and does a commendable job.

I cannot afford filet mignon for the barber any more than for myself. Verb sap! — Earl B. Ward, 740 Fort.

What Price Experience in Successful PMs?

ONE indication of the change which has come over our politics is the fact, noted by an Ottawa newspaper, that Mr. Trudeau, at the beginning of this year, ranked 25th among the ministers in order of precedence. As would be expected in these circumstances, the opposition parties are doing their best to exploit the prime minister's lack of experience. Although Mr. Stanfield has had even less exposure to federal politics than Mr. Trudeau, his long service as premier of Nova Scotia is an asset which the Conservatives, quite legitimately, are stressing in their campaign advertisements.

Western

It would be ridiculous for the Liberals to complain about this since Mr. Smallwood, in a recent election, attributed all the misfortunes of Mr. Diefenbaker to the fact that he became prime minister without serving so much as an apprenticeship on a school board.

There is one point, however, which apparently eluded Mr. Smallwood and has evidently not been considered by Mr. Stanfield's writers. It is very difficult to find any correlation between experience and political success in our parliamentary history.

One could certainly argue, on the basis of the first half-century, that Canadians of those days expected their politicians to work their way up the ladder of party service. Macdonald's experience undoubtedly counted for a good deal in his later elections. When Laurier became prime minister he had been 25 years in public life (22 of them in Parliament) although his actual cabinet service was no greater than Mr. Trudeau's. But his defeated opponent, a father of Confederation, could point to an even longer experience and for some years in cabinet had been the C. D. Howe of his times.

By this measure Mr. Meighen in the early 1920s should have made mincemeat of Mr. King. In fact it was Mr. King who destroyed Mr. Meighen at a turning point in our political history.

Although it is difficult to imagine anyone less like Mr. King than the present prime minister, there is a rather interesting analogy betweeen Mr. Trudeau's position now and that of the Liberal prime minister nearly 50 years ago.

No Early Myth

In the second volume of his biography, H. Blair Neatby points out that there was no such thing as a Mackenzie King myth in the early 20s. When he became prime minister, Mr. King could look back on little more than two years of cabinet service under Laurier. At 47 he was a year younger than Mr. Trudeau — all his colleagues but two, were older men. Moreover, 13 of the 18 ministers had longer legislative service than Mr. King; at least three of them had been premiers; and one, Mr. Fielding, had in addition held the finance portfolio for 15 years.

Mr. Trudeau's situation is in some respects similar; he is surrounded in government by veterans such as Senator Martin, Mr. Hellyer and Mr. McIlraith, and others, such as Mr. Sharp and Mr. Laing, who until recently were better known to the country than the present prime minister.

But there is this considerable difference. Lacking authority and prestige, Mr. King had, for some years, to govern by compromise and conciliation. In contrast, the authority of Mr. Trudeau has never for a moment been in doubt.

The best evidence of this is the election campaign. It quite plainly bears Mr. Trudeau's stamp. It is, to say the least of it, difficult to imagine that Mr. Paul Martin, in like circumstances, would have gone to the country with a hard anti-spending line. Of those who might have done so, few if any would have felt strong enough to challenge the pretensions of Mr. Johnson in face of the fact that Quebec provincial Liberals have themselves talked, albeit somewhat vaguely, of special status.

Mr. King sometimes blurred issues and was often accused of soft-pedalling in one part of the country what he emphasized in another. He did not, of course, invent these tactics, which had long since been accepted as orthodox in a country of such great diversities. But Mr. Trudeau has not merely repudiated them: he seems to have gone out of his way to stress the hard side of a message that has varied little if at all since he took to the hustings.

There is little doubt that some Liberals have reservations about a campaign which, in their view, ignores the political facts of life as they understand them. But they have plainly been unsuccessful in their attempts to change it.

This situation is of interest for another reason. All the biographers insist that, for some time after 1921, Mr. King was by no means the unchallenged leader of his party. Some very able men were convinced that he was simply not up to the job. One obvious reason for this attitude was the absence of any convincing evidence that the Liberals owed the 1921 victory to their new leader. The more plausible explanation was that the country had turned to them, without much enthusiasm, because of the unpopularity of a Conservative government floundering in a morass of post-war problems.

Constitutional Program

No such explanation will be tenable, or even imaginable, if Mr. Trudeau is victorious on June 25. Unlike Mr. King, he does not have the benefit of an ambitious convention program. He does have a constitutional program to which he contributed largely himself in his brief but very active career as minister of justice. For the rest, he is the confident master of his own campaign. If he loses, he will doubtless be blamed. If he wins, he will deserve the credit for a strategy of success. In that case he will be in a much stronger position than Mr. King enjoyed until much later, when he was well launched on his unexampled career.

The strange fact is that although many Canadian ministries have been graced by former premiers, no one has ever made the top job from a provincial springboard. This is Mr. Stanfield's problem.

SPECIAL REPORT FROM PARIS

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

Gaullist Erosion Under the Winds of Change

EUROPE, this spring, is feeling the winds of change. On both sides of the Iron Curtain, the power landscape is undergoing important modification.

Frye

Czechoslovakia is emerging from Stalinism in a political decompression chamber—inching its way, step by anxious step, toward a freer society. The experiment is being watched with very mixed emotion in every other Eastern European capital, including notably Moscow. If it succeeds, the Iron Curtain might, in a very real sense, be rolled back to the Soviet frontier.

France is similarly evolving out of Gaullism, not in a decompression chamber but in a political discotheque. Wild gyrations are accompanying the process, with logic and coherence frequently undetectable. Thus far, the net effect of this politico-economic boogaloo has been an enfeebling of the French "monarchy," a leftward drift of the political centre of gravity, and an opening through which Communists may come to share power.

Loosening Grip

Thus while the grip of orthodox Communism on Eastern Europe is loosening, in the heart of Western Europe Communism is attempting a comeback. It is almost as if the Iron Curtain were being rolled back in both directions at once.

Economically, Europe is in the process of profoundly important evolution. On July 1, an historic date, the Common Market is due to remove all remaining industrial tariffs and thus become, in fact as well as in name, one economic entity.

In the middle and long run, this should be a tremendous boon. But for the immediate future, noncompetitive industries will be forced to the wall, bringing new unemployment and dislocation of labor—the kind of thing that invariably leads to political upheaval and benefits the left.

Political pressures that exploded in France in May are to be found across this country's frontiers, notably in Italy where the Communists recently made a strong showing at the polls.

There is as a consequence, much feeling that "it can happen here"—that a successful Red bid for power in France would produce similar bids elsewhere. The domino theory has many European adherents.

Rightists are not sitting still, hands folded. There has been a considerable counterwave of conservative resistance, spurred in France by skillful Gaullist appeals to patriotism. The game is by no means over. But there is, for the first time in years, a real ball game.

Meanwhile relations between Gen. Charles de Gaulle and the Soviet Union have deteriorated to the verge of open hostility. This could be a highly important fact. Its logical result would be a mutation of French foreign policy.

One impelling reason for De Gaulle's cultivation of Moscow in the past has been his desire to neutralize the hostility, at home, of the French Communist Party.

Now that the reason is obsolete, he is in a full and acknowledged confrontation with the local Communists and Moscow is openly backing them.

There is also positive reason for the General to have come out of the crisis with gratitude toward Washington. At a critical moment, the United States stepped up to bolster the franc, quite possibly tipping the scales against devaluation.

Thus from all sides—from Moscow, from Washington and on the domestic front—there is impulsion for De Gaulle to turn westward. If he does wish to change course, he has a new foreign minister, uncommitted to the past, who can oversee the shift.

Just how profound and lasting a change there is to be in France will not be clear until after national elections have been held. If the Gaullists do poorly, it seems entirely possible that De Gaulle will throw in the sponge.

Many here think he would have done so last week if he could have relinquished office gracefully and with honor. The well-springs of his authority had been sorely drained, humiliating and angering him. A rebuff for his party at the polls would almost certainly be the final straw.

Lame Duck

Even if he does not step down, the general impression that he may do so before very long is making of him a lame duck president, with all that that implies in an erosion of his position.

Paradoxically, some of the people who have in the past most eagerly awaited De Gaulle's departure are having second thoughts about its desirability, now that it is beginning to happen.

The changes that would take place in France under his continuing leadership might well be preferable to the ones that would follow his complete retirement.

At any rate, for better or worse, Europe is seeing the beginnings of post-Gaullism before the General's departure. Like a true old soldier, he is fading away, and the scramble to fill the vacuum has begun.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

There you can find the wild ginger with its heart-shaped leaves and bell-like flower with the wide spreading lobes. Pinch a leaf and smell the ginger odor. This plant sends out runners which will root in the moss and leaves on the forest floor.

Here grows the water leaf, with its hairy leaves and stem. You can tell it by its rather ragged clusters of purplish flowers. Close by is the false bugbane with its head of small white bristly flowers and maple-shaped leaves.

Growing among the salmonberry you will see the stink currant. This shrub sprawls. The large "currant" leaves will grow up to eight inches in width. If you crush a leaf it gives off a pungent odor.

Around the trail you can find the twisted stalk. This plant gets its name from the curious, sharp twist to the stalks. The creamy colored flowers are often hidden under the clasping leaves.

On the ground there is the little shy forest sprite, the enchanter's nightshade. This is a very delicate little plant with tiny white flowers and oval leaves. The plant likes the shade and is often found with the wild lily-of-the valley.

Along the trail you come to an old stream bed. Here the red alders and thimbleberry have established themselves. If you go in towards the cliff you will see the extremely heavy moss growth. The face of the rock is almost completely covered.

In this area you are virtually in a rain forest where there are some very ancient red cedars that are all of 500 years old. Mingled with them are many old burled maples. Their limbs are covered with lichens that hang like many-hued drapes, and the trunks are covered with moss.

Amongst the roar of the traffic on the highway you can hear the music of water as it tumbles over the stones in the river.

THE OLD CANADA VERSUS THE NEW

A Clash of Personalities In Contest of Paradoxes

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA—This election is being fought on two inter-related levels.

The prime clash is between the personalities of Pierre Trudeau and Robert Stanfield, who represent almost too perfectly, the old and the new Canadas.

The prime issue is their past, present and future handling of Quebec.

It's a contest of paradoxes, because Trudeau the French-Canadian appears to be campaigning on a get-tough with Quebec platform while Stanfield the WASP seems to be running on a conciliate-the-French-Canadians ticket.

Newman

The approach of the two men to this most vital problem of national unity is different enough that by choosing one or the other, Canadians will be casting their ballots for one of two widely divergent, almost contradictory views of the Canadian future. It is essential that the voters appreciate exactly what's involved.

Quite apart from the philosophical content of each leader's Quebec policy, there is a considerable difference in their temperamental approach to the problem.

Stanfield's attitude is not that different from Lester Pearson's. He believes in the methods of minimum risk. He wants to get the issue settled around a negotiating table, where preconceived positions can be softened.

He is not spelling out the details of his policy, because he hopes they'll evolve from the protracted process of constitutional amendment now under way. He is, in effect, buying time to solve the problem.

Trudeau, on the other hand, seems to be taking a heroic gamble on an all or nothing shot of the electoral dice. His is the maximum risk contingency — a direct challenge to the ideology, if not the authority of the Quebec administration of Daniel Johnson.

In Trudeau's view, the constitutional negotiations are not so much an exercise in quiet bargaining as a political confrontation. He is willing to open up the constitution, but has set a clear line of demarcation beyond which the federal government won't go.

He may be willing to surrender some federal prerogatives, but only if the provinces give Ottawa something in return. He sees constitutional negotiations as a purely political process, resolved through a series of confrontations between Ottawa and the Johnson administration.

The confrontation, in Trudeau's view, is not between English and French Canada but between the federal government and a party which now happens to be in power in Quebec City.

This is an important difference, because it implies that Trudeau in no way recognizes the right of the Quebec government to represent Canada's French-speaking population.

Not Straw Men

"What we're explaining to Quebeckers in this election," Trudeau said during a television interview May 17 in Ottawa, "is that if they want to elect people to Ottawa, let them not think that they will be just straw men who won't have any power. If we come to Ottawa as representatives from Quebec, we want to be able to speak in cabinet or in parliament with the same authority as MP's from any other province.

"People who are saying that we're campaigning against Quebec are people who are identifying Quebec with Daniel Johnson. Mr. Johnson is elected by Quebeckers to speak for provincial affairs, not federal affairs."

This is the rationale for Trudeau's insistence, even during brief shopping centre stop-overs, that he is the advocate of the One Canada approach.

"We are a country of minorities, not a country of two nations, but a country of fifty nations," he said during his recent B.C. tour.

The Liberal leader's One Canada stand has, in some minds, allied him with the similar-sounding position taken by John Diefenbaker at last fall's Conservative leadership convention. But even if the slogans are the same, a close analysis of the two politicians' pronouncements reveals an important difference.

M. FARIBAULT
. . . top Quebec Tory

The Diefenbaker view was that the French across Canada should be treated like every other minority, except in Quebec, where they would enjoy equality with the English elements of the province.

Trudeau's view of One Canada is based directly on the first report of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism, which advocated equality, at least in linguistic terms, between the two groups in every province where a French population is large enough to warrant special consideration.

Moves Beyond

Robert Stanfield's position does not so much challenge the Trudeau view as move beyond it. He does not accept any clear "two Canadas" theory, but is willing to go some way (how far, simply isn't clear) toward granting Quebec a different status from the other provinces, because the province represents one of Canada's "two founding peoples."

He has not rejected the resolution adopted at the preconvention meeting of Conservatives at Montmorency, Quebec, which in its French-language version designated Canada as a land of "deux nations."

He is also supporting Daniel Johnson's demand that the federal government abandon its veto power over provincial laws.

Marcel Faribault, who is the Conservative party's chief Quebec lieutenant, and as such would play a major role in any Stanfield administration, is much more precise in his demands.

He insists that Quebec must have its own, very special status within confederation, or the entire Canadian experiment is bound to flounder. He sees Quebec as "the national state of the French Canadians" and favors a constitution that would grant the province its own constitutional privileges.

Hard to Predict

How the Quebec voters will react to the two leaders' stands is hard to predict, because beyond the constitutional argument is the political reality of Quebec's situation within confederation, a reality that the Quebec voter has an uncanny ability to recognize.

During the Fourties, Quebeckers disliked Mackenzie King intensely, but they voted Liberal because they knew that only in this way could they dominate the nation's ruling party. Similarly, in 1958, while they had no love for John Diefenbaker, they realized that only by giving him their overwhelming support could they get a share of the power that would be distributed from Ottawa.

Now, the province's voters face a dilemma. If they vote for Robert Stanfield, they will be gambling on Daniel Johnson's ability to extend his influence into the federal sphere.

By voting for Pierre Trudeau, they will be casting their fate to the winds, hoping that this most unusual representative of their race will not forget their special interests as he labors to build a new kind of Canada based on an equality of the two founding races that has never yet been achieved.

Genetic Cancer Link?

By NATE HASELTINE

WASHINGTON — Strong evidence that human cancers can be inherited has been developed by a team of University of California scientists, it was reported to the American Chemical Society.

The investigators at UCLA's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, in Livermore, reported that their studies show an overabundance of the chromosome identified as E-16, the cell-growth determinant, is consistently higher in malignant human cancers than in normal human cells. The findings support a 66-year-old theory advanced by the German embryologist Theodor Boveri, that a chromosome imbalance leads to cancer.

"We have developed evidence that the Boveri hypothesis is correct," said Dr. John W. Gofman, the principal investigator. "We believe that a specific chromosomal imbalance is strongly associated with malignant proliferation of human cells."

Of equal importance is the observation by Dr. Gofman and his associate Dr. Jason L. Minkler that the E-16 chromosome plays a key role in normal cell production as tissues grow.

The researchers noted that the death of normal human cell cultures in the laboratory is coincidental with a decrease of the amount of E-16 chromosome—usually after about 55 cell generations.

Chromosomes are packets of genes, life's hereditary units. They occur in every cell as rod-like structures. In each human diploid cell there are 46 chromosomes. The chromosome count in human cancer cells are usually higher than that in normal cells. The California scientists found that E-16 chromosomes in malignant cells were sometimes four times the number found in normal cells.

Chromosomal abnormalities in the past have been linked with leukemia, blood cancer, and inborn errors of body chemistry, notably Mongolism, and now to a variety of cancers.

The researchers found abnormal chromosome counts in cancerous tissues of the lung, colon and breast, and have studied 11 different lines of laboratory cells cultured from human cancers and from normal human tissues that became malignant in the laboratories.

It is too early to predict just how this aberrant chromosome knowledge can be put to practical use, but it opens the way to some intriguing experiments. One is the attempt to include malignancy in laboratory-cultured normal human cells by the addition of excess E-16 chromosomes.

VIETNAM IN SIX FATEFUL ACTS

Johnson Saw S.E. Asia In Cold War Terms

By CHALMERS ROBERTS
(Fifth of Six Articles)

When Lyndon Johnson moved into the White House he remarked, as he told it later, that the United States was involved in only one war and "let's win it".

And he had said, Tom Wicker has reported, that "I am not going to be the president who saw Southeast Asia go the way China went".

Johnson, like President Kennedy, had accepted Eisenhower's domino theory. He saw the war in cold war terms though he was to come to appreciate how much the Communist world had changed since Stalin.

Like Kennedy, he saw Vietnam in terms of the world power balance. And, like both his predecessors, he underestimated the enemy.

Johnson inherited Kennedy's key men: Rusk, McNamara, McGeorge Bundy, Rostow, Gen. Taylor and the joint chiefs of staff. As Kennedy had accepted advice from his elders which led to the Bay of Pigs, so Johnson accepted advice from the Kennedy holdovers.

The advisers were full of optimism and plans and they had their way as the new President concentrated on his domestic program and the coming election.

In such a euphoric atmosphere, Johnson campaigned that fall against Barry Goldwater, asking voters which of them they would prefer to have the fatal "finger on the button" of nuclear weapons. While Goldwater was talking about a "no win" policy in Vietnam, Johnson was saying that "We don't want to get involved" with China "And get tied down to a land war in Asia."

'Cautious'

Johnson promised to be "very cautious and very careful." He declared that "I have not thought that we were ready for American boys to do the fighting for Asian boys," a phrase that came to haunt him.

Many Americans and others have often pondered why the Communists did not in the winter of 1964-65 propose negotiations. The South Vietnamese army was close to breaking, American intervention was still relatively minor, about 25,000 men of all services. The North had not yet been bombed, except for the single Tonkin raid, and Saigon was the scene of revolving door regimes.

There are two answers. Remembering their 1954 experience, the North Vietnamese leaders were determined not to accept less than victory this time. Secondly, they may have thought from the President's campaign remarks that he would liquidate the war after the election but discovered that he had no such plan.

Plans for striking the North had long been drawn up in case they should be needed. Carriers had been moved into the South China Sea. Johnson later told newman Charles Roberts that he had decided in October, 1964, to bomb the North.

Whatever the pre-planning, the first raid came on Feb. 7, 1965, in what was called retaliation for Viet Cong attacks on American installations, especially at Pleiku were Bundy saw the bloodshed.

At the moment the new Soviet premier, Alexei Kosygin, was in Hanoi. Khrushchev had opted out of Southeast Asia but the new leadership, probably sensing a Communist victory, wanted to be in on the triumph.

Easier Choice

"Retaliatory" strikes quickly became regular policy. Air attacks seemed the easier choice to prevent the collapse of the South Vietnamese. Eisenhower had agonized 11 years earlier over sending ground troops, Kennedy had sent 16,000 but tried to limit their roles. Johnson recalled Gen. Douglas MacArthur's advice to him to avoid a land war in Asia.

The bombing did, at first, cause "great difficulties and confusion" in the North, as Hanoi's deputy chief of staff stated in a 1966 speech captured by the Americans. But, he added, "after some months, we acquired experience, and have strengthened our national defence forces."

The administration denied the bombing was designed to force Hanoi to the conference table. The motives were an amalgam but that was the desirable end. It did not work. Nor did the President alter Hanoi's determination by declaring that the North was engaging in "a deeply dangerous game" by stepping up infiltration.

Because there were no quick results, pressures mounted to extend the bombing to more targets. Chairman Earle G. Wheeler of the Joint Chiefs of Staff commented in 1958 that the military differences with McNamara had been "a question of tempo. The chiefs would have done things faster. They didn't coincide with McNamara on the conduct of the air war."

The bombing began in February. The Marines came ashore in March. Before sending the Army in large numbers, the President offered "unconditional discussions" in his April speech at Johns Hopkins University.

But Hanoi also could read his declaration that "we will not be defeated. We will not grow tired. We will not withdraw, either openly or under the cloak of meaningless agreement."

Each side, in fact, wanted victory. The war was non-negotiable. By June, American troop levels were on the rise. In the fall of 1965, McNamara moved 100,000 men to Vietnam in less than four months, an action of which he was to say on retiring from the Pentagon: "It was very clear we either had to do that or accept defeat."

The odds were improved but Hanoi sent more men from the North and the Viet Cong recruited more in the South. The 37-day bombing pause of December, 1965 — January, 1966, reflected doubts in Washington about the value of continued escalation as well as the growing dissent over the war.

It was fruitless; both sides still wanted victory.

In his letter to Ho Chi Minh during the pause, the President demanded an end to infiltration if he were to halt the bombing. Ho rejected the idea of reciprocity, declaring then, as his representatives at Paris continue to declare, that Hanoi would pay no price for an end to the American "aggression" against the North.

By the fall of 1965, when McNamara was moving 100,000 men to Vietnam, 10 Northern regiments totaling 17,800 men were either there or on their way south. And by the end of the 37-day pause, five more regiments comprising another 10,000 men were moving south, again according to the recent American calculation.

High Point

The high point for the optimists came in fall of 1967 and it was to last until January, 1968.

Gen. Westmoreland came home in November to tell the nation that "whereas in 1965 the enemy was winning, today he is certainly losing."

Furthermore, said Westmoreland, with the American in-country forces now approaching half a million. "We have reached an important point where the end begins to come into view."

The critics were not silent, but, for the moment, the administration had the upper hand. The dissenters found a champion when Sen. Eugene McCarthy in late November announced for the presidency. But few gave him, or his anti-war platform, much of a chance. Other dissenters wished him well, but no more. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy said he was still backing the Johnson-Humphrey ticket for re-election.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

The U.S. can only pause and wonder, what next?

Added this week to the list of startling and traumatic events which have shaken the country in 1968 was the assassination of Senator Robert Kennedy.

Following as it did on the heels of the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King, Kennedy's death came as a particular blow.

Both brothers were the victims of guns wielded by a man acting alone, so far as is known, driven by a twisted personality and interior motives of hatred.

●

Sirhan Bishara Sirhan carried out his deed early in the morning of June 5, the first anniversary of the outbreak of the war between Israelis and Arabs last year.

Kennedy had just scored a convincing victory in the California primary which had buoyed his hope for the Democratic presidential nomination after being upset in Oregon by Eugene McCarthy.

He was ambushed in the corridor by Sirhan who moved unnoticed in the throng and fired eight pistol shots from close range before being subdued. Two of the shots hit Kennedy and five other persons were wounded, none seriously, in the jostling melee.

One of the bullets lodged in Kennedy's brain. A team of neurosurgeons spent four hours attempting to remove the fragements but couldn't save his life. He died 24 hours after the shooting without regaining consciousness.

His death brought an abrupt end to the political campaign with the two nominating conventions less than two months away.

The Democratic race appears to be a two-way contest between McCarthy and Hubert Humphrey, with the vice president holding the top cards at the moment.

But in the present U.S. mood of uncertainty anything can happen between now and the conventions and the November elections.

President Johnson responded to the assassination by ordering extra secret service protection for the remaining presidential candidates, both Democrat and Republican, and setting up a nine-member commission to study the causes of violence in the U.S.

●

There were fears that the motive behind the killing and the nationality of the assassin might exacerbate tension in the Middle East.

Some Arab newspapers hinted darkly that it was a "Zionist plot" aimed at discrediting the Arab cause. They were also concerned that it would create more anti-Arab feeling.

Earlier in the week, on the eve of the war anniversary, Israel launched at attack on Jordan near the Sea of Galilee with planes, rockets and tanks.

The Israelis said the attack was to silence Jordanian artillery batteries which have been firing on their villages. Jordan said 35 persons were killed and 62 wounded in the city of Irbid during the assault. The fighting lasted nine hours.

●

Briefly:

U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators met only once this week made no headway, and adjourned for another week . . .

Greek and Turkish Cypriot leaders made their first peaceful contact in the five-year-old Cyprus crisis as informal talks began in Beirut, with full-scale negotiations expected to follow on the divided island . . .

There was a gradual movement back to work in France as President de Gaulle appeared to be winning a reprieve until June 23 when national elections will be held . . .

A student uprising in Belgrade University was quickly snuffed out by the Yugoslavian regime of President Tito which banned all public meetings and marches.

A Conscience to Face And a Debt to Pay

By ART STOTT

The other day I heard a Canadian mother, who had moved with her family to the United States some years ago, express the personal heartache the American draft laws have brought to her.

Stott

She has a son of draft age. His friends have been called up. He appreciates the fact that the United States has given him the advantages of its educational system, has provided what he considers the good life. He is conscious of an obligation to the country for these benefits. When, or if, he is called, he will report for induction.

"But," says the mother, "He does not believe in the officially defined cause for which Americans are fighting in Vietnam. I don't want my son to be killed fighting for something in which he does not believe. Yet I recognize the sentiments which move him. We have lived in the United States for some years. He has spent his youth there and he feels that the nation has been good to him, providing opportunitites from which he has benefitted, given him friends whom he cherishes and who have been called up."

No doubt many other Canadians are wrestling with similar matters of conscience in the United States. They are in a category outside the native born. Those who are Americans by birth have a less complicated decision to make — and many of them have made it for honest, if nationally unpopular, reasons.

Life and opportunity in the United States is their birthright. If they see the Vietnam war as a just effort to defend the type of democracy they consider operative in the United States, a major baffle has been removed from the call of duty. If they don't, then they can stand on an issue of conscience and accept the consequences. The decision is not that simple, of course. Personal elements enter the issue — quite apart from a very natural, and not cowardly, disinclination to nominate themselves for death.

The son of the Canadian mother cannot approach the problem on the same basis. The living he has enjoyed in the United States in recent years was not a birthright. It was something accorded him by an alien country. He has accepted the gift of it and acknowledges a debt.

Uncounted Canadians who do not take part in peace marches, who do not give advice to the United States, consider the fighting in Vietnam one of the world's tragedies. They subscribe to what I interpret to be Canada's official attitude — a desire to help the United States to extricate itself from this war to save lives on both sides and to strengthen the case that lethal force furnishes no acceptable solution to human problems.

Apart, however, from some sticky commitments to provide "defence" materials, Canadians are on the sidelines, even though represented on an international commission involved in Vietnam.

The young man whose mother spoke to me might take a similar position and argue that the United States authorities are exceeding their moral right when and if they call him up. He hasn't taken that position and for reasons that, I think, do him credit.

It can be argued that the young man will be doing wrong if, against his convictions, he goes to fight in Vietnam. There is logic in that case. But logic is a cold, calculating process that seldom withstands the heat of emotion. The young man feels that he has lived among friends away from his homeland. They have been good to him. Now they expect from him what might be expected from a friend in time of need.

The prospects leave his mother heartsick — and yet "for the reasons that are moving him, I can't help feeling a little proud."

WEEK ON MARKETS

Brokers Expect Summer Rally

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An unexpected surge swept through Canadian stock exchanges in the last two days of the week, carrying prices to their best levels since May 16.

To brokers' surprise, the shooting of Sen. Robert Kennedy made only a mild dent in the market Wednesday and his actual death the following day failed to keep prices down.

Earlier in the week, Canada's markets were sluggish in contrast to the strong advance in New York. However, the upward trend eventually caught on.

Analysts said institutional funds were the main source of strength. They believe this is the factor which has overridden both tragedy and unfavorable economic news.

The major funds are extremely anxious to invest a higher proportion of their huge cash reserves before presenting half-yearly reports to stockholders.

Exactly a month ago, when the market had no support to lean on, rumors of mysterious Russian troop movements in Poland hit prices four times as hard as Wednesday's shooting.

Looking at the economic horizon, brokers were depressed by news from Washington that the vote on the income tax-spending cut bill has been put off until June 19.

There was also more talk of another sterling devaluation and renewed fears for the future of all major currencies.

On the brighter side, Stephen Handfield-Jones, Canada's director of the International Monetary Fund, said Monday he thought that "paper gold" — the new form of international money based on Special Drawing Rights from the IMF — could be in operation by early next year.

He told the Canadian Institute of International Affairs that this should restore confidence in exchange rates and the value of money.

Both the U.S. Senate and the IMF's 107-nation board voted in favor of the plan this week.

Optimistic brokers are now looking forward to a strong summer rally, with the indexes rising steadily through June, July and August. They feel this should be the seasonal pattern if no foreign crisis interferes.

U.S. Boosts Margin Scale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board, moving to slow speculation in stocks, now requires that persons buying stocks and convertible bonds on credit make bigger down payments.

The board raised the down payment to 80 per cent of the purchase price on stocks and 60 per cent on bonds which can later be converted into stocks. The action was announced Friday.

The old margin requirements were 70 per cent on stocks and 50 per cent on bonds.

Although the new requirements went into effect today, the first practical effects will come Monday when the stock exchanges reopen.

Eaton Officials In Visit to City

A member of Canada's most famous merchandising family made his first visit to Victoria this week in company with officers of the Eaton store chain.

It was an informal trip, in which the company held a reception for about 140 Victoria businessmen at the Empress Hotel.

A spokesman said Alan Y. Eaton, director; G. D. Wotherspoon, vice-president, and C. M. Beatty, secretary, all of Toronto, were here for the first time and wanted to meet a representative group from the business community.

Also in the party were first vice-president David Kinnear, formerly director of the store's Pacific region in Vancouver, and director F. E. West, of Vancouver.

TOURING British Festival of Arts at Hudson's Bay store, British High Commissioner Sir Henry Lintott perches on low-slung British fiberglas sports car. With him are John Saunders (right), principal British trade commissioner in B.C., and J. H. McKay (centre), store manager. (Photo by Strickland)

Display Intrigues U.K. Commissioner

A British fibreglass car which can accelerate from zero to 100 miles an hour in 24 seconds caught the eye of Sir Henry Lintott, British high commissioner to Canada, Thursday.

"It should do well on your wide Canadian freeways," said Sir Henry during his tour of the $1,000,000 British Festival of Arts at the Hudson's Bay store.

"It is safer because in the event of a collision the fibreglass breaks up around the passengers," a spokesman for the B.C. agents said.

The low-slung, yellow-painted sports model is said to run 30 miles to the gallon.

"I declare this festival open," he said.

"At The Bay we are proud of our British accents."

"You must have a variety of them," he told store manager J. H. McKay.

Sir Henry was also intrigued by a collection of old English coins dating back as far as the reign of Edward the Confessor.

He toured the exhibition with Acting Mayor Cecil Parrott, Cr. Mrs. Frances Elford of Oak Bay; John Saunders, principal British trade commissioner in B.C., and Mr. McKay.

Sir Henry and Lady Lintott were guests of Mr. McKay at luncheon in the Union Club before leaving for Vancouver.

Today Sir Henry will speak on Canada and Britain In An Age of Change at a meeting of the Men's Canadian Club in Hotel Vancouver.

DE HAVILLAND TWIN OTTERS

$40 Million Canadian Plane Order

TORONTO (CP) — De Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. has announced the signing Friday in Reading, Pa., of an agreement with Miami Aviation Corp. for its largest single order of Twin Otter aircraft to date.

Miami Aviation, which distributes, sells and leases aircraft will pay an estimated $40,000,000 for 100 Twin Otters over the next 2½ years.

Mr. Hart said his company probably will sell most of the aircraft to commuter airlines to provide fast service from major airports to smaller ones.

Twin Otters are especially designed for small airfields. They land and take off in distances of less than 1,000 feet.

Bond Market Displays Strength

TORONTO (CP) — In the face of a new $500,000,000 issue by the government at the start of the week, the Canadian bond market surprised most brokers and closed stronger.

Brokers had thought the new issue might not be absorbed by the market but Prime Minister Trudeau revealed Wednesday the issue had been oversold. The government needed $420,000,000 to redeem an issue maturing June 15 and now has this plus an extra $100,000,000.

Of the three maturities issued, one closed higher, one closed at the offering price and one closed lower. The 6¾-per-cent July 1, 1969 issue, picked up 10 cents to 99.85, the seven-per-cent Oct. 1, 1970 issue, closed at 99.75, its offering price, and the seven per-cent June 15, 1974 issue, slipped 13 cents to 98.62.

In other long — and short-term Canadas, the 4½-per-cent Sept. 1, 1983 issue, rose one to 77¼ bid and 78¼ asked, the 5¾-per-cent Sept. 1, 1992 issue, three-quarters to 88¾ bid and 89¾ asked, the 4¼-per-cent Sept. 1, 1972 issue, 75 cents to 89.50 bid and 90.50 asked and five-per-cent Oct. 1, 1973 issue, 50 cents to 89.75 bid and 90.50 asked.

In corporates, Bell Telephone 7⅝-per-cent, 1991 issue, was up one-half to 99 bid and 99½ asked and St. Laurent Shopping eight-per-cent, 1993 issue, one-quarter to 99¼ bid and 100 asked.

In provincials, Ontario Hydro seven-per-cent Feb. 15, 1988 issue, gained five-eights to 97⅝ bid and 97⅞ asked.

Day-to-day money closed at 6⅞-7¼ per cent and 91-day treasury bills closed at 6.95 per cent and 182-day bills at 7.00 respectively, compared with 6.95 and 7.01.

Okanagan Area to Benefit From Big Mine Operation

By AB KENT
Business Editor

A massive infusion of capital to B.C.'s latest copper-molybdenum project will have lasting effects on the Okanagan area where some $60 million in development funds will be spent.

And for some 20 years the great Brenda Mines Ltd. open pit will empty wages and profits into the Penticton area where agriculture and tourist industries have dominated the economy.

Kent

Granted that much of the profits will be spent abroad — to shareholders spread across North America, to the financial backers of the undertaking in Canada and Japan. But the whole B.C. economy will benefit directly or indirectly as with any tax-paying resource industry.

First effects have already begun to be felt in Peachland, the nearest community to the mine, located 14 miles west in a rough part of the country lying between Okanagan Lake and 6,545-foot Pennask Mountain.

There can be no question that a rich mining industry will alter the character of this quiet corner of the province.

The first five staff residences are under construction in Peachland, a construction camp and sewage disposal system are operating at the mine site, where an average 160 men have been employed during the first quarter of 1968.

Much of the money put up by banks and private backers is being spent, although formal approval of the financing agreement will not be put to shareholders until next week.

★ ★ ★

President B. O. Brynelsen summarized the activity with these main points:

- A 14-mile road — paid for jointly by the company and highways department for a 47 per cent public interest — now links the mine site with Peachland.
- Stripping in preparation of the open pit has reached a rate of 150,000 tons per month.
- Mechanics toward the end of May were assembling three 100-ton trucks and an 11-yard shovel to bring ore from the pit, and a sizable rotary drill will start by the end of June.
- B.C. Hydro's power line is in, ahead of schedule.
- Clearing and excavation for part of the ore-grinding mill is finished and foundations for concentrator and service buildings are under way.
- A contract for steel and concrete work at the main water dam has been let and an access road to the tailings dam site was started.

Mr. Brynelsen said there was no final cost estimate, pending full engineering design. But he said the $60 million was still a valid estimate.

In the first three years of operation the Brenda mine is expected to produce 26 million tons grading .212 per cent copper and .063 per cent molybdenum.

This average is likely to fall off over the life of the pit, which is reconed to contain 177 million tons assaying .183 per cent copper and .049 per cent molybdenum.

Shareholders of Canada Packers Ltd. got an end-of-week bonus with news of not only a 5-1 share split, but an increased dividend.

Directors propose that both "A" and "B" common stock be increased to a total of 6 million shares outstanding.

It also is planned to raise the annual dividend from $2.50 to $2.80, making it payable semi-annually, effective Oct. 1. This would amount to 56 cents per common share per year for the new class.

The firm, largest meat packer in the country, had a net income last year of $8.068 million, or $6.72 per share.

Calgary-based Atco Industries Ltd. has a good chance of an interesting future making air-lift housing for Canadian and U.S. governments.

The firm, which pioneered factory-built housing units for remote construction sites, military installations, portable and temporary facilities, has been working on a Canada-U.S. development and research contract that is expected to lead to production contracts by the end of 1968.

President R. D. Southern predicts that market generally will continue to be favorable, in the absence of more inflationary pressures and international protectionist measures.

Profits, prices and sales are expected to remain stable in the second half of this year, he said.

Meanwhile, a substantial part of the company's effort is going into development of seven prototype airlift buildings, the first of which is about to be tested.

Speculation for their use includes shipment to underdeveloped areas as part of foreign aid, and rehabilitation of areas flattened by military action in Vietnam.

LIVING COSTS RISE AGAIN

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index rose one-tenth of a point in May to 154.2 from 154.1 in April mainly because of higher housing and entertainment costs, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Friday.

It said food and clothing prices were lower at the beginning of last month, but higher costs of air fares sent the transportation index up, the health and personal care index was up and prices of tobacco and cigarettes rose in several cities.

The index, based on 1949 consumer prices equalling 100, was 148.1 in May last year. The increase for the year in the overall index was a gain of 6.1 index points, or 4.1 per cent.

The food index, representing slightly over one-quarter of the total index, eased down to 148.9 in May from 149.8 in April. It was 143.7 in May last year.

The housing index, nearly one-third of the whole, rose to 157.1 from 156.6 in April and 150.5 in May last year, mainly because of higher rents in Ottawa and Edmonton, fuel-oil price increases in a number of cities and a general steady advance in home ownership costs.

The recreation and reading index, while only a small five per cent of the total index, had the sharpest rise in the month, mainly because of higher prices for cinema admissions, camera film, bicycles and toys.

The consumer price index, a measure of the cost of living, is based on a survey of prices of a basket of goods representative of what average urban families on moderate incomes buy.

The bureau has no precisely-parallel index of incomes. But it reported last week that average weekly wages paid in manufacturing industries in April was $103.67, compared with $100.62 in March and $96.50 in April last year.

Bank Subscribers To Get Money Back

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Supreme Court has ruled that original subscribers to the Bank of Western Canada are entitled to the return of their $3,750,000 investment.

Reports Loss

OTTAWA (CP)—The National Harbors Board had a net loss of $6,174,360 in 1967 compared with a $1,212,648 loss in 1966, its annual report says.

An income drop was due mainly to a $2,000,000 increase in operation and maintenance expenses and a $2,000,000 decrease in grain elevator revenue.

Massey-Ferguson Net Income Shows Major Decline

TORONTO (CP) — Massey-Ferguson Ltd. had net income of $10,100,000 or 56 cents a share in the six months ending April 30 compared with $14,400,000 or 80 cents a share in the similar period last year, the company has reported.

A company report said sales decreased about five per cent in the period, to 408,300,000 from $430,900,000. Largest decreases were in North America and Europe.

President A. A. Thorbrough said lower sales and earnings were due mainly to strikes at major suppliers and at the company's plants.

The company's Canadian plants now have been shut for six weeks. Workers are striking for wage parity with their American counterparts.

You've called it ugly.
Now you can call it shiftless.

Because now you can drive the Bug all over town without shifting.

We call this amazing invention the automatic stick shift, and it works like this:

In the city, you drive it like an automatic. There's no clutch pedal to worry about. Just put it in gear and go. (You might find your left foot stabbing at the floorboards the first time you try it, but after a while you just settle back and enjoy the ride.)

Out on the highway, there's an overdrive you slip it into to save on gas (economy is still the name of the game remember) and there's a low for steep hills, snow or mud.

But if you're a purist, and the thought of an automatic Volkswagen bugs you, take heart.

The automatic stick shift gives you a choice: you can drive it the lazy way, or you can start out in low and take it through the gears one, two, three, just like a regular shift.

That means you can still get the drop on some lumbering beast at a stoplight. Or gear down around a corner just like in the good old days.

And besides an automatic stick shift, this year's Bug comes complete with a padded dash, bucket seats with cushy, built-in headrests, bigger, stronger bumpers and all the other things that make a Volkswagen a Volkswagen.

Now, does that make it any more attractive?

The 'Empire' Westerners Try to Forget

THE RIVER THAT GOD FORGOT, by Richard Collier. Collins, 1968. $6.95.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

The River that God Forgot is the Amazon, and the book is a study of the great rubber boom that occurred there in the first decade of the 20th century.

Any reader of Collier's narrative will quickly realize why Western civilization has attempted to forget the incidents that are associated with the boom, and the revelations that finally resulted in the bursting of this inflated economic bubble.

The Putumayo River, one of the branches of the Amazon, constituted the border between Peru and Colombia at a time when the two nations were engaged in a border dispute.

In an effort to ease tensions and avoid clashes, the two governments withdrew from the Putumayo valley. Into this power vacuum moved the Peruvian adventurer, Julio Cesar Arana. He became master of the Putumayo.

Collier's portrait of Arana shows him to be completely ruthless. He was motivated by a desire for wealth and power, and by an intense loyalty to his wife and their many relatives. He permitted nothing to hinder the accumulation of his fortune.

Arana was astute enough to realize that the rubber boom could not last forever. His answer to the threatened termination of the era of prosperity was the rapid exploitation of the forests of the Putumayo through the total exploitation of the inhabitants dwelling in the region.

Turned Into Slave Empire

Their simple way of life was summed up in their own creed: "Beside me beauty, below me peace, before me beauty, everywhere peace."

After Arana's advent, their valley was transformed into one vast slave empire; their lives were dominated by Arana's hirelings, sadistic escaped criminals who found enjoyment in torture, rape and murder. These were the weapons used to force the natives to labor beyond the limits of human endurance to extract the rubber as quickly and as plentifully as possible.

Travellers into the region were discouraged and carefully watched; settlers and traders were driven out or slain; the press of Brazil was carefully controlled by Arana's influence; politicians and government officials were corrupted by his wealth.

Arana and the other rubber barons of the Amazon valley, when they were not flaunting their wealth on the Riviera or in Switzerland, enjoyed the fruits of their unscrupulous activity in the boom city of Manaus. There their marble palaces and fabulous opera house remain, testimonials to the lavish lives they enjoyed.

Manaus was the "white" city, its imported tile and marble gleaming in the tropical sun, but it was a city built of the bones and blood of the Amazon Indians.

Then into the valley of the Putumayo wandered the young American adventurer, Walter Ernest Hardenburg, looking for work on the railways that the rubber was bringing to the region. He soon found himself imprisoned by Arana's gunmen, and though he was able to free himself, he was horrified by the brutality with which Arana treated his slave workers.

Took Evidence to England

In compassion he pledged himself to the struggle to destroy the power of this evil man and the system that he and others had created for the exploitation of the Amazon rubber.

As Richard Collier tells the story of Hardenburg's struggle, the young man assumes the proportions of a David attacking a modern Goliath.

Hardenburg had no money, no influence, no special talent, no powerful friends, and no certainty as to how he should proceed in his mission. He was struggling against a man who was ruthless, powerful and totally corrupt.

Collier's research has been painstaking, and he retraces the steps by which Hardenburg amassed his evidence. Since it was impossible to move against Arana's influence in Brazil, the American took his evidence to England, hoping to lay his charges before people of influence.

The River that God Forgot often reads like a legal report, so objective and detached is Collier as he tells his story. In spite of this, the narrative is fascinating, particularly as Hardenburg's net begins to close about Arana.

Because Arana had created a British-based company with a respectable British board of directors as a front for his activities, the British government was forced to create a committee to investigate the charges against Arana that Hardenburg was able to have printed in the British press.

Roger Casement was sent to the Amazon to investigate the allegation; his report corroborated Hardenburg's charges and passed along much more damning evidence to the British government.

Arana's empire collapsed almost as quickly as it had been created when his evil was exposed to the light of humanity and justice.

With his defeat ended the boom along the Amazon. It was destroyed by the inhumanity of those who had profited from it, but it was also terminated because of the rubber plantations in Malaya developed from the seeds smuggled out of Brazil by Henry Alexander Wickham.

As a result of the exposure of Arana, Roger Casement secured a knighthood; the few Indians of the Putumayo who had survived the murderous activity of Arana's assassins received schools, churches and government help.

Walter Hardenburg returned from giving evidence before the committee in London to his home in Red Deer, Alberta, virtually ignored and forgotten by a world somewhat reluctant to have its attention drawn to one of the blackest stains on the pages of history.

Characters Reduced To Dead Flies

ABOVE GROUND by Jack Ludwig. McClelland and Stewart; $6.95; 364 pages.

His narrative makes little sense as an analysis of human relationships; the only recognizable character, his attractive wife, stands sorrowfully aside as he beds girl after girl.

Josh's quest is for a Whitmanesque union with the world at large: "to him that is joined to all the living there is hope."

However, on the credit side, Josh's search for experience is expressed in a torrent of rich, poetic language.

The book is really a long prose poem. It builds enticing webs of words which reduce the characters to so many dead flies.—A.J.

'Fur Trade' Tops New Jackdaws

School teachers especially will be interested in three new "Jackdaws" recently off the press.

Jackdaw No. C.5 was written and compiled by Marjorie Wilkins Campbell. It is entitled The Fur Trade, and without a doubt the best of the three.

Hartwell Bowsfield compiled No. C.10 which deals with Lord Selkirk and Richard Howard has compiled No. C.11, entitled Cartier of St. Malo.

Each is $2.50 and as usual all are published by Clarke, Irwin and Co. of Toronto.

For those social science teachers unfamiliar with the Jackdaw series, "Jackdaws" are neither books nor pamphlets nor articles. Each is a case full of copies of original documents, maps, photographs, etc. relating directly to the subject.

The idea behind them is to make history live—to permit the student to see, for example, an actual copy of a letter written by a fur-trader in 1802 describing conditions at a fort in western Canada.

SIR COMPTON IN THE WORLD OF ACTION

And Here's to West Brom!

MY LIFE AND TIMES, OCTAVE SEVEN, by Sir Compton Mackenzie; Clarke, Irwin & Co.; $8.40; 320 pages.

Reviewed by Alan Dilnot

It is clear that each volume of Sir Compton Mackenzie's autobiography will have a character of its own.

The reader left Octave Six with memories of huge creative energies expressing themselves amidst the idyllic surroundings of the various islands which Sir Compton had chosen for his homes.

In Octave Seven, 1931-1938, the islands, especially Barra, remain, and of course the old pursuits are there—half a dozen novels, a history, a biography, books reviews for the Daily Mail, articles for The Gramophone, and his usual round of speeches and lectures. But these we had come to expect from earlier volumes, where we had seen that in spite of, or perhaps because of financial hardships and paralyzing sciatica, his output never lagged.

This volume, however, will be read for the descriptions of the author's experiences in the world of action. All are marked by his characteristic zest, and some are also highly amusing.

There is his campaign on the Scots Nationalist ticket (how recent British politics must have delighted him!) for the Rectorship of Glasgow University; his founding of the Sea League to protect the interests of the Outer Hebridean fishermen from the raids of English trawlers; his agitation of the Barra motorists over the conditions of their roads, when they refused to pay their licence fees; and, most important, his trial under the Official Secrets Act for certain disclosures he made in "Greek Memories" about British Intelligence operations in the First World War.

His description of the trial is one of the highlights of the book, the grim humor coming from the author's awareness of the difference between the damage he had done his country (nil), and the damage the country could do to him (put him in jail). Fittingly, the hearing took place in a chamber which had once served Charles Dickens as his setting for Bardell versus Pickwick.

The Duke Had Been Badly Treated

In a different mood are the recollections of the time he spent writing "The Windsor Tapestry," which was his attempt to correct what he regarded as slanders circulating against the Duke of Windsor after the Abdication.

Like Churchill, he believed that the Duke had been badly treated and had become a victim of prejudice. His account of the crisis was therefore bitterly critical of Baldwin and the Archbishop of Canterbury.

We do not learn anything new here of those events; what we do have is a depressing account of the difficulties that were put in Sir Compton's way as he wrote the book and of the efforts that were made to suppress it. There is in an appendix an interesting legal opinion of his position under the libel laws.

In many ways the Compton Mackenzie who appears in this book reminds us that it is only comparatively recently that the separation of the idea of "the novelist" from that of "the man" has become established.

As with Dickens, the picture of the author in the popular mind was formed almost as much by his public activities as by his writing.

Even in his books, he built a personal relationship with the reader and came to be considered a kind of friend who conducted one through certain scenes and introduced one to certain characters.

In his capacity as man-of-the-world, he had entree to the best places; he knew about such things as wines and good food, but nevertheless seemed to retain a sympathy for the humble.

Sir Compton became a man to whom others could turn for protection against the injustices of great ones. Certainly he was often called upon for this kind of aid and seems to have enjoyed giving it.

There is indeed throughout this volume a warmth of personality which shows itself in an hostility to bureaucracy and an affection for the oddity, the eccentric, the lost cause, "All things counter, original, spare, strange," and of course in the confidence in his own powers which enabled him to write and fulfil contracts for years and books ahead.

It is said that when Anthony Trollope's autobiography was published it destroyed his reputation for a generation. The public shuddered to find that he regarded his job as in many respects like any other, and that he set himself to write an average of 40 pages a week.

Similarly, if we had any illusions about the nature of this prolific author's creativity, this volume would clear them away. Through this octave of his life Sir Compton carried a huge overdraft, and in fact was almost bankrupt in 1936. In every case he wrote to get out of debt, although it is obviously also true that this was the most congenial way to do it.

He Wrote To Get Out of Debt

When we read that he could only work listening to music, we think for a moment that we are in the company of that mythical romantic figure, the creature of inspiration; but we then learn that this was the best way of writing novels and getting a review of records finished on time.

Still, our illusions are not destroyed completely; at least Sir Compton needed solitude, whereas Trollope tells us quite cheerfully that he got a lot of his writing, including Barchester Towers, done in railway carriages.

In an earlier Octave, Sir Compton linked the tides of his fortunes with those of the soccer team West Bromwich Albion. Their success in this year's Cup Final must have made him feel confident that he will live to perform his recently expressed wish—to be the first to write a book at the age of 100.

EVERYBODY BAIL! JUST FOR LAUGHS

YIDDISH FOR YANKEES OR, FUNNY, YOU DON'T LOOK GENTILE by Martin Marcus. McLelland and Stewart; $1.95; 48 pages.

So you know what lox and bagels are, but did you realize that shmaltz means literally "rendered chicken fat?"

This gastronomic information forms the most straight-faced section of this hilarious little guide to Jewish idiom.

As the author himself suggests, his book is less of a lexicon than a key to a philosophy of life. He sees the present decade as the "Sinking Sixties" and feels that one of the best ways to bail oneself out is with this glossary, since "Yiddish humor is lifeboat humor," the compensation of an entire race in the face of inevitable misfortune.

Martin Marcus has arranged his selection in chapters that illustrate different points of view rather than giving an alphabetical list; but each word is indexed and comes with a phonetic pronunciation guide.

However, it is not so much what each word means but the emotion behind it that counts, and the explanations are even funnier than the definitions: "Verblonget" (fur blawn jet) lost; hopelessly confused.

You lost all your money at the track, your wife told you she's expecting, you found somebody else's name on your office, and you learn that your psychiatrist just shot himself.

Can you think of a better word than verblonget?"

The sardonic, world-weariness of Yiddish humor makes even a compliment a loaded statement. So much depends upon what is not said: "haymisheh (hay mih sheh) a word to describe a comfortable, homey kind of person. To a mother, a haymisheh fella is a solid family man. To a daughter, he's a square."

The force of these words is in their intonation. For an epic lament in one syllable, it would be hard to beat the last entry in the book: "nu" (noo) the most eloquent word in any language.

Given a variety of inflections, it can mean almost anything you want it to . . . If on your death bed, no memorable last words come to mind, just look up at your family, smile enigmatically and say 'Nu?' They'll spend the rest of their lives wondering what you meant."

ART IN REVIEW

'Man's Eyes Are Not Windows'

By TED LINDBERG

(Second of two parts)

Lindberg

With different styles but comparable purposes, the "Op," "Hard Edge" and peripheral "Pop" artists in the Younger Vancouver: Cross Section '68 exhibition at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria put before the viewer a psychological tension, an ambiguity, a presence that appears after a few minutes' looking.

These artists believe that they are reaching for a new classicism based on the legitimate ancestry of Cezanne, Seurat and Monet, who in their time seized upon newly proposed theories of optics when they painted.

In this century, such constructivists as Mondrian and Malevich were the forebears of Op and Hard Edge paintings, dry, highly controlled use of color; and the immediate father figure of this fascination with color perception is Josef Albers, who has spent a lifetime investigating its scientific basis.

Baffled, Boggled

The apparent result of all this research is that man's eyes are not windows, although he has long regarded them as such. They can be baffled and boggled. They often see things that are not there and fail to see things that are.

In the eyes resides man's first sense, and it is fallible.

Preying and playing on this fallibility in vision, this movement in painting is perhaps now at a peak, and its practitioners seem to exert a majority of control even on the Vancouver art scene.

To be frank, I have seldom completely responded to this kind of calculated art, although there is no denying the scienfic impulse which exists in all areas.

In terms of true experimentation, it must be conceded to be one of the few remaining fields of inquiry, before painting is separated entirely from the stretched canvas.

Hard to Judge

I find it difficult to make judgments about art based so entirely on a passionless precision, no matter how much one may admire the impeccable technique.

There is the antiseptic arua here, as if the art has been untouched by human hands; layed out by a mechanical drafting machine or charted by a computer.

Some of the paintings employ moire patterns, familiar in the shimmer of water silk fabrics. Fundamentally, these are flashes of apparent reflection, created whenever two or more grids of parallel or periodic rulings — window screens for example — are overlapped.

When misaligned slightly, they produce ripples and curves not actually inherent in the grids. The smallest angle of change yields the greatest, most disturbed pattern displacements.

These patterns suddenly reveal new sensations that man never knew were within his visible province. But is it therefore science and not art? Perhaps.

Other artists in this exhibition examine the way a single color looks darker than it is against a lighter background; or, still again, by placing contrasting shapes together, which causes the eye to perceive them alternately as figure and ground.

The theory is that such shifts move between the eye's stimulation and repose (possibly to relieve strain), and produces interesting retinal afterimages.

Mastered Both

Paul Wong, probably the most able of the pure painters in this group, has mastered the use of both the moire and afterimage techniques, and has admirably retained the semblance of ghostly forms, hovering in the interstices of his geometric patterns.

Michael Morris, a Victoria-reared artist, displays a distint virtuosity of purely technical means in two compositions, which nevertheless strike me as merely handsome objects, as turned out and polished as top-secret isometric projections of components for the hydrogen bomb.

When I look at such faultless full-color and bendayed drafting, I think only of the just revenge that is being wreaked on a public which felt so cheated by the Abstract Expressionist movement.

Here is the return to the calm and order it clamored for: hermetically sealed under plexiglas and detached to the point of utter emotional sterility.

As formal, scientifically-oriented designs, the paintings of Brian Fisher stand up well. They appear to be based on representations of magnetic lines of force, and would be useful-eye-provoking objects in a severely contemporary black and white decor.

Welcome Freedom

Brent Gifford's paintings embody some of the Op effects and some flat, Hard Edge abstraction, combined in generous color compositions, but again, I can't help but feel that they too are primarily destined for the decorator market.

Leonard Brett's molten lines zoom about his canvases exercising a little welcome freedom, and I was unaccountably amused by his "Nexus" in particular, as it seemed that the white-hot lines were burning themselves into a cushion of black polyethylene.

Maybe it was only the illusion that something was about to happen.

Bodo Pfeifer (and isn't that a great name?) has distinguished himself in the relatively dangerous handling of a torrid, geranium-red hue, and is mostly preoccupied with the placement, within austere and geometric compositions, of shapes which are unstated but subtly evident.

The collective impression this exhibition extends is one of beautiful and dazzling giftwrappings that greet the eye on Christmas morning: the effect is initially vibrant and exciting; but in this case, the gifts of experience contained in the wrappings are fleeting and insubstantial in comparison to much of the art still being created by the stubborn few who have resisted this purist posture.

Tommy Couldn't Wait For the Ship's Concert

Tommy Steele who stars as Arthur Kipps, the draper's assistant who inherits a fortune in Half a Sixpence — the film showing now at the Odeon — has a personal history that reads like a success fable.

He was born in 1936, the son of poor parents and his home was a London slum.

Tommy left school at the legal age of 15 and, against his parents' wishes, took a job on a Cunard liner sailing between London and New York.

During four-and-a-half years at sea he worked as assistant steward and assistant gym instructor. But the highlight of every voyage for him was the ship's concert when he did a comedy act based on an impersonation of the English comic star, Norman Wisdom.

COFFEE HOUSE

Having several weeks to spare between voyages in the summer of 1956, he took his guitar into a Soho coffee house for teenagers one day. He was playing and singing when a free-lance photographer took some pictures of him.

The pictures sold so easily to a Sunday paper that the photographer realized the young man had something special and next day offered to manage him and get him a recording test.

The out-of-work seaman went to a composer friend who was a small-time job printer. His name was Lionel Bart and he was to become the composer of the fabulously successful English musical, Oliver.

Between them they wrote a rock 'n' roll tune called Rock with the Caveman.

The record was cut and in the shops within 10 days and beginning to sell.

Then in October, Steele made his first appearance on television, lip-singing his own recording, and within a few days the record was in the top ten and he was on his way to stardom.

FAME SPREAD

In the following 10 years his fame spread to theatres and nightclubs all over the world. TV specials were devoted to him and he toured successfully in Scandinavia, South Africa and Australia.

His film debut in The Tommy Steele Story came in 1957 and other films he has made include Disney's The Happiest Millionaire.

In 1960 he accepted the role of Tony Lumpkin in She Stoops to Conquer at the Old Vic Theatre and immediately established himself as a talented stage actor.

When a West End musical was specially commissioned for him, the choice fell on an adaptation of H. G. Wells' famous novel Kipps.

It opened to rave reviews in March, 1963 under the title Half a Sixpence, and has since become a Broadway hit as well, with Steele in the lead.

In the Paramount Technicolor screen version, he has famed British stage actor Cyril Ritchard and Julia Foster as his co-stars.

Diamond In the Groove

THE HOFFNUNG INTERPLANETARY MUSIC FESTIVAL. Angel 35800.

By BERYL PROUDMAN

For some time after its arrival on the shelves of the Victoria Public Library, this record had a line-up of reservations so long that its borrowing period was limited to four days instead of the usual seven.

Such a measure betokens a very popular record.

Though the performance is rich in brilliantly funny material, the degree of pleasure a particular listener derives from it depends on the amount of musical knowledge at his command.

* * *

Rudimentary knowledge of the subject will bring enjoyment of a hilarious record, fuller understanding will bring enjoyment of a hilarious record, fuller understanding will bring the added delight of recognition of finer points.

Many people, I am sure, will share my frustration and infuriated envy of the audience which roars with laughter at some visual effect the mere listener can only imagine.

In the Dolmetsch Ensemble's Sugar Plum commercials, is there a Morris Dancer or just sound effects, and what does a waltzed Dance of the Seven Veils look like?

Let's Fake an Opera, its very title taking a poke at Britten, is a marvellous, sophisticated parlor-game in which each player identifies as many bits of other operas and ballets as he can and the highest scorer wins.

* * *

To show just how crazy the patchwork is, I quote the sleeve-jacket outline;

"The scene is the outside of a cigarette factory in old Nuremberg. Beckmesser woos Azucena, the sex-kitten of the tobacco girls. Otello rides in with his swan which is chased away by William Tell, Max, and other huntsmen.

"Otello retiring meets Salome who, on the removal of her veils, proves to be Fidelio and sings herself into a stupor. . . ."

The Bourn-Vita variations written in the styles of several contrasted composers is a never-failing fun-maker; and instruments are cleverly tortured into strange effects in "Waltz for Restricted Orchestra" and the "Famous Tay Whale," in which loud-proclaimed doggerel is superbly illustrated by strange sound-effects.

* * *

If a sudden stop in the Victoria Day parade kaleidoscoped all the bands into one block, the sound would be something like that of the military bands in The United Nations cacophony. The broad nobilmente tune in this excerpt is a perfect smile-raising take-off.

Of all the amusing selections, Punkt Contrapunkt, is one that suffers least on a recording for it is a dialogue lecture.

This is one of the gooniest quasi-lectures ever foisted on a trusting audience.

The production is not always clear, several choruses are recorded as though the singers were turned away and many words would be lost if not printed in the accompanying pamphlet.

Autoaraph Party

Just received, Once Upon an Island (Ambassador Books, $6.50), the story of a couple who bought a dream island and struggled to develop it as a small summer resort.

This is the true account of Mr. and Mrs. David Conover's life on Wallace Island (near Salt Spring Island).

The book is bound to be of interest to local readers and will be reviewed in these columns shortly. Meanwhile, the Conovers will be launching their book locally with an autographing party at Ivy's Bookstore, 1507 Wilmot Place, on Saturday, June 15, between 4 and 7 p.m.

Youth-at-the-Reins In Hollywood Spells Money-in-the-Bank

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — He starts his day with 50 pushups and a swim. While on the telephone he swings an iron dumbbell, hoping to make his left arm as husky as his tennis-muscled right.

Richard Zanuck, 33, like his flashier father Darryl, the company president, has been good for 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. as its $150,000-a-year vice-president in charge of production.

From a fringe loss in 1962, company fortunes have risen to an aftertaxes net of $15,400,000 in 1967.

Fox has budgeted $115,000,000 this year on 23 films including the whopper Hello, Dolly!

TREND TO YOUTH

Dick is one of three under-40 studio moguls in a Hollywood trend to youth-at-the reins. Warner Bros. Seven Arts has Kenneth Hyman, 39, a Columbia-educated ex-marine who became a millionaire with his independent production of The Dirty Dozen.

Darryl Zanuck, now 65, saved the company in 1935 by merging his hustling young 20th Century company with the tottering Fox empire. Darryl was the colorful production boss until 1956, when he quit and formed his own company.

By 1962 Fox was on the verge of bankruptcy. London fog, unfinished scripts, indecision and Elizabeth Taylor's illness had sent the cost of Cleopatra to a record $37,000,000.

Darryl returned as company president and sent his son to Hollywood as his "production representative" and, since 1964, production chief.

Dick admits he has made mistakes . . . that only about one-third of his films have been profitable . . . that turning down the script of Bonnie and Clyde was "a catastrophic mistake" . . . that Morituri was a complete bomb at the box office.

But box office successes including the current Valley of the Dolls and Planet of the Apes have made Fox for two years the biggest moneymaker from theatre admissions, he says.

The claim must be accepted largely on faith, for studios' profit reports cover varying fiscal years and customarily don't break down returns from films, TV, recording and music publishing.

Is he Darryl's heir apparent as company president?

"I don't know," he said. "I'm not looking at that. I'm very happy doing what I'm doing. I don't like New York and the Wall Street atmosphere a president has to get involved in. I would think many, many long hours if that ever came."

Sin City Called Bottomless Pit

By AL FORREST

SAN FRANCISCO—The show business stars of this town bear names like Thoroughly Naked Millie and Little Orphan Fannie.

Nude arms, legs and etc. have pushed legitimate entertainment out of most of the nightclubs. As a fleshpot mecca, San Francisco is a bottomless pit.

It's not very uplifting and could not be called entertaining . . . except perhaps as a curiosity piece.

However, with no other stars in the neighborhood to interview, I grabbed myself a ringside seat and asked Fannie if, while she was wiggling, she would mind baring her soul for The Press.

DINAH SHORE
. . . see bottom

"I've always wanted to be on the stage," she said, "but this isn't exactly what I had in mind.

"I've got a daughter to support and you can't earn $160 a week working in a store."

She paused to sneeze dramatically.

"Getting a cold," she said. "My (beep) it's drafty in here.

"I wasn't going to do this, you know? I got the offers because of my figure but I said no. But then I had two operations. After that I said okay. I need the money. It's alright I guess."

Some political group should pay her expenses to make a campaign tour of Canada. What an argument for medicare! It could have kept a nice girl from going wrong.

•

TRAVELLING — The action is always some place else.

At each bus stop on the way to San Francisco, passengers would run to the juke box and play the song that goes: "If you're going to San Francisco, be sure to wear a flower in your hair."

As soon as I got to S.F. the first thing I heard was a juke box playing: "I'm going to Houston, Houston, Houston."

•

BERKELEY — I wandered the campus here looking for the places where The Graduate was filmed. But all in vain.

Members of the Canadian colony put me straight. The Berkeley scenes had really been shot on the rival campus, UCLA, when the film crew was banned from the Berkeley campus.

The Canadian expatriates soothed my disappointment by taking me to a genuine Berkeley sit-in, folk song fest and all those other things that this university does so vigorously.

•

When you get close to them they speak.

Mostly they say: "Got any spare change?"

One young man commented: "Wow, man, most of these people have just arrived. I'm about ready to join the real action down at Big Sur."

There's a shopping mall with trees and grass and this is the home of the NBC network studios that Rowan and Martin inhabit.

•

SAN JOSE — A former Canadian who's sharing a house with a Negro family of five surprised me by announcing he had married a Chinese girl and now had two young children.

When he phoned home he said: "Hi, Kim Yee, guess who's coming to dinner."

•

WATTS —On a bus into Los Angeles, I was talking up the need for understanding and tolerance between the races when a young Negro man tagged me as "another smart (beep) Canadian."

If I meant what I said, he told me, I shouldn't have any qualms about walking through his home area hand-in-hand with his colored girlfriend.

I said: "Uh . . . all . . . right . . ."

The way I had seen it we would be there before sundown and there'd only be a few people around and it wouldn't take very long.

By the time we got there the sun was down and the streets are getting busy.

"We may draw a bit of a crowd," the girl said.

She was right.

As soon as I took her hand the heads shot around and a crowd gathered and a policeman jumped out of a patrol car and there was a lot going on.

I don't want to say anything more about that stroll except I'm glad I did it. But I would never do it again.

•

ELSEWHERE — Meanwhile, back in Canada, the big TV news of the coming week is the great political debate at 6 p.m. Sunday.

There's also a Peanuts re-run — You're In Love, Charlie Brown at 7 p.m. tonight (Channel 6).

And if you prefer your entertainment live and in living color, singer Dinah Shore is appearing at the Pacific Coliseum in Vancouver's Exhibition Park all next week.

Blast Kills Five

BURLINGTON, Iowa (AP) — An explosion at the Iowa army ammunition depot—the third in less than a year—killed five men Friday.

The blast was in a warehouse where land mines were stored.

HIT A MAN when he's down 'cause then he ain't so likely to hit you back is the motto of The Kid (Gini Lefever) in Roar of the Greasepaint, playing at McPherson Playhouse all next week. The Kid stays on the winning side and it isn't Cocky's (Harry Hill)—the born loser, the perpetual wrong guesser in the Anthony Newley musical staged by Robert Price and Associates. # Workshop Expanded, More Students Apply

By AUDREY JOHNSON

There has been no cutting down of the amount made available by the University of Victoria for summer theatre activity as has been suggested, says Theatre Workshop co-ordinator Martin Jenkins.

"Two much more exciting factors are responsible for our being somewhat short of bursary funds to help talented secondary school students attend the theatre workshop.

"To begin with we have expanded the workshop this year to take in speech and movement specialists. And in addition we have had many more students apply for the course than before."

Mr. Jenkins, British actor-director who is spending his second summer at Uvic as workshop co-ordinator, will make his own contribution to the cause when he appears as one half of a two-man show at McPherson Playhouse, June 18.

GREAT KNIGHTS

This will be a benefit performance for summer theatre workshop bursaries.

Title of the show is Great Knights of the Theatre.

Mr. Jenkins has appeared in this show all over Britain and the United States and it has been recorded by BBC.

It takes the form of a light-hearted insight into the attitudes, manners, behavior, humor, dedication and the sufferings and joys of a number of great English actors, from Burbage to Paul Scofield.

Excerpts from Shakespeare's King Lear, the heroic actor's most taxing role, are used to illustrate and as a sort of linking theme.

As his partner in the unusual entertainment, Mr. Martin will have the popular actor, Canadian-Scots, Harry Hill.

32 GET HELP

Forty-six students have been accepted and 32 have received bursaries. Twelve of the latter are Victoria and Island youngsters. The rest are coming from Vernon, Prince Rupert, Creston, Kamloops, Oliver, Mission City, Burnaby, Richmond and Vancouver.

Mr. Jenkins served as adjudicator of the British Columbia High School Festival in Vancouver last month and while on the mainland interviewed prospective students.

"I auditioned about 250 to 300 kids," he comments. "An awful lot of them very promising. I finally whittled them down to about 74 and then chose 35 from that group."

On July 2 the 46 young people chosen will begin six weeks of work in acting and technical areas of theatre training that will culminate the week of Aug. 12 with Mr. Jenkins' production of Romeo and Juliet in the Phoenix Theatre.

FINE PERFORMANCE

Victoria students registered and who have been given bursaries, are Ian Pool, Peter McKinnon, Darien Hunt, Cameron More, Paul Croy and Janet Purcell in the acting division, and Val Dizon in technical.

From up-Island points will come Mary Ogg, Ray Hunt and Russell Getz, Duncan, and Simon Gibson and Ron Hamilton of Campbell River.

BALLET STARTS WHIRL

Vancouver's glamorous fine arts whirl, the 11th annual festival, gets under way this year with seven performances by Robert Joffrey's New York City Centre Ballet.

This will be a sort of overture to the full festival activity which evolves after a week's pause.

From July 15 to 23, Johann Strauss' romantic Rosalinda complete with visiting stars and glossy mountings, will be at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

At the same time, there will be a single performance in the Pacific Coliseum, July 16, of London's Royal Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Antal Donati.

Dates have not been finally settled yet, but there is also a good chance that concurrently at the Playhouse there will be a pre-Broadway world premiere of a new musical entitled And Now—Noel Coward. In any event this is a certainty as a highlight of the festival.

SWEET CHARITY

A fabulous hit musical from Broadway, Sweet Charity, will occupy the QE Theatre from July 29 to Aug. 10.

Among other features will be a promenade concert starring Anna Moffo, the Philippine dance company, Bayanihan, and the Parennin Quartet.

Heralding the Vancouver Festival for the first time, will be a pocket travelling show which is to give more than 100 free performances all over the mainland, on the ferries in Victoria and on the Island.

This mobile troupe of four has been directed by Canadian choreographer-director Walter Burgess.

Mr. Burgess is a former Victorian and so is one member of the cast — John Sparks. The other three are Marjorie Le Strange, Shirley Milner and Walter himself.

Music consists of a pot pourri of songs from Rosalinda, Noel Coward and Sweet Charity as well as some others.

The group will give its free performances in parks and public squares wherever arrangements can be made.

Pearson to Attend

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister Lester Pearson will represent Prime Minister Trudeau and the Canadian government at the funeral in New York Saturday of Senator Robert Kennedy.

WILL SAIL TO HAWAII

DIVORCES CAN BE FRIENDLY

By VERNON SCOTT

You might throw in beautiful, poised, ladylike, stylish and feminine. But elegant says it all.

Beneath this cool English beauty's facade beats the heart of an extraordinarily exciting woman who speaks out on any number of subjects.

One is the much maligned Hollywood "friendly" divorce or separation. She is involved in just such a situation now and, unlike the cynics elsewhere, knows such a disaster can indeed be friendly.

Recently the actress was legally separated from her husband, famed Hollywood attorney Greg Bautzer.

"We decided on legal separation instead of divorce for the sake of our 8-year-old son, Mark," Dana explained. "It removes the stigma of being the child of a divorced family which sometimes works great hardship on children.

"And it's true that Greg and I are friendly. He spends many evenings at the house playing with Mark who understands that his mother and father live in different houses because his father travels a great deal and that we prefer it that way.

HOLIDAY TOGETHER

"Last summer all three of us went to Hawaii for a two-week vacation.

"It's just as easy for us to live apart as together. American men work too hard, especially lawyers."

English-born Dana insists that friendly divorces or legal separations may be obtained among civilized individuals anywhere. The implication is that Hollywood can be a considerably civilized place.

With a legal separation Dana and her ex-spouse find themselves as free as if they were divorced. They date other persons and go about their own affairs with no recriminations whatever.

BETTER TIMES AHEAD FOR ARTS COUNCIL

Attractive and spacious headquarters and the appointment of an experienced executive secretary have given the Community Arts Council of Greater Victoria needed scope and opportunity for service.

The council also has received money through the Centennial Cultural Aid Fund of the provincial government. Members will observe and hear these things, and something of immediate and future plans when they attend the Arts Council annual meeting on Monday at 8 p.m.

Everybody's Hearing The 'Sound of Youth'

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Listen to three or more teen-agers doing their thing with musical instruments or their combined voice boxes and you have "the Now Sound."

This year's "Now" sounds different from last year's. And next year's noiseprint from the "Now Sound" probably will have its own distinguishing marks.

A search for the "Now Sound" of 1968 has been launched by Sound of Youth—an organization put together by a band of people over 30 in hopes of helping those under 30.

In more than 100 cities in 14 states groups of teen-agers have been producing their sounds in an attempt to make it to "Sound of Youth" finals in Miami in September.

Deborah Cotton, secretary of the sound-searching organization, said it is possible the winners will be America's answer to the Beatles.

Winners of the finals will receive a recording contract from Kapp Records and a week's engagement at Cheetahs in Chicago, New York and Los Angeles.

With a start like that, wouldn't it be beautiful if they caught on like the Beatles? It would at least cause joy in high places in Washington when thousands of Europe's teen-agers gobbled up records from an American company.

But there's more than the possibility of helping the trade gap. Mrs. Cotton said the idea is to offer a showcase for the

"No contestant has used a washboard yet," Mrs. Cotton said, "but they're not ruled out. Neither is the operatic soloist but such a performer might not rate on judging points. Opera isn't the 'Now' sound of youth this year."

Groups are judged on presence, creativity and sound produced.

So far, a good many groups have been performing original music.

Mrs. Cotton said folk music especially is soothing. Very little of what she had heard jangles the nerves.

Participants in regional competitions frequently dress as imaginatively as they perform. The clothes run the gamut from hippie to mod.

Mrs. Cotton finds especially interesting the names of some groups. Samples: The Primations, The Late Paul Bearers, The Town Cryers, The What For, Pete and The Carrot Eaters, The Days.

Their Poetry Comes Through

By HOLLIE I. WEST
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — They deny being spokesmen for their generation. Everybody is on his own, they contend.

But the young all over the country identify in some way with singers Simon and Garfunkel. The feelings they express of alienation, loneliness and disenchantment with the complacency and apathy in our world come through strongly. They are so vivid because the singers understate feelings in songs that are as much poetry as they are music.

Paul Simon does all the writing—music and lyrics—for the pair. Art Garfunkel arranges and edits.

Simon's lyrics are gems. They are tight and controlled, in many cases subtle and never overwrought. Nothing is ever meaninglessly repeated.

Remember when Steve Allen used to spoof the lyrics of popular songs in the 1950s when he read them aloud to blaring music? He couldn't do that to Simon's lyrics.

The pair became known to a larger extent of the general public, of course, for the songs they did in "The Graduate." In the "Bookends" album, they sing an expanded version of "Mrs. Robinson," the perky song about the mother (Anne Bancroft) in the film.

In the four years they have worked together, the two have continuously developed their craft. In the beginning, Simon was heavily influenced by early Bob Dylan. Simon and Garfunkel paid homage to Dylan by doing one of his tunes on their first album. They have since become their own men.

Simon has written about 35 songs—not many, but enough of quality to give a 26-year-old a headstart on the current American musical scene.

IT'S MY VIEW . . .

By Ernie Fedoruk

Take Me Out to The Ball Game . . .

When the bosses don't catch me and I can slip away early, Saturday is baseball day around the homestead. But, honestly, the noon-hour action on the teevee hasn't always been worth the risk of unemployment.

There have been two stirring exceptions to one man's interest in baseball. Washington's Frank Howard rippled the first with his great, six-game slugging stretch in mid-May.

DON DRYSDALE

Talk of statistics and figures usually leaves me cold, but the recent baseball facts — because of their magnitude — stand out as exceptions to the rule.

A survey by The Sporting News shows that pitty-pat baseball has overtaken the game. Through to May 23, the National League recorded 24 shutouts last season. In the same stretch this time around, there have been 43. The comparable figures for the American league were 29-41.

The pitching domination seems obvious.

When the six-foot-seven Howard came along to blast 10 homers in six consecutive games, fan applause was overdue.

Drysdale hasn't helped the run-production figures, but the applause continued because of greatness of his feat. The record of five straight shutouts set by Doc White of Chicago White Sox was unapproachable for 64 years. Drysdale has made it six in a row.

●

Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak is judged, by many, to be the classic feat among batters. Drysdale's shutout string, therefore, must be considered as the ultimate pitching performance — until something better comes along.

Drysdale now challenges the 56-inning shutout record of the great Walter Johnson. The Los Angeles ace is 2 1-3 innings away from Johnson's mark, is ticketed to start tonight.

Drysdale's record, to my way of thinking, is a greater example of pitching excellence than any no-hitter or even Don Larsen's perfect game in a World Series. Chap named Bo Belinsky checked in with a no-hitter a few years back. You'll find him in Hawaii today, not the majors.

The point is, you can scrape through with some talent and a great degree of luck in one game and emerge with a no-hitter. To ring up six straight shutouts, you still need a degree of luck but talent will do more for you.

Drysdale's record is 7-3. The first victory also came as the result of a shutout.

Ironically, Drysdale's 7-3 record doesn't earn him a rating among the first 10 National League pitchers.

On the basis of salary, Drysdale is No. 1. He deserves the honor because, all of a sudden, he has made shutout baseball seem exciting.

Football Updates Bylaws on Players

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Football League gave its players what amounted to a bill of rights Friday after CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur rewrote the constitution.

Gaudaur's revisions included giving Canadian players the same right to a five-day trial as imports and protection for players cut by CFL clubs and placed on waivers.

Last season, a number of Canadians lost a chance to play because only American players were allowed a trial after the start of the regular season.

Toronto Argonauts ran into problems when they wanted to look at offensive end Manley Sarnowsky, a native of Edmonton.

ARGOS FORGET HIM

Sarnowsky, who had an impressive U.S. college record, was cut by Montreal Alouettes last year. But the Argos were told they would have to release another Canadian to make room for Sarnowsky, so Toronto forgot about him.

"It was working a hardship against non-imports," Gauduer said Friday, the final day of CFL meeting here.

"It wasn't originally intended to, but some of our bylaws were 10 or 15 years old."

A player may also be signed as a free agent after Oct. 15 and be eligible to play even if he played for another league club earlier in the season. Last season, a CFL player couldn't play if he signed after that date.

The general managers adopted the 1969 schedule with 16 games in the Western Football Conference and 14 in the Eastern Football Conference, but two games could be added to the EFC timetable in 1970.

The East now plays five interlocking games and three against each of the other clubs in its conference. Western teams play four interlocking games plus three against each of the other WFC clubs.

MAY LOSE A GAME

An additional two games in the East may mean that the four EFC clubs will have to give up one pre-season game in its season-ticket package to make room for the extra home date.

The general managers rejected 20 tentative schedules before the dates were settled.

A series of minor rule changes also were approved, including a timing rule for the last three minutes of any half. Following a time-out on an incomplete pass or a ball being carried out of bounds, the clock now will not start until the ball is snapped for the next play.

BILLY WASN'T BUBBLING

Shooting one-under-par 71 might be heaven for weekend golfers but it wasn't that way for Billy Casper in Speedway Open tournament at Indianapolis, where Casper's one-under tally Friday left him three strokes from leader Bruce Crampton. Casper isn't exactly bubbling with joy as he thinks of bad shot on previous hole and waits turn on 16th tee. Offering consolation is caddy Palmer Milliken, who cost Casper two strokes Thursday by raking sand trap before Billy played shot from hazard. Lou Graham, Mike Hill and Sam Snead share the second spot. (See story on Page 13.)

Wakeham Trails By Four Strokes

WOODBRIDGE, Ont. (CP)—Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., could be headed for trouble today if Gary Cowan of Kitchener follows through with his threat.

"I'm going to try harder, but I just can't seem to keep my mind on the game," Cowan said Friday after shooting a five-under-par 66 to move within one stroke of Norman going into the final round of the 54-hole Ontario open golf championship.

Norman scored a one-under 70 Friday to maintain the lead with an eight-under-par 134 after 36 holes of the medal-play championship.

"If you don't believe me, how about the shot I played out of casual water without asking for a free drop" the long-ball-hitting Cowan said. "That wasn't a natural hazard and I didn't have to play it. It was half buried in the water. But I never even thought to ask about it."

Cowan said he has been having difficulty thinking his way around the course.

A loss to Cowan would still leave Norman with the $2,000 first-place prize money since Cowan, as an amateur, is not eligible for a money prize.

CHAMPION LAGS

Jerry Magee of Toronto was two strokes back of Norman going into today's final round in the search for some of the $12,000 in prize money. Bill Wakeham, the defending champion from Victoria, was four strokes back at 138 and tied with Alvie Thompson of Toronto for fourth place.

A total of 68 golfers, including 27 amateurs, qualified for today's final round with a score of 150 or less.

The combined scores of the amateurs during the first two rounds of this tournament and the Ontario amateur championship in July count towards the selection of the four-man Willingdon Cup team.

Victoria's Vaughan Trapp checked in with his second straight 73 for a 146 total but the big surprise from the west was the blow-up of Vancouver's Bob Cox. He blew to an 80 after a first-round 68.

McVie, Bionda Helpful

PORTLAND (CP) — Two hockey players made a successful return to lacrosse Friday night as Portland Adanacs trimmed New Westminster Salmonbellies, 13-7, in a national Lacrosse Association game before 1,750 fans.

Returning were Jack Bionda, who scored one goal and set up five others and Tom McVie who had one goal and an assist.

Other big guns were Jack Barclay who netted four goals on four shots and Mike Gates, who scored two.

Bionda, 33, Western Canada's second highest scorer in lacrosse history, appeared out of shape but his wizardry with the stick got him five assists — three on the odd-man play.

Bionda, who played professional hockey with Boston Bruins and Portland Buckaroos, had been off the lacrosse floor for two years. McVie, who played hockey last season for Phoenix Roadrunners, saw his first lacrosse action since 1963.

Bates Behaving Like New-Bourne

Tom Bourne is giving Bates' Senior Men's Softball League entry a new lease on life.

Taking over as playing-manager last week, Bourne has injected new spirit into a team comprised mainly of recent graduates from the city's junior men's league.

Hustle was the reason they cut down second-place Colony Inn, 4-2, at Central Park on Friday. In a game at Nanaimo, league-leading O'Keefes clipped Tally-Ho 5-1.

First baseman Allie Hine, second baseman Doug Gregory, catcher Paul Morrison and shortstop Brain Pearce all came up with fielding gems that helped retire the first nine Colony batters. Hustle made all the plays possible.

The hustle also extended on the bases, carrying Bates to an early 4-0 lead as Colony suffered its second setback of the season.

Bonallack British Champion

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Michael Bonallack of England, defeated Joe Carr of Ireland, 7 and 6, today and won the British Amateur golf title.

Bonallack went to lunch with a 6-up advantage and was 7-up after 23 holes. Then he lost the 24th and 27th holes before taking the 28th. The next two holes were halved.

Both Bonallack and Carr now have won the title three times. Bob Dickson of Tulsa, member of the visiting U.S. Walker Cup team, won the title a year ago.

Route-Going Hurlers Pace Dodger Climb

Broken-Bat Single in Ninth Ruined No-Hit Bid by Odom

By Associated Press

Sandy Koufax might have retired but it's business as usual on the mound for Los Angeles Dodgers.

Picked by many to finish in the second division in the National League, the Dodgers have moved only 2½ games from the lead with the kind of pitching that won them pennants in 1963, 1965 and 1966.

Claude Osteen showed the way Friday night, hurling a four-hitter that downed Philadelphia Phillies 2-0 for Los Angeles' fifth consecutive complete game triumph.

Osteen started the spree with a seven-hit 2-0 shutout. Don Drysdale followed with his record-breaking sixth shutout in a row, a three-hitter; Bill Singer added a six-hit, 2-1 decision in 10 innings, and Don Sutton turned in another six-hitter for a 4-2 victory.

That's 26 hits and three runs in the last 46 innings by Dodgers' pitching.

New York Mets, who also have shown fine pitching although with less success, rode the combined four-hit efforts of Nolan Ryan and Cal Koonce to a 4-0 decision over San Francisco Giants.

In other National League night games, Steve Blass handcuffed Houston Astros on five hits in Pittsburgh Pirates' 5-0 victory and Jim Maloney put an end to league-leading St. Louis Cardinals' nine-game winning streak with a 4-2 triumph.

Atlanta Braves outhit Chicago Cubs 7-6 in the only day game.

The good-pitch, little-hit Dodgers managed two runs off Chris Short, 3-7, on Bob Bailey's triple and Ken Boyer's sacrifice fly in the fourth inning and Ted Savage's run-scoring double in the seventh. It was enough for Osteen to end a personal string of nine losses in a row to the Phillies and raise his record to 5-7.

Bucs End Five-Game Losing Streak

Ryan, who pitched out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the seventh inning, led 1-0 on Cleon Jones' run-scoring single in the eighth before he walked the first man in the bottom of the inning and Koonce relieved.

Ryan, 5-4, allowed only four hits in besting Ray Sadecki, 6-7, who was knocked out in the ninth when Ron Swoboda and Tommie Agee homered. Sadecki thus was shut out for the fourth straight time as the Mets won their fourth game in a row.

Blass, 2-2, turned in his first complete game since June 30, 1967, and it ended Pittsburgh's five-game losing streak, pulling the Pirates out of last place and dropping Houston in.

Roberto Clemente, who set up one run with a single, homered for two more and Gary Kolb added another homer for the Pirates.

In American League activity John Odom of Oakland Athletics gave up a first-inning run Friday night on three walks and a sacrifice fly and then yielded a broken-bat single with two out in the ninth.

Oakland also won the second game of the twi-night double-header 6-0 behind the four-hit pitching of Jim Nash.

In other American League action, Minnesota Twins split with Washington Senators, winning 5-3 and losing 3-2 in 10 innings; New York Yankees topped California Angels 4-1 and then lost 8-4, Boston Red Sox edged Chicago White Sox 3-2 and Detroit Tigers nipped Cleveland Indians 5-4.

"If he hadn't broken the bat, maybe the ball would have carried a little further and would have been caught," Odom said of Dave Johnson's ninth-inning single.

However, the ball dropped into right field and kept Odom from becoming the second Oakland pitcher to hurl a no-hitter this year. Jim (Catfish) Hunter pitched a perfect game May 8.

Wayne Was Placing Long-Distance Calls

King's Hotel pitcher Merle Schwandt was dialing the wrong number when he was trying to fool Wayne MacDonald Friday night at Heywood Avenue Park.

MacDonald picked on a pair of Schwandt pitches for two-run home runs and that was what B.C. Telephone needed to get home with a 5-4 victory in a Stuffy McGinnis Senior Men's Softball League battle.

Ron Griffis and Mike Cox pounded successive homers for Kings in the first inning but MacDonald came along with his first two-run swat in the bottom half of the first and got back on the long-distance wire for his other circuit swat in the fifth.

VANCOUVER'S FRANCHISE BID . . .

NHL May Set Up Expansion Committee

. . . ON MONDAY'S AGENDA

MONTREAL (CP) — Because of an application for an NHL franchise by Vancouver, National Hockey League governors may be called on to appoint a committee to review and study further expansion at their annual meeting starting Monday.

Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League made the application.

Senator Hartland Molson, chairman of the board of Canadiens, said Thursday that Montreal president David Molson will make a formal request to have the league set up an expansion committee, but this was no guarantee the future expansion would include Vancouver.

He said Canadiens "would like to see Vancouver in after this season."

Campbell said earlier that one of Vancouver's problems is that only the addition of two clubs would make further expansion feasible.

Meanwhile, the NHL's infant West Division, still suffering growing pains in its search for player personnel, will have a decided advantage in next Wednesday's intra-league draft.

In their initial appearance at the draft tables last June, the six new clubs—Oakland Seals, Minnesota North Stars, Pittsburgh Penguins, Los Angeles Kings, Philadelphia Flyers and St. Louis Blues—decided the order of selection by drawing lots.

However, with one season of play under their belts, the expansion teams will find that system of choice changed.

Oakland will start the proceedings, because the Seals finished last in the West last season. Next comes Detroit Red Wings, who occupied a similar position in the East Division.

This year each club is allowed to protect 14 players, plus two goaltenders, and no club can lose more than three players. The draft price is $30,000 for each player picked.

EVENTS AT STADIUM . . . . . . TRIALS FOR B.C. TEAM

Jerome to Run in Island Meet

An abundance of talent has been assured for the Vancouver Island track and field championships, scheduled by the Victoria YM-YWCA at Centennial Stadium on June 22.

The event has been sanctioned as official trials to name the B.C. team to compete in the Canadian Olympic trials and thus can be expected to attract the cream of the provincial track and field crop along with several American athletes.

The trials have been approved by the B.C. Track and Field Association and sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

If there were any doubts that top stars would skip the meet they were erased this week with the entry of Harry Jerome, the famed Vancouver sprinter who shares a world record and has collected medals at Olympic and Pan-American Games.

Possibility of new national records is causing some excitement in local track circles since the new rubberized asphalt track at the stadium is rated as one of the fastest in the country.

Meet organizers plan to run events for young athletes during the day and stage the open championships in the evening and are expecting about 500 contestants. No tickets will be sold in advance.

Island clubs which have not yet submitted entries are asked to call "Y" physical director Art Burgess for information and entry forms before entries close Monday.

JUNIOR REBELS FORM OWN 'CANADIAN' BODY

EDMONTON (CP)—The Western Canada Junior hockey league announced today that it has changed its name to the Western Canada Hockey League, that it will be affiliated with a newly-formed Canadian Hockey Association, and that Calgary businessman Ron Butlin has been named president of both organizations.

The name change was made because the league's age limits no longer fit the junior classification of the Canadian Amateur Hockey association.

At its annual meeting in Windsor, the CAHA lowered the junior age limit to 19 years. The western circuit then announced it was raising its age limit to 21.

The WCHL so far is the only league affiliated with the new Canadian Hockey Association, but Butlin said the "door was open for other organizations to travel this path if necessary."

Crampton Retains Speedway's Lead

TIME OUT By JEFF KEATE

"Either it's my typing again, or his horse won in the sixth at Belmont."

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Bruce Crampton of Australia took a two-stroke lead into today's third round in the $100,000 Speedway Open golf tournament.

Crampton fired a 70 Friday for a six-under-par 138.

Tied for second with 140 were Sam Snead, Mike Hill and Lou Graham, who used only 27 putts Friday in firing a record-tying six-under-par 66. Graham, 30, matching the mark set by John Schlee and Chi Chi Rodriguez in 1966, had six birdies, all from within 15 feet.

Billy Casper, leading PGA money-winner, shot a 71 for a 141 total.

SNEAD CHALLENGES

Snead, 56, missed a chance for a third straight birdie and sole possession of second place when he took three putts on the last hole to finish with 69.

Frank Beard, who won the $20,000 first prize in the Speedway Open last year, stayed in contention with 71 and a 141 total.

Ken Fulton added a 77 to his first-round 71 for a 148 total, one stroke better than Wilf Homenuik who added a 75 to a 74. Both are from Winnipeg.

FOR SHIRLEY NAYSMITH

Fifth Triumph Copied Fourth

Shirley Naysmith's fifth triumph in the Victoria City women's golf championship final proved to be a carbon copy of the fourth.

As was the case last year, Mrs. Naysmith defeated the same rival (Marg Todd) over the same distance (18 holes) in virtually the same amount of "time." The margin Friday was 3 and 2, and a year ago Mrs. Naysmith won 3 and 1.

And in losing Friday's playoff at Gorge Vale, Mrs. Todd experienced some of the same putting difficulties that plagued her in the 1967 final at Royal Colwood.

The balky putter put an end to the match on the par-three 16th. Mrs. Todd, 11-time city champion from Oak Bay, hit the green with her tee shot and appeared in excellent position to stretch the match after Mrs. Naysmith hooked her drive.

The defending champion, a Gorge Vale member, chipped on and two-putted for a bogey. Mrs. Todd three-putted, however, and the half put an end to her hopes of a comeback.

THREE UP AFTER NINE

"My game just wasn't sharp," said Mrs. Todd, "and it had to be much better to beat Shirley."

Mrs. Naysmith, scoring an approximate medal score of two-over-par 41, was three up at the turn. She birdied the 10th to go four up.

Mrs. Todd won the 11th with a par five and they halved the next five holes.

Vicettes to Tangle With Mainland Club

Victoria Molsons Vicettes of the Lower-Island Senior Women's Softball League will get a taste of tough inter-city competition Sunday.

They are scheduled to tangle with O'Keefes of the Vancouver senior loop at 1:30 and 6:30 p.m. in two games at Heywood Avenue Park.

Four Marks Topped By School Athletes

Four records went tumbling at Centennial Stadium Friday as elementary school athletes hustled through the eighth annual all-schools track meet.

Three of the former records were set in 1964 and the fourth, the boys' open 440-yard relay, which was toppled as the Doncaster squad covered the distance in 1:15.3, was established in 1966.

Doncaster also took the 4x85 relay for girls 11 and under in the record time of 1:10.1 and Lake Hill established a new mark in the same event for boys with a clocking of 1:09.8.

Competing the record breaking were girls from Willows, who dashed through the 4x85-yard, under-12 relay in 1:08.9.

HITTING HAPPY NOTE

Coming off the "high road," a 4,000-mile stretch from Calgary to Halifax, Detroit's Scott Harvey won cross-Canada rally Friday. He was greeted by bagpiper Shirley Keenan. (CP Wirephoto)

Detroit Driver Kept Promise With Rally Win

HALIFAX (CP)—Scott Harvey is a man of his word—and he proved it Friday by winning the cross-Canada rally—something he said he would do a week ago.

Harvey and his navigator Ralph Beckman, both of Detroit, lost only eight points on the six-day grind which started last Saturday night in Clgary.

Their point total was the second lowest in the eight-year history of the event—Richard Doyen and Clay Gibbs of Milwaukee, Wis., lost no points in 1963.

Harvey said before the start he would win this year's rally or drop out because of pushing his car too fast.

"I'm tired of winning class, but never over-all. This year I will go all out from the start and win, or finish back in the pack," he said.

He pushed hard and lost eight points on the first leg, from Calgary to Regina. All were lost in speed sections on roads which are closed to the public. He lost no points on the regular sections which make up most of the course.

WINNER FEELS GREAT

After learning that he had finished first, Harvey, sipping champagne on the ramp set up outside the Hotel Nova Scotian, said: "I've waited a long time for this and I feel great."

He has been in seven other cross-Canada rallies sponsored by Shell Canada Ltd., but never finished higher than seventh, which he did last year.

His blue 1967 Barracuda was in top shape when he arrived after he had done a little work on it during the rally.

RUNNERS-UP ONTARIANS

Paul MacLennan of Toronto and Jim Peters of Burlington, Ont., finished second, taking 16 points—all on the first day. Their Rambler American was the first car to leave each overnight stop, but while they didn't lose any further points, Harvey was too much for them.

Tom Jones of Port Arthur and John Medwell of Toronto in another Rambler American were third with 18 points, also all lost on the first day.

The Rambler American team, sponsored by American Motors (Canada) Ltd., won the manufacturers award with 85 points. The third member of the team was Hunter Floyd of Edmonton and Lutz Ecker of Toronto with 51 points and fifth place over-all.

The husband-and-wife team of Haydn and Sylvia Gozzard of London, Ont., in a Renault, won the private entry category while finishing sixth over-all.

Many rally competitors described this year's event as the easiest cross-Canada they had ever been on, and the 55 finishers from 69 starters bears out their opinion. This was the largest percentage of finishers in the rally's history.

Final results:

1. Scott Harvey, Dearborn Heights, Mich., Ralph Beckman, Ann Arbor, Mich., Barracuda—8 points.
2. Paul MacLennan, King, Ont., Jim Peters, Burlington, Ont. Rambler—16.
3. Tom Jones, Port Arthur, Ont., John Medwell, Toronto, Ont. Rambler—18.
4. Ewold Leonard Van Bergen, South Africa, Paul Manson, Toronto. Datsun—25.
5. Hunter Floyd, St. Albert, Alta., Lutz Ecker, Don Mills, Ont. Rambler—51.
6. Haydn Gozzard, London, Ont., Sylvia Gozzard, London, Ont. Renault—59.
7. Tony Fall, Berkshire, England, Denis Johnson, Mt. Royal, Que. BMC 1800—64.
8. James Potts, London, Ont., Ernest Wilson, Ingersoll, Ont. Renault—66.
9. Fritz Hochreuter, Agincourt, Ont., Ron Carney, Huntsville, Ont. Porsche—75.
10. John Smith, Kingston, Ont., John Caiio, Ottawa. Toyota—97.

CITY AMATEUR GOLF

Bouncy Challenge For Closing Round

It will be a different game at Uplands Golf Club Sunday when Al MacLeod attempts to protect a four-stroke lead through the final round of the Victoria amateur championship tournament.

Following a day of steady rain, turf was fairly soft and greens were holding well last Sunday as MacLeod stepped out in front of the pack by firing rounds of 76 and 70 in the first 36 holes of the 54-hole tourney.

Wind and sun have done their work this week and Uplands will probably present a baked and bouncy challenge for the 24 survivors in the championship test and another 24 who are also in the running for handicap honors.

Burned brown in some spots, becoming dusty in a few places, the usually lush layout appears destined to place greater importance than usual on club selection and ability to stroke accurate pitch-and-run shots.

This could be right up MacLeod's alley. The Duncan schoolteacher, who swings out of the Gorge Vale club, is one of the Island's best at getting chip shots within one-putt range and if Al can figure the bounces he should be hard to catch.

CHIPPING SLICKER

Conditions could also suit Vic Painter, four strokes off MacLeod's pace at 150. City champion in 1949, the 50-year-old Colwood veteran has long been noted as a slicker with a chipper and a master of trouble shots.

Another stroke behind are a pair of young Uplands swingers, Martin Smith and Roger Bishop, while Doug Munro, Mike Gray, Noel Pumfrey and Don Norbury are another blow back and will probably need a furious finish to grab the title.

MacLeod will start his final round at 9:30 a.m. and Painter will step to the first tee seven minutes later.

CHAMPIONSHIP

9:30 a.m.—A. MacLeod, R. Bishop, M. Gray.

Chicago's Kowalik A Mighty Mustang

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Kowalik is just a little guy at 5-foot-7 and 145 pounds, but he sure scoots around on a soccer field.

The 23-year-old forward from Poland kicked two goals to pace Chicago Mustangs to a 3-2 victory over Dallas Tornado in the North American Soccer League Friday night.

Kowalik's first goal came at 10:50 of the second half and gave the Mustangs a 2-1 lead on their home pitch. Five minutes later he scored what proved to be the winning goal.

The victory extended Chicago's unbeaten streak to eight games and also put the Mustangs in first place in the Lakes Division.

St. Louis Stars gained a 2-2 tie with Los Angeles Wolves on Casey Frankiwicz's goal with 2½ minutes left to play at Busch Stadium.

The other scheduled NASL game, Washington at Atlanta, was postponed because of rain. It was rescheduled for tonight.

Young Pro Plans to Prove It At New Saanich Riding School

By DON VIPOND

She should have. Horses have been a big part of her life since she first climbed into a saddle at the tender age of four.

Now "Bo", as everyone calls her, is a top-flight competition rider with three years of professional riding in the United States just behind her.

Add to this history a place called Sunnylane Farm and you have a dream coming true.

For on this trim six-acre farm in Central Saanich Bo is opening a riding and boarding school of her own. She is instructor, exercise girl, stable hand, dishwasher and lawnmower operator.

Cow Palace Queen

In 1964 she went to Palo Alto, Calif., where Col. Alex Sysin conducts a riding course for Stanford University. She rode for his stable and while there was named Queen of the Cow Palace in San Francisco.

Bo started her riding career at the Cedar Hill Cross Road stable of Don Carley. Later she rode at the stable of C. C. Carpenter at Prospect Lake and it was he who arranged the job in California for her.

It was her last year in California Bo regards as the most valuable. There she was taught by Jimmie Williams at the Flintridge Riding Club in Pasadena. She describes him as the best instructor in the top stable on the west coast.

A Long Time

What does it take to become a top show rider?

"A long time," says Bo with a smile. She considers she's been lucky in the jobs she's had. In California she was riding 15 horses a day. It was practice, practice, with a show every weekend.

Show horses include hunters, jumpers and equitation horses. Hunters are judged on conformation. With jumpers, only the height they can clear counts, not their style.

Equitation horses, in general terms, are children's horses. Bo can handle them all.

In riding, and particularly jumping, control and timing are the vital ingredients, says Bo.

"When you look at a fence you have to be able to judge where your horse is going to take off.

"And there has to be a great deal of training on the flat so you can control the horse. If you can't control it there, there's no way you can control it jumping."

It's ironic, she notes, that while horses are generally recognized as not very bright ("even stupider than dogs"), many of them manage to buffalo their owners.

At the same time it's important to remember in training that when things go wrong "it's never the horse's fault."

Don't Blame Him

"They usually try and please you. If something goes wrong, you have to stop and figure what it is you're doing that's not right."

Riders and horses reflect different temperaments, says Bo, and needless to say they don't always match.

On Sunnylane Farm there is a well-kept barn housing 11 stalls. Bo's operation includes boarding and within a month she estimates the barn will be filled or nearly so.

It costs $70 a month to board a horse. Training will cost $50.

Long Road to Go

What would it cost, in time and money, to buy a horse and train a rider?

"For a well-trained show horse you can trust your child with, $1,000," says Bo. It would be a lot more in a place like California. She adds there are good horses available locally for $500.

"But it's a long road to go when you have to teach the horse and child together."

If the youngster has never ridden, he or she should be riding "quite well" in a year and ready for shows in two years.

Get to Like It

Bo notes it will take about a year, with practice daily, to get a jumper on his way.

He was nine years old when she bought him last year, a hunter and jumper but nobody could make him jump.

She started showing him four months later and he finished the year reserve champion green jumper in B.C., paying her way to university along the way.

All the chores of home go with the new business and while horses come first, you can't let the grass grow under your feet.

NINE-ACRE oil island Alfa, about 500 yards off the Long Beach shore. There are three other similar islands, each 10 acres in area. The four drilling rigs are soundproofed and camouflaged to blend with the highrise buildings on shore. Beautification work, to be completed by Sept. 14, includes the planting of palm trees and ground cover around the perimiters of the islands.

Beautiful High-Rises Don't Have Single Tenant

By ALAN WHITE

Many unaware visitors to Long Beach, California, have asked how they can rent an apartment in one of the high-rise buildings on four artificial islands in the harbor.

But it can't be done. The apartment buildings — attractively sculptured in panels and balconies — are merely screens to hide the oil drilling rigs towering out of the port.

If it weren't for the fact that the city sits on the largest oilfield in the United States, Long Beach would only be halfway to being a paradise on California's south coast.

★ ★ ★

Now developers have had no trouble in taking up great chunks of the Pacific as their city grows.

They were able to take a mirage — with a few million dollars — and make it into an oasis on the sea.

The reserves of oil, estimated at one billion barrels, are expected to last about 35 years. In that time the city will have netted $250,000,000 as its share in oil rights. (Another $1 billion will go to the state of California).

And that is where it is going, according to officials from Long Beach: on extension and improvement of the already modern port facilities, beach centres, parks and plazas.

★ ★ ★

Part of the money is going into refitting the Queen Mary as a tourist facility and the rest of it will go down on the foreshore.

Plans for the seafront will create many new tourist attractions for those who want to enjoy the city and its average yearly temperature of 63 degrees.

As they say in the city, "Living in Long Beach gives you the feeling of being on a continuous vacation. As you drive to and from your job, and when you step outside for lunch, you're in the warmth of bright sunlight . . . open water and a beautiful skyline."

All that money—by statute — must be spent on the waterfront, on any development below the high water line.

The oil islands will eventually be the base for 700 wells drilled behind the concrete screens. The screens themselves are bathed in soft lights at night and will soon have artificial waterfalls pouring down their shoreward sides.

★ ★ ★

Palms (300 per island) are presently being planted and shrubbery and ground cover arranged beneath them. When the oil is depleted — in an estimated 35 years — the islands will be converted to offshore recreation areas.

The oil is brought ashore unseen, through underground pipelines to a shore holding station. From there it passes through pipes to outlying refineries.

Initial projects with the money coming from these wells have included the Pierpoint Landing sportfishing complex. Built for $1.5 million, the centre has attracted many of the yearly 4,000,000 visitors to Long Beach.

Much of the oil revenues are going into the deepsea port itself. Called "tomorrow's port today," it is the fire-safest port in the U.S., with all piers built of steel and concrete.

One of the few super-tanker facilities in the world, Long Beach Port can handle vessels of over 100,000 tons dead weight with shoreside inloading facilities.

It is the largest iron ore exporting terminal and the third largest steel importing terminal in the nation; the largest dry cargo and bulk tallow port on the U.S. west coast; and the largest banana and solar salt import terminal on the coast.

The port authority is spending about $12,000,000 yearly on a $150 million expansion program to double its present 45 deep water berths — all this to keep pace with the growing needs of the American southwest.

The entire port development, except for connections to loading and warehousing facilities on shore, has been built into the ocean. This way the city has been able to build a major port without touching the eight miles of clear beach along the waterfront.

Another developing industry connected with the sea is the oceanographic field. Many of the major companies investigating the sea and designing equipment for oceanology are centred in Long Beach.

The growing waterfront complex works to their advantage — and to that of the tourist and resident.

Many of the results of the new science will be open to study and viewing in the maritime museum being built in the Queen Mary for the city's Pier J.

Research ships ply in and out of the port to one of the most ideal areas for water and bottom conditions at nearby Catalina Island.

★ ★ ★

The city has organized an office of Marine Development to promote the area as an oceanographic centre, and has been designated the regional headquarters of the southern California Marine Technolgy Centre.

The oil money hasn't paid for these developments — but it has opened up the harbor as a natural location for them.

Through the port and oil development, the city has become a thriving centre of construction, design, engineering, research and recreation. Your vacation there will offer entertainment ranging from fishing and sailing to ship watching and touring the port.

And if you become tired of the many attractions in and around the city, you can sit in one of the waterfront parks and just look. There is a great deal to look at, in any direction.

THEY SCOFFED AT AGENT IN 1922

55 YEARS IN THE BUSINESS

Who on Earth Would Travel by Air?

By GEORGE REAMSBOTTOM

"Travel by land, sea and air."

By AIR! Travel agents in 1922 scoffed loudly at the daring slogan of Universal Travel Bureau in Victoria.

After all, airplanes were fragile, still suspect of being supernatural and anyway could carry only a few passengers.

The man who coined the startling phrase was Eric F. Marshall, a brash young travel agent whose career in the travel business at Victoria parallels the phenomenal 20th century development of the industry.

After 55 years in the business, Marshall retired last week as vice-president and general manager of George Paulin Travel Service, 1006 Government Street, where he has worked since 1946.

Marshall first arrived in Victoria in 1912 at the age of 15. He made the journey alone. "I wanted to come as far west as I could," he says.

Marshall had one gold sovereign ($5) to his name and it was six hungry months before he secured a position with the CPR-owned British Columbia Steamship Service as ticket agent.

The trip from London to Victoria had cost him the impressive sum of $30. After familiarizing himself with the travel business in B.C., Marshall served with the Canadian forces in the First World War.

Following the war he returned to work for the CPR but he shortly left for White Horse where he was a cashier for the White Pass and Yukon Railway. During those rugged, colorful days of the north he also worked as a purser on Yukon river boats which were the famed sternwheelers.

ERIC MARSHALL

Marshall returned in 1920 to become city freight and passenger agent for the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railway. He also joined the United Travel Bureau in 1922.

He remembers well the first non-military airmail run in North America and probably the world. Pioneer pilot Eddie Hubbard would fly in a Boeing flying boat from Seattle to Victoria to rendezvous with the CPR's Empress Line ships.

Hubbard would fly the mail carried on those ships back to Seattle and several times he had a passenger named Marshall. "I usually sat on an upside down keg of nails behind Hubbard who seldom flew higher than 20-30 feet over the water to conserve gas," says Marshall.

Marshall had a daily 15-minute radio show in the early thirties called, "Let's Go Places with Eric Marshall." It was broadcast on CFCT radio.

By then he had become a central figure in the transoceanic transportation business here booking transatlantic and transpacific passage in addition to world cruises and other tours. Marshall booked passage for one large group of Victorians who attended the coronation of King George VI in 1937.

The same year he became the first agent here for an American airline, United Airlines. "At this time," Marshall says, "Trans Canada Airlines were operating in Canada but seldom carried passengers, just freight and mail."

Atlantic and Pacific flights began in the late thirties and the few passengers who made these glamorous trips were nicknamed "shortsnorters." The ritual between passengers was to pass a dollar bill around for the other passengers to sign.

That dollar bill could be pulled out any time and displayed as proof of membership in the exclusive club of transoceanic air travellers.

While the main means of travel between the two world wars was rail and ship, the bulk of passengers were immigrants travelling to a new home and the wealthy who had the money and time to travel.

●

Immigrants usually had little money and travel accommodation for them was very humble, Marshall remembers. "In most ships immigrants slept in lower decks such as the stern of the ship which was steerage accommodation. Often, they slept on straw thrown on the floor."

Air travel developed with a great flare after the Second World War.

Travel was no longer largely restricted to the wealthy and the peak immigration period had ended. A new group of travellers emerged with the advent of air travel.

"Today," says Marshall, "many working people still wouldn't be able to travel without air travel because of the time factor." It still takes 22 days to travel to London and back by rail and ship. But it takes only eight hours and 55 minutes one way by air.

The transportation business has changed greatly in the last 20 years. Railways prefer freight to passenger business. Shipping Lines stress almost entirely cruise business. The world is shrinking quickly because of air travel.

"But air fares have dropped and ship fares increased," says Marshall, "because of charter and group rates in air travel and the top service ship passengers expect on their leisurely cruises."

Marshall arranged the first air charter out of Victoria in 1968. It was for the B.C. Government Employees Association.

●

"Tourism became recognized as a major industry after the Second World War," says Marshall. And the competition between nations for tourists has been stepped up sharply.

"Communist nations," he says, "are still difficult to get in and out of but are gradually easing travel restrictions led by Yugoslavia which is now making a major effort to attract tourists." A group of Russians toured Canada last year promoting travel to the Soviet Union."

Tourism has led to an easier movement of people between countries. The obtaining of a visa in most countries is only a formality.

Marshall believes international tourism is a great boon to world peace. "through the intimate experience of travelling, meeting people and finding out what they're really like, the way they live, travel has done much towards increasing international friendship," he says.

Looking ahead, Marshall sees problems in air travel because of the super jetliners which will carry 200 to 300 passengers. Passengers are often held up one or two hours now by customs, immigration officers and the wait for baggage, but, he says, what will happen when two or three of the super jetliners arrive at an airport within minutes of one another.

When Canada finally recognizes the Republic of China, Marshall foresees the development of Vancouver into one of the world's great ports because of the tremendous potential of commerce between China and Canada.

Marshall has retired to an attractive, new beachside bungalow at Sidney with his wife and doesn't plan on travelling too much after numerous past visits to Great Britain and Europe.

Air France Boosts Atlantic Crossings

Air France will operate 83 flights a week between North America and Europe during the peak summer months for a weekly total of 166 transatlantic crossings, an increase of 24 per cent over the comparable 1967 period, it has been announced by Michel Pairault, manager for Canada.

From Montreal, the French airline will have 12 non-stop flights a week, all with excellent connections in Paris to all of Europe, Africa and the Middle East.

In all, Air France will have 1,700 flights each week between the largest cities of Europe.

The greatest increase for any of the eight Air France gateways in North America will be from New York with 45 transatlantic flights each week, nine more than last summer. Seven of the 42 weekly flights from New York to Paris continue to Lyons, and seven to Nice.

Nice will also be served by three additional weekly flights from New York via Lisbon, a new service inaugurated April 3. These flights will continue from Nice to Athens and Tel Aviv two days weekly and to Athens and Beirut once weekly.

Cave Country

PRAGUE — For its size, Czechoslovakia ranks among the richest countries in the world in karst phenomena, karst being a geological term used to describe an area of limestone formations characterized by ground sinks, ravines and underground streams.

More than 2,000 caves and caverns have been discovered to date in the country's limestone and dolomite formations, some of them quite extensive systems.

Of these, about 25 have been opened to the public and have been attracting increasing numbers of tourists, the annual average today runing about 1½ million more than a decade ago.

Nearest to Prague is the Koneprusy Cave, with 1¼ miles of accessible and illuminated corridors where the skeleton on an early Stone Age man was discovered. In addition to icicles and other natural ornamentation, this cave offers an historical attraction. It served as a mint in the Middle Ages and coins struck of there then are now popular souvenirs.

Near Brno, the capital of Czechoslovakia's central province, Moravia, are several limestone formations which together form the Moravian Karst, the largest and most highly developed in the western part of the country. An unusually rich and elaborate series centres around the Macocha precipice, which is 450 feet deep.

WELFARE CASH USED TO BET AT RACETRACK

WINNIPEG (CP) — The city welfare department, acting on a report that a $62 handout was used as a race track gambling stake, is switching from cash to vouchers in its assistance to transients.

The new policy was announced Thursday night at a meeting of city council's public health and welfare committee. Welfare director R. H. C. Hooper said vouchers will be used from now on in view of the "apparent flagrant misuse" of the $62.

The assistance was given to a man and a woman who arrived from Victoria May 25 and approached the city for financial help. The man said that he won $427 at the races with the stake but that the money was stolen from him. Police found he was destitute by questioning him.

Trinidadians Go to Tobago

Although Trinidad and Tobago have for many years been advertised as islands offering a holiday of contrasts —which they do—it is to Tobago that Trinidadians go when they want to get away from it all. It is largely in Tobago that vacationing Canadians spend their time when they head for these islands on the far south Caribbean.

Trinidad is much the bigger of the two islands which together became an independent nation of the British Commonwealth in 1962; its nearly 2,000 square miles dwarf the 116 square miles of Tobago.

The larger island was part of the South American mainland millions of years ago and even today it is only 10 miles "offshore." Its flora, fauna and terrain are typically South American.

GUN CONTROL FARCE

PRESIDENT ANNOYED

Bill Passed in Crude Haste 'Shabby Memorial' to Kennedy

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The almost vulgar haste with which the U.S. Congress swept through a crime control bill, apparently as a post-mortem tribute to Senator Robert F. Kennedy, resulted in a shabby memorial indeed.

It included wide powers to wiretapping and a stiff rebuke to the U.S. Supreme Court, which Kennedy had opposed, and a gun-control measure only a caricature of the legislation he supported.

Among those outraged by the bill approved Thursday, was the New York Times which editorially lambasted the House of Representatives for the "tone and quality" of the two-day debate. It suggested members were more interested in putting themselves on record in favor of law and order than they were in analysing the "grave defects" of the bill.

President Johnson, said by an aide to be extremely annoyed over Congress' failure to act, worked until 2 a.m. Thursday on a letter saying "the nation cries out to the conscience of the Congress." The letter was greeted in the House by silence.

The question is why, in the face of public clamor for controls, the United States remains the only developed nation without firm gun laws.

There is no clear answer, only theories.

For a start, it is a powerful, profitable industry with annual sales running about 2,000,000 guns. The anti-control lobby is led by the National Rifle Association which has $10,000,000 in assets, operates from a $3,500,000 headquarters here and has 850,000 members.

Its fondest boast is that within 72 hours it can produce more than 500,000 letters, postcards and telegrams to members of Congress on any gun-bill issue.

Its influence is unquestioned.

In the clamor for controls that followed the assassination of President John Kennedy, more than 20 bills appeared in Congress to restrict the interstate shipment of firearms obtained through mail-order channels, but the NRA announced that its efforts resulted in rejection or shelving of all of them.

Since then, of 500 bills pertaining to firearms, hunting and conservation introduced in the 50 state legislatures, none actively opposed by the NRA was adopted except for a significant bill in New Jersey in 1966.

Pollster George Gallup, in a rousing speech Thursday charging that Congress is "out of touch with public opinion on many great issues," said that polls conducted off and on since 1938 have consistently indicated about 85 per cent of Americans favor gun controls.

In one of those peculiarities of the U.S. legislative system that confound outsiders, and many Americans, the present legislation started out as a simple gun-control bill but soon became adorned "like a Christmas tree" with unrelated amendments, as one legislator put it.

Johnson, faced with accepting the whole bundle if he wants even this limited gun control, could veto it and urge Congress to try again.

The bill bans interstate mail-order sales of handguns—revolvers and pistols—and permits over-the-counter sales in states to residents of that state over the age of 21. It does not even require registration of guns.

Despite the pleas of Senator Edward Kennedy, long guns—rifles and shotguns—were excluded from the mail-order ban.

McCarthy White House Bid Now More Pertinent

WASHINGTON (AP) — A close adviser to Senator Eugene J. McCarthy says Robert F. Kennedy's violent death is leading the Minnesotan to conclude his own White House bid has become a more pertinent, urgent undertaking.

Kennedy and McCarthy, despite tough primary battles, agreed on a great many issues, most notably in their opposition to the administration's Vietnam war policy.

Kennedy's assassination means that for the first time since the New Hampshire primary last March, the issue will be clearly drawn between McCarthy and the administration in the form of Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, his only rival for the Democratic presidential nomination.

McCarthy and Humphrey met for about 30 minutes Friday to discuss the best way to conduct the campaign.

McCarthy's adviser, asking not to be named, said the senator is going throuth "a very difficult personal period" because of Kennedy's death.

But, he added, McCarthy will begin campaigning again next week.

"I am convinced he is inexorably reaching the conclusion this really makes it a more pertinent and more urgent undertaking. I think that, given a little passage of time, this tragedy leaves the issues pretty clear."

McCarthy is expected to combine a renewed challenge to the administration with a warning of a Democratic election disaster in November unless the party switches course by nominating him.

McCarthy's main effort from now on will be to convince delegates to the August Democratic national convention of his belief that national opinion is running against the administration and its course in Vietnam.

Another McCarthy adviser conceded the senator faces an uphill fight against Humphrey but added: "There is a good chance that by August the opinion in the country is going to be such that delegates are going to re-examine their earlier preferences."

The McCarthy camp discounts claims of delegate strength by the Humphrey forces, which showed the vice-president close to a first-ballot victory even before last Tuesday's California primary.

Stalemated Vietnam War Talks May Accelerate

By SIDNEY WEILAND

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Shifts in the election scene after Senator Robert F. Kennedy's death might conceivably induce North Vietnam to speed up the stalemated Vietnam talks in Paris, diplomats said today.

The speculation results from a belief in some official quarters that Hanoi has been holding back in serious negotiations until Communist leaders could make an intelligent guess on the outcome of the presidential election.

By this reasoning, progress in Paris is unlikely until North Vietnam decides whether to try for a compromise agreement while President Johnson is still in office, or whether to take a chance with the new president.

The Paris talks, which followed a decision by Johnson March 31 to suspend bombing over three-quarters of North Vietnamese territory, have been almost wholly limited to propaganda exchanges since they started four weeks ago.

Many officials believed the talks would drag on for weeks or months, with little hope of serious bargaining on basic issues.

The most they expected was that North Vietnam would demonstrate military restraint in the ground war in Vietnam. This would give Johnson the proof of reciprocity which he says he needs before stopping all bombing raids.

These officials assumed the Paris meetings would then either adjourn or continue indecisively until after the Democratic and Republican conventions in August.

BASE OF ANALYSIS

The analysis was based on the assumption that Hanoi regarded Kennedy as a winner, and also as a man likely to make concessions in a Vietnam political settlement.

With Kennedy's assassination and the uncertainties now surrounding the outcome of the election, Hanoi might decide to move more quickly into meaningful negotiations, diplomatic observers said.

They might argue that Johnson wants to go down in history as a peacemaker, and that consequently he would make concessions.

LIKE DRAFT CALL

Succession Plan Stalks Kennedies

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The late President John F. Kennedy with wry objectivity once explained his family's involvement in political power this way:

"It was like being drafted. My father wanted his oldest son in politics. 'Wanted' isn't the right word. He demanded it."

Joseph Kennedy Sr., patriarch of the most spectacular and star-crossed family dynasty in American political history, is 80 now, speechless, semi-paralysed and reduced by tragedy to his fourth and last "eldest" son.

He is Edward (Teddy) Moore Kennedy, 36, Democratic senator from Massachusetts. In the tradition of "the king is dead, long live the king," the assassination of Senator Robert Kennedy has turned naturally to speculation on Edward's future.

It could be one to reckon with. He has yet to demonstrate the toughness of mind and spirit that many associate with his two dead brothers.

John Kennedy, unconsciously anticipating his own assassination in Dallas in 1963, described the tightly-knit family's theory of political succession once in connection with the wartime air death over Britain of Joe Jr., the oldest son who had been destined to take the leading political role.

WOULD FILL GAP

"Just as I went into politics because Joe died, if anything happened to me tomorrow, my brother Bobby would run for my seat in the Senate. And if Bobby died, Teddy would take over for him."

Brother John gave both younger brothers their first big political promotions—Robert to attorney-general and Edward to fill out his unexpired term as Massachusetts senator at age 30 in 1962.

Robert was running to succeed John when he was slain himself in Los Angeles, but as an underdog against Vice-President Hubert Humphrey.

Fate may have something better in store for the new crown prince, perhaps not this year. But Edward, said to be the most effective vote-getter in his state, faces re-election in 1970 and then there is the next presidential election in 1972 when he will be 40.

Edward has all the family trademarks and a few more.

Tax Feared if Churches Don't Join

By ED GOULD

Rev. Raymond Horsefield of Salt Spring Island Anglican parish predicts that unless the four churches on the island amalgamate they'll be paying taxes on their property witnin three years' time.

"The non-churchgoing majority will not much longer carry the load for us who insist on keeping unnecessary churches tax-free," he says.

Mr. Horsfield wants to sell, move or otherwise dispose of at least one of Salt Springs', four Anglican churches, three of them located withing four miles of each other.

But, as revealed at a recent meeting, the Islanders refuse to amalgamate. They continue to cling to the tiny, wooden structures with small, dwindling congregations.

There is more than a generation gap here. At St. George's, Ganges, the average age of the choir is between 55 and 70, and the organist is 84.

NEARLY DIED

In his rector's report, Mr. Horsefield pointed out:

"Our Sunday schools practically died during 1967. I have an idea that we have spent our time, our thoughts and our money on church buildings — which is much easier than dealing with souls."

Mr. Horsefield's concern for wasteful use of facilities and unnecessary luxury probably dates back to his earlier life when as a young minister he worked for many years on poverty-stricken reserves on the Prairies.

It began the first week in May, 1926 — a week right out of Solomon Grundy: he received his Bachelor of Arts, his teacher's certificate, was ordained, got married and left for his first mission!

LUMBER BOAT

The newlyweds travelled up the North Saskatchewan River on a lumber boat with nothing to protect them from the sparks and blackflies but a shelter they made from screen doors.

An old Indian met them with a canoe at Cumberland House. He gave them a wedding present, a 10-day-old pup.

Along the way the party discovered they had only three matches so the last one was used to light a coal oil lamp which had to be carried by hand.

NO TEXTBOOKS

The residents greeted the young couple by peeking through the unchinked logs of their new home "to see how white people went to bed."

The church school had newsprint scribblers and pencils but no textbooks or blackboard. Desks were backless benches. Lessons were to be given in English even though the students spoke nothing but Cree.

The Horsefields were only at Pelican Narrows for five months then were sent to Grand Rapids at the north end of Lake Winnipeg where they worked with the Indians for five years.

LOST CHILD

At the height of the coldest time of the year Mrs. Horsefield had to be rushed by dogsled to The Pas because of complications during pregnancy.

After spending two nights out in 40 below weather, she lost the child and almost her own life as well. The couple later adopted a daughter, their only child.

Mr. Horsefield spend 10 years at an Indian parish at The Pas and 15 years at Flin Flon where his knowledge of Cree came in handy at the Catholic hospital where he taught Indians proper bed pan procedure.

He also gave pre-natal training to Indian women. The women giggled so much he found it necessary to deliver the information "as a disembodied voice sitting around the corner."

In 1956, church authorities decided to set up a college at Dauphin, Man., to train Indian men as lay missionaries and Mr. Horsefield was given the task. To facilitate learning he wrote a dictionary of the Bible in Cree.

After serving parishes at Pilot Mound, Man., and Lake Cowichan, Mr. Horsefield came to "balmy" Salt Spring Island three and one-half years ago.

REV. Raymond Horsefield seldom wears a collar except at service. "It makes people nervous," he says. "They're more inclined to speak when I'm without it."
(Ed Gould photo)

Vatican Radio Playing Pop Music

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Vatican radio is going pop.

Once the bulwark of Bach cantatas and solemn liturgical songs, the Vatican's voice has quietly decided to devote a half-hour every week to pop music.

This includes anything from an Italian-style protest song with a foot-stamping beat to a sombre lyric entitled God is Dead.

The program, directed by a lively Italian priest, has already gone on the air several times in experimental versions under the title Spiritual Values in the Songs of Today.

Now the 30-minute show will be a regular fixture of the radio programs. Its new title: Tell Me How You Sing.

"The aim of the program is to put Vatican radio within the reality of everyday life," explains Rev. Francesco Pellegrino, the program director.

"Beat music — on which we suspend artistic judgment for the moment — represents nevertheless an ideal bridge toward the young who understand, also through songs, the values of the spirit."

Beat music is nothing new in the Roman Catholic Church. A 1963 decree on liturgy in the ecumenical council paved the way for possible use of pop rhythms and jazz for sacred services.

Beat music during the services has been used as an experiment all over the world, including recently in Rome, where a combo called The Ultimates regularly holds musical masses at the Institute of Saint Alessio.

Sunday Soccer Favored But Not at Worship Time

DUNCAN — Because their present Jubilee Street premises are overcrowded, Duncan's Glad Tidings Tabernacle congregation has purchased a new building site.

New church and hall facilities are to be built on a half-acre lot at the intersection of Trunk Road and Campbell Street — and the Pentecostal Church will be a close neighbor of the Christian Reformed Church.

Local pastor, Rev. Gordon Falconer, said this week, "We can't really reach the whole community from our present church, and the Sunday school attendance has reached the saturation point."

Mr. Falconer said, "We want to do as much of the work as we can by voluntary labor and we have already had offers of help from members of the congregations at Lake Cowichan and North Douglas in Victoria."

He said the idea is to complete the basement first and provide a small chapel for worship and Sunday school accommodation.

The present Jubilee Street building is on the market, and Mr. Falconer said, "We will rent temporary accommodation if need be while the new building is under way."

Cowichan Ministerial Association is all in favor of juvenile soccer on Sundays — but not at times conflicting with morning services.

At a meeting this week the clergy decided to invite the president of Duncan and District Juvenile Soccer League to meet them to discuss possible re-scheduling of games next winter.

Two United Church members of the ministerial association, Rev. Ross Connal of Lake Cowichan and Rev. Clinton Swallow of Mill Bay were appointed to bring in a report and recommendation regarding proposed showing of Sunday evening films.

It's an attempt to interest the local drive-in theatre management in showing commercial films which have a religious lesson — such as the Bible, the Ten Commandments and A Man Called Peter.

Mr. Swallow said, "There's a feeling we're not reaching the young people and the idea we have in mind would have to be worked out in conjunction with the show manager."

He said, "The local church would have to be prepared to underwrite the cost of showing the films."

Dr. McMillan is one of Canada's leading churchmen and will give a graphic picture of the world challenge in 1968!

PREACHING at First Church of the Nazarene Sunday and for the next five weeks will be Rev. Jack Loughton, veteran Western Canadian pastor. He was pastor of the Victoria church from 1961 to 1964. The minister, Rev. William Bahan, is attending a church convention at Kansas City.

Members Accused Of 'Hiding'

TORONTO (CP) — The Presbyterian Church in Canada last year donated more than $2,000,000 for home and overseas church work and support of church colleges, a general assembly meeting was told.

A. H. Dancey of Oshawa, head of the church's board of stewardship, said donations totalled $2,035,502, an all-time high and a 3.7 per cent increase over 1966.

However, he said, annual expenditures now are $2,300,000. The assembly approved an objective of $2,500,000 for this year.

In his report Mr. Dancey accused some Presbyterians of "hiding in the weeds" and not supporting the church in its mission.

"The problem is not financial poverty, but a myopia about possessions and their use," the report said.

A survey showed the Presbytery of Saskatoon had the highest average donation to the budget to $14.10 a member, compared with a national average of $10.28.

At another session a special committee on vocation and resources was told the church's difficulty in recruiting ministers reflects a "general malaise" toward Christian vocations.

Rev. Charles C. Cochrane of Montreal said the church must restore a sense of Christian vocation to all members if recruiting and other problems are to be solved.

ALSO FIXES FROWNS, SNEERS AND LEERS

He Makes Spare Parts for Smiles

By JOHN SLINGER

"Have a seat," he said, "I'll be with you in a minute."

For years Stan Dunstan has been standing over workbenches fixing smiles, frowns, sneers, leers.

He makes false teeth.

Amid grinding machines, boiling contraptions, pointed tools and potential grins in rows on the shelves of his workshop in a downtown dental clinic, he said he started his trade 60 years ago today.

WANTS TO WORK

Did he plan to stop, now he was 75?

"Well," his eyes sparkling behind glasses splattered with a bit of white plaster, "you want to work on while you can."

It started innocently enough, this working affair that is continuing in what most people Stan Dunstan's age consider Canada's retirement paradise.

In fact it all started in Sunday school. His Sunday school teacher in Truro, centre of England's Cornwall district, married a dentist. She asked if the youth would come, as an apprentice, to work with them.

There he spent five years learning the ups and downs of the bridges, plates and conglomerations of odd gadgetry people fill their heads with when their own gear wears out.

The pieces he made in those days "are all museum pieces now," he chuckles.

"But don't you wish," observed a dentist who dropped into the lab to see what was cooking, "you could be in as good shape as he is when you're his age?"

Since that long-ago dental lab in England, Stan Dunstan has seen a bit of Europe, as a soldier in the First World War, and worked in Calgary and Fernie and Duncan in B.C. before coming down here.

"Victoria's okay. Besides, when you get on, you dont' want the cold," he said, nodding in the general direction of the rest of Canada.

He and his wife Lilian, a hometown girl who came to Canada to marry him in Calgary in 1923, have a suite at 490 Vancouver.

WAX IMPRESSION

While he spoke, Mr. Dunstan puttered about the lab, demonstrating how the mould a dentist takes of a person's mouth is used to make a wax impression which is used to make a new set of acrylic gums.

He pulled out trays holding hundreds of porcelain teeth, tinted to conform to the color changes real teeth go through as they age.

"There," he said, puckishly pointing a finger at a set of teeth for a person of 65, "is the kind I would use."

A onetime soccer player, Mr. Dunstan admits "them days are gone forever." He said nowadays, if his work is cleaned up, he is inclined to sneak off home before the five o'clock close.

And what sort of plans do he and his wife have?

He glanced around the lab at the lathes and putty and plaster then looked off out the window into the bright afternoon: "Well, we got the privilege of making up our own mind when we want to."

Malaise Affects Whole Church Chairman Says

TORONTO (CP) — The general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was told Friday that the government has shown more interest in social issues affecting the church than the church itself.

Rev. W. L. Young of Hamilton, chairman of the church's board of evangelism and social action, said the government is increasing its request to the board for briefs on social issues and giving serious consideration to submissions.

"The fact," Mr. Young said, "that the church seemed less concerned with these issues makes one wonder: Where is the evangelical fervor so evident in the New Testament, where is the dynamic social concern expressed in the Gospels and developed in the Epistles?

CHURCH MALAISE

"We hear references being made to the malaise of the ministry, but surely if there is any malaise it is of the whole church."

Mr. Young presented his board's annual report to the 240 commissioners attending the seven-day assembly, highest court in the church.

The report proposes that efforts should be made to involve more laymen in the church's social role and in preaching evangelism. It makes 14 specific recommendations which will be debated by commissioners Monday.

BOARD PROPOSALS

Included in the board's proposals are:

An amendment to the Criminal Code that would no longer make attempted suicide an offence.

A suggestion that religious faith, or lack of professed faith, or the fact that a husband or wife may be of different faiths should not be a barrier to couples applying for adoption.

A recommendation that a parent giving up her child should be permitted to state she has no preference to the religion in which the child is to be brought up.

A revised statement of the church's position on marriage, divorce and re-marriage that reminds Christians that marriage is a life-long commitment.

The assembly later approved an affiliation between the Presbyterian College in Montreal and faculty of divinity at McGill University.

Project for Retarded Expanded by Jean Vanier

TROSLY-BREUIL, France (CP) — Jean Vanier, son of the late Governor-General of Canada, reports plans for expansion of projects which are attracting wide attention — the homes he operates here for the mentally retarded.

Now an established figure in this ancient town of northern France, Vanier has said that "civilization hasn't learned to accept its mentally retarded."

* * *

He operated homes caring for about 50 retarded boys and young men from families and institutions where their treatment had been unsatisfactory.

His expansion plans are made known in a newsletter which reports purchase of a house to accommodate girls over 18 years of age.

VANIER
. . . aid from Canada

"I do not, however, think that the house will start functioning before next year," said Vanier, a former officer in Canada's navy.

"The total cost of renovation will be met by a generous gift that we have received from Canada and with the help of various gifts and loans."

* * *

The Vanier project also has bought a house near Corbillac in southwestern France as a summer centre for those in regular residence at Trosly-Breuil.

A new home for mentally retarded men was being built by the undertaking at Trosly-Breuil, financed by a grant from Paris municipal authorities. Occupancy is planned this year.

Vanier said that Trinity College of the University of Toronto presented the project with a chalice for its chapel. This was in memory of Governor-General Georges Vanier who died last year.

* * *

The younger Vanier also lived in a monastery, taught university students and was a theologian before taking up his present work.

He spent February on a speaking tour of Canada and says that "the response I received moved me profoundly."

NEW CANADIANS ARE WELCOMED

"Welcome to the Canadian family," Monsignor Michael O'Connell, rector of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral, told 28 new Canadian citizens at Victoria Law Courts.

Monsignor O'Connell said they had much to contribute to Canadian culture and he hoped they would also contribute to Canada's religious life.

"I speak for all our churches when I say you are very welcome."

The new Canadians took the oath of allegiance from Judge Eric Chown, president of the B.C. Citizenship Court. They were welcomed by Mrs. E. L. Desilet on behalf of Greater Victoria Citizenship Council.

Mrs. A. B. Carson, president, received them at a reception in the Y building after the ceremony.

The new Canadians are:

Mrs. Pieternella Crowell, Mr. and Mrs. Teunis De Mooy and Mrs. and Mrs. Alouisius Hermsen, all from the Netherlands; Mr. and Mrs. Hubertus Kaatz, Germany; Chau Wah Ng, China.

Mrs. Katalin Marta Nyers (Hungary), Jens Johan Soby (Norway), Goerge Bruigom (Indonesia), Miss Edeltraud Gurenheit (Germany), Mrs. Annette Muir and Mrs. Paula Niederlander (Hungary).

Mrs. Maria Ryder (Mexico), Mrs. Kristina Tarokic (Yogoslavia), Leonardus Veerkamp and Johannes Zuyderwijk (The Netherlands).

Mr. and Mrs Egidio Barbob (Italy), Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Bauer (Germany), Mr. and Mrs. Huibert Hortensius (The Netherlands), Mrs. Edith Horvah (Roumania), Mrs. Seyran Schultz (Turkey), Jan Julius Sipkes (Indonesia).

Sweeping Changes Out for Anglicans

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Anglican Church must steer clear of sweeping changes under way in the world, Archbishop Godfrey Gower said today at the 64th synod meeting of the New Westminster Anglican Diocese.

He said that old structures are being broken, landmarks destroyed and new freedoms demanded in all spheres of life.

"The church must not be caught up in this," he said. "It must show itself as an example of continuity and reform, cohesions and flexibility."

However, he said, the church cannot remain insulated from the world, but must respond to humanity's call and be updated if it is to claim to be God's instrument.

Archbishop Gower said he is disturbed that some clergy are leaving the church. He questioned the view that the place and function of the parish priest was diminishing in importance.

'Emmottisms' Take Edge Off Grinding Pace

By JIM HUME

Having criss-crossed the western provinces many times I still can't get used to the idea of having a late lunch with my son in the Chateau Lacombe in Edmonton and an early dinner in Victoria.

Hume

Not that I'm complaining about the speed of modern transportation. After four days on the high, dust-blown praries a man can't get back to the coast fast enough.

A few impressions after close to a week in the bustling, rapidly-growing capital city of our neighboring province Alberta:

In 1967 the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities came waveringly close to holding its last session. Meeting in Montreal, with Expo 67 rearing its beautiful head over all proceedings, the Federation met in an atmosphere of fun and games.

●

Following the Montreal session the executive met and reviewed with some alarm the fact that social activities had taken precedence over the business of the nation.

In Edmonton this week the pendulum swung the other way, and possibly swung too far. Sessions started at 8:45 a.m. or 9 a.m. at the latest and ramrodded right through until 5 p.m. with a quick hour for lunch and socializing.

Delegates were given a two-hour break in the evening after which they had their choice of tasting the somewhat limited night-life of Edmonton or listening to Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau on Tuesday, or Premier E. C. Manning on Wednesday.

It was a tough schedule, but one your elected officials faced up to admirably.

Not until Thursday evening did the 550 delegates and their 550 wives get a chance to really let their hair down.

●

And by that time I was primly back in Victoria, so am unable to tell you whether or not they applied themselves to that opportunity with equal devotion to duty.

But I am sure they did.

The funniest man at the convention was, as might be expected, Mayor Allan Emmott, Burnaby. His prize quotations were too numerous to list here, but a few might brighten your weekend.

Quote: "I used to be a reeve, but for a few weeks now I have been a full-fledged mayor, and already people are calling me the whole horse."

Quote: "We knew Central Mortgage and Housing took a long time to make decisions, but when our first agreement came back written longhand, olde English lettering, we were a little surprised."

Quote: "I understand they are converting CMHC headquarters in Ottawa to a chronic care hospital—but they're not firing any of the existing staff."

Mayor Emmott was not the only funnyman at the conference. In fact, Mayor Hugh Stephen came through with one of the better lines following a lunch-break gold-panning session at Edmonton's Exhibition Park.

●

Asked if he had struck it rich, Mayor Stephen answered: "I don't really think so; as a matter of fact I finished up with more sand in my pan that when I started."

Had a vote been taken to choose the most impressive man at the convention, it would have gone, close to unanimously, to Chief Max Gros-Louis of the Hurons f Lorette, Quebec.

Tall, swarthy, hair jet-black and woven into the traditional long braid, falling over the left shoulder and bound with colored beads, he reminded us all that the true Canadian was, and is, a proud man.

Chief Gros-Louis was the man who made the impassioned speech on Thursday morning, a speech calling upon all municipal leaders to work for and recognize the basic rights of Canada's native sons. And to achieve their ends by peaceful means.

He was also the man, possibly the only man attending the convention, who stayed up throughout the long Tuesday night to watch on television the unfolding tragedy in Los Angeles.

There is little doubt that the impact of that event lay close to the surface when Chief Gros-Louis gave his speech. And there is also little doubt that the delegates to whom he spoke knew that they were in the presence of a Canadian who loved his country and loved his fellow man.

●

A few more men like Chief Gros-Louis and the bulk of this country's problems, at the municipal, provincial and federal level, will be over.

And now I'm off to Campbell River for a weekend of fishing in waters which I sincerely hope are clearer and less polluted than the North Saskatchewan river which flows through the heart of Edmonton.

Rights Bill 'Just Bunch of Words'

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's Bill of Rights is "just a bunch of words on paper that don't mean a damn thing," a factory worker told the royal commission on the status of women Friday.

Christine Bennett, a solderer on a production line with Continental Can Co., complained that her company did not grant fringe benefits to women to the same extent as it did for men.

She said that her company paid hospital and insurance benefits for the families and spouses of the male employees, but not for married women. The assumption is that married women will be protected by their husband's contributions.

Jean Keller said men have a sneaky plot for keeping women fighting over them.

"They do it by going to war," she said.

"Men make themselves in short supply, thereby raising their value in society.

"This keeps women jockeying for partners and gives men the balance of power."

John Kaye, 47, manager in a Toronto electrical firm, said women discriminate against men by denying them work as housekeepers.

"Housework has for long set the pattern of job discrimination," he said. "It's a basic form of labor denied to men."

Arthur Mayse

If there is one thing no gardener can abide, it is a plot of earth in which nothing has been planted. It offends his eye or hers. Sooner or later, he, she or both will conspire to plunk something into it, and thus increase their labors.

We have just such a patch at our place, left bare when we cleaned up the mess the ivy that came to earth last winter along with the clothesline pole around which it twined in a yard-thick mass. The space isn't large ... maybe four paces one way and six the other ... but it irritates us, and lately we have taken to studying it where it lies flanked by somewhat tousled rose bushes.

The other evening we downed tools after a spell of lawn work and strolled across to it.

"Well," I said, "there's nothing to stop us putting some more rose bushes there."

"Yes, I suppose we could," Win agreed, without noticeable enthusiasm.

Lush June had brought mosquitoes out. We slapped and pondered, while a pheasant settled noisily for the night in the maple tops below.

"How would you react," my dear one asked, "if I suggested we put in a very small vegetable garden?"

★

I reacted for several minutes. Nobody planted vegetables in a rose garden, even if it did happen to be around back. Anyway, it was too late in the season. And besides, hadn't we decided years ago that growing your own simply wasn't worth the bother.

Remember the weeding? And the watering? And the carrot-fly, the cutworm and the aphids?

Surely we didn't want to go through all that again?

This until I began to repeat myself, and finally stopped for lack of breath.

"I know," Win said. "But this wouldn't be a big garden." She traced a row with the points of her lawn clippers. "We could put carrots here. Remember how nice those tender young carrots were with butter? I suppose it's a little late but we could set tomato plants back by the fence, and dwarf peas . . ."

Such enticements were hard to resist.

I said grudgingly, "If we do, I want a row of potatoes and another of leaf lettuce."

"Yes, and I especially want some green beans.

"We'll pick 'em young," I abetted her. "How about radishes? We ought to have them too."

★

The pheasant had finally settled himself, and twilight was deepening. So we went indoors, still planning how best to utilize that tablecloth-sized patch.

I'd spade it next evening, and since no time was to be lost, we'd better get our seeds without delay. To the list we added a row of beets for pickling, and a couple of well-started cucumber plants.

"What we can do," Win pointed out, "is move those two lower rosebushes up with the others. That will give us a little more space. We might even manage head lettuce and leaf lettuce both."

And so we might. We thought about the midget garden for a while, then, without saying anything, Win hunted up a pencil and a sheet of paper.

Somehow or other, we had managed to acquire a surprising number of rows.

"What we've done," she announced, "is to just about duplicate the big garden we used to have. I'll give up the head lettuce if you'll knock out the cucumbers. And how about the beets?"

"Scratch them and the potatoes," I said, grateful that we'd escaped the trap in time. After all, says the wise old saw, a fellow should plant only as much as his wife can tend.

There matters stand. We plant tomorrow, and with luck and a warm summer, we hope for a crop before Christmas!

BITTERMAN FUNERAL MONDAY

'Miracle How Well She Is Taking It'

By DON VIPOND

Relatives of Ernest Bitterman began a sad task today — deciding who will care for the sole survivor of the family wiped out in a landslide Wednesday.

Object of their attention is six-year-old Janet Bitterman who was thrown clear of the car in which her parents and two sisters died.

"She's fairly fully aware. She knows her folks are gone," Rev. Frank Funk, an uncle from Kelowna, said today.

Janet suffered only scrapes and bruises in the tragedy near Revelstoke. Killed instantly when the slide swept their car from the highway were Mr. Bitterman, a grocery warehouseman, his wife Annette and daughters Terri Lynn, 4, and Sandra Lee, 2.

The mountain slide was over half a mile long, 600 feet wide and up to 20 feet deep. It drove the car 50 feet off the highway and down an embankment, demolishing it.

★ ★ ★

Two further slides followed it later Wednesday. Rescuers blamed a cloudburst in the mountains for loosening the piles of mud and rocks.

Highway workers, using bulldozers and dynamite, opened a single lane for traffic Friday.

Mr. Funk took Janet to his home after her day's stay in hospital.

"My mummy's up in heaven, isn't she?" Janet asked along the way.

"The further we got from where it happened the more she thought about it," said her uncle. "She was crying over the last hundred miles or so."

Rev. and Mrs. Funk brought Janet to her grandparents' home in Victoria Friday night, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Leland of 3105 Yew. The family talked things over today.

★ ★ ★

One thing that has helped the little girl adjust has been her utter preoccupation with seven-month-old Kevin, son of the Funks.

She played with him constantly since the accident, said Mr. Funk.

Funeral services for the four members of the family will be held Monday afternoon with McCall Bros. in charge.

National Unity His Main Theme In Wooing Vote

By ERIC MAURICE

Calm, cool and collected—and concerned.

The time is critical, and if we can't solve the unity problem, there may not be any Canada left to solve the other issues, he said in a Times interview.

What about the candidates? Why are they running? What do they stand for? What are their objectives?

Mr. Anderson, who comes from an old Victoria family, is an imposing figure with an imposing record in the external affairs department since he graduated from the UBC law school. He served as legal adviser to the Canadian Commission in Vietnam and for three years as assistant trade commissioner in Hong Kong, where he learned to speak Chinese. He is fluent in French.

He was a member of the UBC silver medal-winning rowing crew in the 1960 Rome Olympics.

Mr. Anderson said national unity is critical this year because the continuing nature of Confederation is a primary national problem.

The Conservatives in their espousal of special status for Quebec are standing for some pretty fundamental constitutional changes without really saying so, he said, but nobody really knows how the Conservatives intend to interpret the term.

"The whole country is waiting to know what it means."

If the Conservatives don't explain exactly what they mean by special status, they will have failed to put across a viable national policy. If this happens, the Liberals will win about 160 seats, Mr. Anderson predicted.

The Liberals have a record of a "flexible, sympathetic approach" to the difficult questions of federalism, he said.

"We need flexible men who have a clear grasp of what a federal state consists of."

They must be responsive to the legitimate expectations of any province on the basis of provincial rights set out in Section 92 of the British North America Act, he said.

'Through Flexible Agreements'

The Liberal policy is to allow provinces to deal with matters legitimately of their concern through flexible overall international agreements, "preserving the federal government's ability to deal with matters specifically of its concern," he said.

Under this arrangement, legitimate provincial undertakings with other countries can be made except where they are contrary to the international policies of the federal government, such as trade with Rhodesia, Mr. Anderson said.

When the Conservatives took in Marcel Faribault as a federal candidate, they lined themselves up behind the Quebec policy which initiated the Gabon feud, he said.

(Mr. Faribault is the constitutional adviser who recommended to Quebec Premier Johnson that Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal represent Quebec at an education conference for sovereign French-language states in Gabon, thus precipitating the severing of Canadian diplomatic relations with that country.)

Economics and housing will be important issues once the unity question is satisfactorily resolved, Mr. Anderson said.

All Western economies — not merely Canada's — are geared to the United States, he said. Therefore, Canada must work out a system to make best use of American money and technology without adopting the "inferior" American social structure.

David Anderson both sees and personifies a new political "concern and awareness."

"We now realize that political parties are nothing more than the people who make them up."

This firm conviction of the need for important decisions to be made by competent legislators has drawn him into politics.

He has the knowledge, background and innate political sense to make a dynamic contribution to the political process, but he must first displace a solidly entrenched incumbent, and that, as Mr. Anderson himself readily concedes, "will be an uphill struggle."

Ask The Times

Q. Where may I obtain tourist information on Montana State? J.S.

A. Information on the various states may be obtained by writing to the Chamber of Commerce at the capital city of the state in which you are interested. The capital of Montana is Helena.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Tuneful Welcome To New Home

Major-General Pearkes leaves his post at the end of the month and he and his wife will take up permanent residence in their home at 1268 Tattersall Drive.

So neighbors got together for a surprise tribute and welcome this afternoon. The Gordon Head Junior High School band led the march to the Pearkes' house for a brief program of music and singing.

The Pearkes were presented with a certificate for an "Instant Dogwood Tree" as a reminder of the occasion.

Separate State 'Now' Permitted

Due to a misprint in Friday's Times, Bishop Remi De Roo was quoted as saying that a conservative group (in the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary) is "NOT permitted to function as a separate community."

He actually said "is NOW permitted."

Whoop-de-Doo Set For National Leaders

By PETE LOUDON

Liberal and Conservative campaigners today are thrashing out plans for the Victoria visits of their two national leaders June 13 and 17.

Both are counting on crowds in excess of 8,000. Both plan triumphant cavalcades through the city. Bands and cheering squads and unrestricted political whoop-de-doo are on programs.

And they're praying for good weather.

Tentative plans are for use of the south slope of Beacon Hill with the prime minister addressing thousands of local voters seated on blankets, shooting sticks and portable deck chairs.

Also in the planning are a dramatic arrival by Mr. Trudeau in a helicopter, a post-rally cavalcade to Victoria airport with the PM in an open convertible, and a rousing send-off in the form of another crowded gathering there.

Arrangements are in the hands of the provincial campaign office at Vancouver and B.C. Liberal Association president George Van Roggen today said he would release no plans until the full program is fully set — probably not until Monday.

City approval of the use of the park is expected to be obtained early Monday.

ARENA BOOKED

Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal campaigners had originally intended using Memorial Arena which can seat 8,000 for the Trudeau rally. But Mr. Trudeau's itinerary was changed and the Arena already was booked by a circus during the only date he could be here.

An open air meeting seemed a logical alternative. But if weather interferes with this plan, the alternatives are grim. About the best is Esquimalt Arena — where there are 1,600 seats, room for 1,000 to stand and room for another 2,000 seats on the arena floor — a total capacity of 4,600.

The Conservative rally will end a long day of campaigning for national leader Robert Stanfield. He will arrive on the Island at Nanaimo at 10:30 a.m. on Thursday, attend a lunch and reception, then fly to Comox and Courtenay.

He arrives at Victoria airport at 5 p.m. and will be driven immediately to Empress Hotel where a quiet reception will precede the 8:30 p.m. rally at Memorial Arena.

Doors at the arena will open an hour early and the only seats reserved will be for buses from up-Island points. There will be a band and singing group in attendance.

Mr. Stanfield will be present for only one hour before leaving either for the hotel or a brief radio hot line appearance.

His travels through the city will be in an open convertible with an escort of horn-tooting campaigners. He will stay here overnight and leaves Empress Hotel for the airport at 8 a.m. Friday.

Plans are still incomplete for the NDP major rally of the campaign, Sunday, June 23 when national leader T. C. Douglas will be presented with a similar flourish at Memorial Arena.

17 DAYS TO GO

Socred Support 'Uncommitted'

Victoria Social Credit members are free to support any local federal election candidate they desire.

President of the federal Socred association, Victor Smith said today, "When we decided not to run a candidate we left our members free to vote as they please.

"We are not backing (Eric) Charman (Victoria Conservative candidate) or anyone else."

Mr. Smith was commenting on a report that the Dogwood Women's Auxiliary of the Social Credit party held a coffee meeting Tuesday for Mr. Charman.

One woman member said that when she was invited she was told "We are supporting Mr. Charman."

Mr. Smith said the meeting was sponsored by "some of our members entirely on their own."

Mr. Charman today said he knows of no decision by Social Crediters to support him although at the coffee party in question about 10 women members of that party were present.

"I'll take support wherever I can get it. I had a coffee party with Liberal women two days ago on Beach Drive and several of them left with Charman stickers for their cars."

One of the reasons there are so few political rallies in public halls in the current campaign is that unless a national leader is on stage, people stay away in droves.

This was proven again Friday when Esquimalt-Saanich Liberl candidate David Anderson held a meeting in an Esquimalt hall. Aside from party workers there were three members of the public and a Times reporter present.

In his speech Mr. Anderson noted he was speaking largely for Times readers because the Times made up such a large part of his audience. (Times policy is to report candidates' views in public speeches rather than accept press releases or speeches to coffee parties, which have largely replaced mass meetings.)

Upcoming political gatherings:

All Esquimalt-Saanich candidates will address Sidney Silver Threads at K of P Hall, Sidney, Monday, 2 p.m.

All candidates for both ridings will address a Victoria Silver Threads meeting at their Centennial Square headquarters, Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.

MASS WALKOUT IF GRANT FORMULA CHANGED

Band Chiefs Strike War Drums

By HUMPHREY DAVY

Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation has threatened a mass resignation of Indian leaders and band administrators if a new federal grants program is implemented.

Band chiefs and councillors, paid band administrators as well as voluntary workers would resign, leaving the entire administration of reserves to local Indian agencies.

The agencies haven't adequate staff to cope with reserve affairs which have been handled by the Indians themselves in the past three years.

Chief Philip Paul of the Tsarslip reserve said the walkout talk is not an "idle threat."

"We will walk off our jobs if they try to force the program down our throats. We have no alternative."

The proposed new formula provides a grant of $10 per capita for the administration of band affairs. It also suggests that Indians take on the responsibility of social welfare.

This means that a band like the Cowichans with 1,000 members would receive $10,000 to pay the salary of a band administrator, the collection of garbage, the maintenance of schools and waterworks, plus office equipment and an office clerk.

The formula allows for an increase in grants if the band takes over social welfare,

Under the present grant system, grants are allotted in accordance with the band's needs.

Jacket dresses are wardrobe extenders . . .

Having purchased one ourselves recently, we can't speak highly enough in praise of jacket dresses . . . They're extremely versatile . . . combining, as they do, either a sleeveless or short-sleeved dress . . . which stands on its own and can be dressed up to your heart's content . . . and a more or less tailored jacket to change the mood and take on the virtues of a two-piece suit for occasions that demand a more covered-up look . . . Wilson's have quite a number of very smart jacket dresses . . . in light-weight wool, linen, or one of the easy-care crimplene fabrics . . . Among the latter are a couple from Maggi Lester of London . . . red, sizes 10 and 12, and a cool green size 14 . . . These have small sleeves . . . Another with short sleeves is a navy crimplene size 14 . . . with attractive braid trim around dress neck and jacket pockets . . . There's an Austrian knit in greenish gold textured pattern . . . A lilac patterned crimplene . . . a beige Italian knit with brass buttons . . . A very smart red linen, size 12 . . . and if you wear a size 18 or 20, you'll find the light wool outfits in a very small green and mauve check most flattering! . . . Unique in all of Canada are the Basil Collins jacket dresses of pure linen . . . made in Dublin . . . They're beautifully tailored and have quite unusual designs . . . one in black and white . . . another in several colors on a chartreuse background . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Long-torso sweater dresses, cardigan jackets and romantic clinging styles for late-day wear recall the glamour of pre-war film stars.

African safaris . . . 1968 style! . . .

Time was when most of us thought of Africa as the "Dark Continent" . . . a part of the world penetrated mainly by missionaries, big game hunters and other such hardy souls whose thirst for adventure outweighed all considerations of comfort or even safety . . . But things are changing rapidly . . . The continent itself . . . the world's greatest natural spectacle . . . continues to be strange and unreal and excitingly "different" . . . but it is opening up to such an extent that organized tours are now being offered . . . for periods from 27 to 73 days . . . that take you to places we can barely spell, let alone pronounce! . . . And all this is in the greatest of comfort! . . . Paulin's were telling us the other day about several of these fabulous tours for which they are now prepared to take bookings . . . There's the "African Odyssey" . . . a 73-day tour covering just about everything that can be included in Africa today . . . The "Cape to Cairo Safari," a shorter tour that includes all the Odyssey's features except for West Africa . . . The 26-day "Kenya Safari," which features the celebrated area between Mombasa and the Mountains of the Moon . . . and a 24-day Holy Land Extension from Cairo to Athens . . . which can be added to any of these . . . Prices for these African tours are all-inclusive . . . and if you'd like complete details, see Paulin's . . . the specialists in international travel . . . George Paulin Travel Service, 1006 Government St., 382-9168.

Fine china from Hungary . . .

A visit to Sydney Reynolds' is a liberal education in the accoutrements to gracious living, we always think . . . Certainly you'd have to go very far afield to find counterparts to most of their lovely things . . . For instance, there's the shipment of Herend china which has just arrived from Hungary . . . This was new to us . . . Not surprising really, considering there's been none around since before the last war! . . . Anyway, we learned that the Herend factory has always been considered Hungary's finest . . . that the ornamentation and painting is all done by hand . . . This Herend china is not dinnerware, but consists of lovely little boxes and bowls . . . vases and relish trays and platters . . . ornamental pieces to add graciousness to your home . . . Many of the pieces are adorned with raised roses, in the manner of Dresden . . . Colorings are exquisite . . . We especially like the little ornament consisting of two blue flowers and a butterfly . . . a real delight! . . . Mr. Reynolds is mighty pleased to have Herend china in his store after all these years! . . . There's a new shipment of Mason Ironware old ginger jars from England too . . . All sizes and shapes, ranging in price from $3.25 up . . . and we noticed some beautiful cobalt blue and gold service plates with imourie colorings . . . priced at just $4.75 each at . . . Sydney Reynolds Ltd., 801 Government St., 383-3931.

It must be that "fine Italian hand" we hear so much about . . . that make Italian shoes so very special . . . certainly for style, softness and workmanship they're pretty hard to beat! . . . The new Peperino summer casuals we saw at Munday's earlier this week have all these qualities . . . and we think they're perfectly lovely shoes to step out in this summer . . . There's a flat made of soft buffalo calfskin . . . with woven trim on the vamp . . . White, bone, tan or black . . . slim, narrow and medium widths . . . Great to wear with all your casual and sports clothes, and only $14.95 . . . A little dressier is the woven leather pump with a little higher heel . . . high tongue vamp . . . which comes in bone or white . . . or a similar woven vamp shoe with sling back . . . Dressier still, but not too much so, is the plain leather shoe, in bone or white, with three slim buckled straps over the instep . . . All four of these Peperino models are light, airy, and tops for summer comfort afoot . . . The three latter styles are priced at a modest $16.95 . . . For boating and beach wear and with your shorts or slacks, you'll like Munday's one-eyelet canvas shoes with crepe soles . . . They're very colorful in red, green or yellow . . . with rope trim around the sole . . . Price tag is $9.95 . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., 383-2211.

Your hat can be any style, as long as it is frankly reminiscent.

We saw the most delightful little hanging planter in the Handloom this week . . . hand-thrown pottery by talented Tina . . . who is using some very interesting new glazes these days . . . This planter is pear shaped and hangs by a long slim leather thong . . . has a slightly oriental cast to the design . . . Also by Tina, a beautiful brown teapot with a nice deep lid, graceful shape, and a spout that won't drip . . . You just know that tea made in this will be pure nectar! . . . And a couple of unusual shaped ash trays . . . one like a lily pad . . . in lovely green and brown glazes . . . New from Kakinuma is a low plant stand in rich earthy tones . . . Since it has no holes in the bottom, this could also be used for flowers . . . Elegant either in or outdoors . . . And do see Kakinuma's pair of gorgeous gulls . . . amazingly realistic, and real conversation pieces . . . If you'd like a very handsome lamp . . . that will meld as happily with traditional as with contemporary furniture . . . you'll find a beauty at the Handloom . . . Hand-thrown grey pottery base by Tam Irving . . . teakwood neck to hide the brass underfittings . . . deep hand-made shade which looks white, but takes on the same warm shade as the base when the trilight lamp is lit . . . This handsome piece stands 42" high . . . It's unique of its kind . . . and would be a lovely thing to own! . . . The Handloom, 18 Centennial Square, 384-1011.

The big news in color is Paris Red . . . and each of the four styles in these linen dresses may be had in this exciting new shade . . . One model has a small white stand-up collar, covered buttons down the back, and an unpressed fold in skirt front . . . Like so many of the new dresses, it's belted . . . Another style has a long white bib front trimmed with lace, pert red bow at the neckline . . . A really darling dress is the V-neck wrap-around with side closing, and short sleeves . . . This one has the perfect neckline for ascots, and a variety of scarves would lend it several different lives . . . The fourth style is sleeveless with long torso and a flip skirt . . . V-neckline has a white collar with pleated fluted edge, and silk bow in contrasting tone . . . As well as red, it also comes in grey and dark brown . . . # Robbery Starts New York Woman on a Diet Stretch

Eileen Roddick-Roberts is an attractive dynamic woman who logs an average of 200,000 miles annually to promote New York City, the city with which she readily admits having a long-time love affair.

What does a woman decide to do when, thousands of miles from home, she is robbed of all her possessions?

Damaske

Does she go into shock and become non compos mentis?

Does she sit and feel sorry for herself until friends rally around with a care package?

Does she buy one dark, conservative, go-everywhere dress to do until she returns home?

Next, a wire to her insurance adjuster and then a call to the Wilshare Boulevard branch of Saks Fifth Avenue.

Miss Roddick-Roberts, "Roddy," to her friends, was about 50 pounds overweight, and knowing she would now have to invest in a complete new wardrobe, she felt that diet time had arrived.

Roddy has lost 44 pounds since I last saw her and looks terrific. Miss Roddick-Roberts is tourism co-ordinator for New York's Convention and Visitors Bureau.

She is truly in love with her skyscraper city and has extensive knowledge of its past, present and future. Roddy was here last week on her annual visit and as usual had many exciting tales to tell.

The robbery took place in a hotel in the Los Angeles area and Roddy, who indulges herself in the finer things of life, lost $15,000 worth of couturier clothes, furs, jewels, lingerie hand-made by nuns in France, cameras and luggage.

The only thing the systematic thieves did not take were her size 4B shoes . . . not much point in stealing shoes in such an unusual size . . . too hard to dispose of.

Roddy had been attending a formal party so when she returned to her suite she was left with a gorgeous formal gown and a dozen pairs of shoes.

It was hot in Los Angeles . . . the shoes would all coordinate with navy blue or white so from Saks came a selection of dresses in these colors. Roddy limited herself to two in size 16 . . . it was a bit of a squeeze but Roddy has a great deal of willpower and she knew she would lose weight this time. Within a few weeks the dresses were fitting very easily and another dress was added . . . this time a size 14.

It is now a year later and Roddy is chic and slender in a size 9. Roddy is quick to tell you that her diet was carefully supervised by a doctor who is a nutritionist. A carbohydrate and high protein diet combined with an hour of calisthenics each day is her program.

Roddy is still distressed about the loss of the only picture of her late father. Her eight-foot three-tier made-to-order black Siberian fox stole can never be replaced and the insurance coverage did not begin to allow her to replace her strands of 20-millimeter pearls but the robbery was instrumental in giving Roddy a new outlook.

"Don't ever become attached to material things or be bogged down by personal possessions . . . once they are gone life goes on just the same," she says.

Life certainly goes on at a rapid rate for this vivacious woman and you may be sure there are no "crocodile tears" shed over the lost pounds.

AT ST. MARY'S

Tea Garden Moves Indoors

Victoria weather can't be depended on so the Women's Guild of St. Mary's Anglican Church moved their garden party inside to an artificial garden.

Mrs. T. W. Kensington and Mrs. G. A. Ewart were general conveners for the affair which was held Friday in St. Mary's Church Hall, Elgin Road. Proceeds were $650.

The tea tables were divided off from the rest of the hall by pink paper streamers strung between rose bushes. To reach the tables, guests passed through a trellis covered with artificial roses.

Arrangements of roses and ferns were set at intervals about the room. Tea room convener was Mrs. S. Petley-Jones. Mrs. Keith Dixon was in charge of decorations.

Greeting the guests at the door were Mrs. Hywell Jones and Mrs. Ewart.

Mrs. W. K. Willis was convener of the gift stall which displayed such tempting items as long handled nylon scrubs and serving mitts of white pique trimmed with lace.

Both the candy stall convened by Mrs. C. W. Duck and the home baking, convened by Mrs. W. Redford did a roaring business, tempting dieters with their displays.

Baby jackets and jewelry were to be found in the superfluities stall convened by Mrs. J. C. Cromack and Mrs. H. S. Hughes, while Mrs. C. J. Bunbury collected books ranging from Golding to Webster's dictionary for the bookstall she convened.

The flower stall convened by Mrs. T. S. Whittemore carried on the garden theme, displaying flowers from the poppy to the rhododendron and potted plants from cacti to African violets.

Mrs. A. H. Bamford was in charge of tickets.

Hummingbird Visitor Needs to Be Rescued

By PENNY SAVER

Our visitor made a bee-line for the flower-bed and began exploring a flower with the utmost care. He was a hummingbird, one of the tiniest I have ever seen. Sitting as still as we could, my husband and I watched his airborne meal. Then with a flicker of his almost-invisible wings, he left our sight.

A few minutes later, one of the boys came to us in distress. Our feathered guest had taken a wrong turning and was beating against the glass in the garage window. Unfortunately for him, I had cleaned it just the other day and he couldn't understand why he wasn't able to fly through into the sunshine he could see so clearly. After about 15 minutes of frantic chasing, my husband held the trembling creature in his hand. The hummingbird sat there for a few minutes, trying to piece out what had happened then was gone in a blur of wings.

After the magic of holding a live hummingbird in his hand, my husband was determined to set up a feeder to attract these birds. Just the other day he came home with a kit for making a feeder. This $1.95 pack includes a glass feeding bottle just the right size for a hummingbird, a grid to keep the bees away and a package of high-energy instant nectar. The clear bottle is fitted with red—a color that hummingbirds love. A bent tube, specially designed to keep the nectar in reach of the thin beak, comes out the bottom. The nectar crystas dissolve in water to make an attractive pink substitute for flower nectar. Similar kits range from $1.59 for just the bottle to $2.25. A half pound of the nectar crystals is $1.15. Many experienced hummingbird watchers make their own nectar, but this requires a sure knowledge of what a hummingbird needs in his diet.

Get a Landing Strip for Flies

Attracting hummingbirds is great, but not attracting flies. No matter what we do — cover all food, screen all doors and windows — the flies flock to the cool shady house. I can't say that I blame them, but I do want to get rid of them. I have found one method that really works. It is a solid strip of fly-killer hung in an attractive gold-foil cover. This strip will keep a 10 foot by 12 foot room free of flies and insects for three months. It is odorless and as it is hung out of reach of children and small animals, completely safe. We tried one of these strips last year at the cabin when they were hard to get and didn't include the foil cover. It really worked! We scarcely saw an airborne fly all season. This year they are more reasidly available at $2.95 each. each.

Cage birds, used as they are to being without freedom, occasionally come to blows against the bars of their cage. I have seen many poor things with sores on their feet and raw spots where they have rubbed their feathers off in a moment of cage-bound panic. How can you treat these tiny cuts and sores? There is an antiseptic salve made just for birds. At $1.79 a tube, this salve shooths cuts and sores and protects them from further infection.

If you would like to know where these items may be found, please call me at 382-3131.

Aids Cadet Camp

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the St. John Ambulance Association raised $500 at a tea and home-baking sale held Saturday afternoon at St. John House, 941 Pandora Avenue. The proceeds will go toward the St. John Ambulance Cadet Camp and the purchase of a new ambulance. Conveners for the affair were Mrs. C. Rife and Mrs. I. Champion. Tea was served by the members of the auxiliary.

BAPTIZED TODAY

Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Feilden and their two daughters, two-year-old Wendy and two-month-old Nicola, are here from Vancouver for the baptism ceremony of the baby, which took place in St. Paul's Anglican Church this afternoon. Rev. J. A. Roberts officiated. Nicola wore an heirloom robe which had been worn by her maternal great-grandfather, Mr. A. R. Sherwood, 106 years ago. The family will spend the weekend as the house guests of the little girls' maternal grandparents, Cmdr. A. C. Wurtele and Mrs. Wurtele of Plaskett Place. The paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fielden, and their two youngest sons, Randall and Eric (who are the baby's godfathers) are here from Vancouver for the ceremony. Godmother is Mrs. Katie Brown of Vancouver. Also here is the little girls' maternal aunt, Miss Elizabeth Wurtele. On the completion of the service, a family tea was held in the maternal grandparents' home.

Triple Shower Given

The Dennison Road home of Mrs. Gerald Sullivan was the setting when she and her mother, Mrs. W. R. Roskelley gave a recent shower for bride-elect Miss Jill Paver, expectant mother Mrs. Grahame Baker and new mother Mrs. Art Huck. The guests included members of St. John's Anglican Church Women, Evening Branch, and other friends. Approximately 30 guests were present. They included the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Iris E. Paver, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. James McVie. Also present were Miss Paver's sister, Mrs. Tom Claridge; Mrs. Claridge's mother-in-law, Mrs. F. M. Claridge of Toronto; grandmothers of the bride-elect, and her fiance; Mrs. Marie Paver and Mrs. Robert McVie. Her sister and young Maureen Sullivan assisted the bride-to-be with the opening of her gifts. Presiding at the refreshment table, which was decorated with silver candelabra and silver fighting cocks were Mrs. J. McVie and Mrs. C. Risebrow. Mrs. Stanley Hawkins had made a decorated cake which centred the table. Baby baths, filled to the brim with gifts, were presented to Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Huck. Baby novelties formed their corsages. Corsages were also presented to Miss Paver, her mother and the groom-elect's mother.

TELLS OF SHAKING EXPERIENCE IN BERMUDA RIOTS

British Visitor Here to Promote Well-Known Company

Freida Coyle is in town to introduce a line of fashions by an outstanding British company. One of her most effective weapons is a 45-year-old sample coat which she's brought to show how good tailoring, cloth and dye can stand the test of time.

By PAT DUFOUR

One of the most attractive "imports" in Victoria for the British Festival of Fine Arts is Mrs. Freida Coyle.

"This was the new duchess' first social engagement, and a lot of fun. Everyone was there. We made lots of money for cancer research."

Some of her other assignments have proved less pleasant, even if more exciting.

Typical of this is the adventure she had when she was sent to Bermuda to open up a branch there. She was so successful that the entire stock was sold in three days, mostly to American tourists on the pleasure ships Franconia and Olympia.

Unfortunately, Mrs. Coyle's visit coincided with the riots. This caused an adventure which she is in no hurry to repeat.

"I was at the hairdresser's when the fighting broke out and we were all ordered to evacuate. The order came when I was in the middle of a shampoo with my hair piled in foaming suds.

"There I was dashing down the street with my white soapy wig flying and troops dashing by, Bren guns at the ready!"

Although she's English born and bred, Mrs. Coyle has spent many years away from Britain. She married a railway executive and two days after the wedding they headed for Argentina, where she was to live for the next 20 years. On the death of her husband 15 years ago, Mrs. Coyle and her two sons, Peter and John, returned to England.

She began her apprenticeship in the fashion industry at an early age, being made a buyer when she was 19.

The firm she represents is no fly-by-night either. It opened its doors many years ago, and two world wars have set the style which has made it famous all over Europe.

"The women were so used to military uniforms after the First World War that they insisted that the same flair and dash be used for their civilian clothes.

"From that time on our company has earned a name for its tailoring with a military look. It was also the first firm to introduce co-ordinates."

It appears that Canadian women are as enthusiastic about service-styled fashions as their English counterparts. While in Canada, Freida Coyle will also spearhead the opening of new centres in Montreal, Calgary and Vancouver.

Even when she's not working officially, she's still on the job, wearing outfits (made by her firm, naturally) that cause attention wherever she goes.

Believe me, I know. After we met for luncheon I fell in love with her "rig of the day" and became one of her first customers.

DEAR ABBY . . .

'Boogie Man' Tale Blamed on Mom

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My son called me on the phone, and I was totally unprepared for the bawling out I got.

It seems that my four-year-old grandson had been crying all day. He was afraid to go outside alone and play for fear the "boogie man" or "trash man" would carry him off.

My son said he asked the boy who had told him a story like that, and he said, "Granny did!"

Abby, I have not been over to their house in two weeks. Besides, I would never think of telling my grandson such a frightening tale. (I never told my own children anything like that, so why would I tell it to my grandson?)

When I tried to explain that I was completely innocent, my son refused to listen. All he said was, "The child couldn't have made it up, and you MUST have told him."

I can't tell you how much this hurt me, to get the blame for something I didn't do. And then to be practically called a liar by my own son. What would you do in my place, Abby? M.C.

DEAR M.C.: Your son should be made to understand that young children very often confuse fantasy with reality (and even dreams!) and are not always accurate in their reporting. If your son doesn't believe this, HIS son might grow up before he does.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is being married soon, and I have had so many phone calls from friends asking, "What does Nancy need?" This puts me on the spot because Nancy "needs" a lot of things, but I haven't the faintest idea of how much these people want to spend, so what can I say?

Yesterday one of my dearest friends called and asked if Nancy "needed" sheets and pillow cases. I replied, "Yes, she does." Then I thought I had better mention that Nancy was going to have a king-sized bed, so my friend blurted out, "KING-SIZED? Good heavens, I can't afford sheets for a bed that size!" I felt like two cents, so I quickly added, "But she could also use some tea towels."

Abby, will you please tell women who ask for suggestions on what to buy a bride to please ask like this: "Can Nancy use an electric mixer?" Or, "What color is her kitchen, I want to buy her a couple of dish cloths."

ON THE SPOT.

DEAR ON: Some brides "register" with a local store and the items they "need" are listed to avoid duplications. Clue Nancy in on this. It will not only help Nancy's friends. It will relieve you of much embarrassment.

DEAR ABBY: What does a man do when he has fallen in love with a girl who is engaged to marry someone else?

I know it sounds insane, but when I met Ruth she had already accepted an engagement ring from another man. She didn't tell me she was engaged until after I was so in love with her I couldn't help myself. She said she didn't tell me because she didn't want to "lose" me.

Abby, I love Ruth and she says she loves me, but she hasn't the heart to break the engagement. She says if I will return the ring and make the explanations for her, she will marry me. I have never met her fiance, and don't think I should involve myself in this. What do you think?

IN THE MIDDLE.

DEAR IN: You are not yet "in the middle" unless you put yourself there. If any one returns the ring, it should be Ruth. Furthermore, I hope you realize that you are "in love" with a girl who accepted an engagement ring from a man, was not wearing it when you met her, and didn't admit to being engaged until after she encouraged you to fall in love with her. Doesn't this spell out something to you?

Council Advised To Examine Image

EDMONTON (CP) — Members of the National Council of Women were asked Monday to re-examine themselves and their image as they opened business sessions at their five-day annual meeting.

Ron Con, regional liaison officer for the citizenship branch of the secretary of state department, told about 110 delegates and observers the so-called generation gap results from improvements in mass communication.

"It's not that there was no generation gap in the early years when you were in the young people's stage," he said. "It's just that today because of TV, the accessibility of printed material, radio and computers your youngsters know more than we did.

"Very often we underestimate the intelligence and the common sense of our young people."

He asked members to consider whether they were encouraging young people to join the council or giving them power in it.

The council, in co-operation with the citizenship branch, is conducting a leadership development program: a reassessment of its role at local, provincial and national levels. The council unites representatives of women's organizations "to further the application of the golden rule to society, custom and law."

FOUR LOCATIONS TO SERVE YOU . . .
Where Prices Are Always Reasonable

How many years younger do you think your face should look to make you really happy?

When a woman uses 2nd Debut to make her face look too young, it would be said that she used it not too wisely. And if she uses it to shed only one or two birthdays, this too would be a waste of her time, energy and money. Any woman about to depart on a course of facial rehabilitation with 2nd Debut should first decide just how youthful her face should be made to look to best serve her present purposes. Once this decision is made, there remains little to do beyond applying 2nd Debut nightly according to directions and discontinuing its use when the desired state of more youthful looking linelessness is reached.

WHAT 2nd DEBUT IS:

2nd Debut is a radical departure from the oily creams and lotions that have been the basis of skin care during the past century. It is a scientific development based in the demonstrable fact that skin's appearance ages through dryness, and that the oiliest skin can also be the driest. 2nd Debut demonstrates to women of all ages that dryness can be relieved continuously and varying degrees of youthful appearance re-established by maintaining the water balance of skin at normally required levels. 2nd Debut, therefore, contains neither oil nor grease. Instead, it is an aqueous emulsion of the ingredient known to be the one employed by nature to keep human skin adequately moist to prevent dryness and premature aging.

As contained in the emulsion 2nd Debut, this ingredient (known as CEF) need only to be applied to the surface of facial skin. The water-moisture level of the skin automatically rises. Progressively, the skin's surface appears smoother and more youthful as lines become less evident and some completely disappear. Those around the eyes, the nose and mouth are usually among those that respond earliest to regular nightly applications of 2nd Debut. The tone of the entire face and neck is at once lifted and given the appearance of fresher form as you near the end of your first 2nd Debut course in youth renewal. From that point on, occasional applications of 2nd Debut with its rich CEF 600 content help facial freshness to remain and facial smoothness to continue to replace those insidious premature age lines that plagued you before your friendship with 2nd Debut began. And, at some later indefinite time, you may begin another course of nightly 2nd Debut applications, with assurance it will be fully as effective as the routine just completed.

2nd Debut is made in two potencies. The first contains CEF 600 and is designed for the woman with early worries; that is, the younger woman who has started to line before her time.

The double-potency CEF 1200 was formulated for the face over forty; or for the impatient lady who wants visible results without delay—or for you if your facial lines are deep. It should smooth age lines faster. In only a few days you see a marked change.

Now, to prepare your skin to receive these treatments, 2nd Debut Liquid Cleanser was developed. Its results are dynamic. Its application is different, for it is to be applied in a thin layer over your face and throat. Then rinse off with cool water. Now your skin is clear, and clean. Really clean!

For a perfect complexion instantly, matte finish 2nd Debut Liquid Make-up with CEF 600. Covers blemishes and imperfections so completely and with such a natural look no one suspects it of being make-up. Helps overcome skin dryness, too. Six shades, each a natural skin tone. From Pale to Golden Tan.

Finally, 2nd Debut Body & Hand Lotion (with CEF 600) is a most welcome sensation in body and hand grooming. Imparts a feeling of luxury to the body that makes you regard yourself with extra importance. And its CEF 600 richness quickly defeats the cause of chapping and roughness with its deep moisturizing of your hands. This is a dual-purpose balm with an immediate and pleasurable effect.

Super-Port Line Criticized

VANCOUVER (CP) — The proposed route of a railway line to the Roberts Bank port site, 20 miles south of Vancouver, came under fire Friday from conservationists, Delta municipality and others.

The Provincial Government has given British Columbia Hydro the right to build 27 miles of line to the port site, along the foreshore of Boundary Bay. The line will not cut across farm land.

The critics included Northern Development Minister Laing and the Lower Mainland Regional Planning Board. The line will handle trains from Kaiser Steel Corp. coal mines in the Fernie, B.C. area.

Planning board director V. J. Parker said Friday its studies and recommendations have been "totally ignored" and called the location a case of "sheer expediency."

He said the route doesn't fit the board's concept of industrial development for Delta.

Delta administrator R. S. Cunliffe said municipal leaders want the line to come down the Fraser River so it can stimulate industry in the northern part of the district.

He also said the rail line will cut off 10,000 residents of Tsawwassen from 5,000 people in Ladner.

Howard Paish, executive director of the B.C. Wildlife Federation, said the route will likely damage future recreational development and is a step toward destruction of the region as a waterfowl preserve.

Mr. Laing predicted the provincial government will come under strong attack from conservationists. He said there is widespread opinion that land, such as the Boundary Bay area, must be reserved for recreation.

In reply, John Southworth, executive secretary of the B.C. Harbors Board and chief planner for the project, said the route was chosen for its minimal harmful effect on the area.

He also said the planning board and municipalities were consulted before the decision was made.

Mr. Southworth said disturbance to waterfowl nesting areas would be minimal because the board doesn't foresee industrial development along the rail link.

He quoted Mayor C. F. Taylor of Delta as saying 10 days ago, he would support the plan. Mr. Southworth said the planning board was invited to give views but was "too busy."

Anderson Flails B.C. Government

The provincial government was criticized Friday by Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate David Anderson for failing to take advantage of federal government funds to halt the current housing crisis.

"Ontario is way ahead of this province proportionally in this field," he said. "British Columbia hasn't taken this money as it should have done."

Mr. Anderson, speaking to a scant audience in an Esquimalt hall, was referring to funds available through Central Mortgage and Housing to low-profit or non-profit housing.

He said the Greater Victoria area especially has not benefitted as it should have from the funds.

The Grit challenger to Conservative incumbent George Chatterton stressed co-operation between all levels of government as important in solving the housing problem.

He suggested a federal-provincial conference be called immediately to lay the groundwork for co-operation.

"Last December the government tried to establish a federal, provincial housing council but the provinces would not agree and we must renew our efforts to get that agreement.

"Also the role of CMHC must be increased and all aspects of urban development and renewal and slum clearance should be included."

Mr. Anderson blamed an international shortage of capital for high interest rates.

In suggesting methods of decreasing housing costs he advocated standardization of building components and housing regulations and also prefabrication of building materials.

"Also it's up to the building trade to cut costs," he said. "This is not a government responsibility alone."

Identifies Friend

DRIVER ORDERED TO VIEW BODY

NANAIMO — Coroner Russ Inkster Friday ordered Harry Barth, 22, of Nanaimo to identify the body of a friend, 19-year-old Gary Smith killed when Barth's car hit a hydro pole.

Mr. Inkster said the move was a deterrent and added: "I'll do it again if the circumstances warrant it.

Barth broke down as he looked at the body.

'CURTAIL SLAUGHTER'

Appalled by five traffic deaths in his territory so far this year, Mr. Inkster said in an interview he was "anxious to see the slaughter on the highways curtailed."

A year ago the coroner ordered a passenger in a car that had struck down a pedestrian to view the body. Mr. Inkster said the passenger has urged the car's driver to keep going after the accident.

He said the attorney-general's office has not yet indicated its reaction to the unprecedented measures but local reaction had been favorable.

'JOB TO DO'

"As far as I know, I have a job to do — to act by my conscience."

Most people spent more time talking about the person who had caused accidents than in thinking about the innocent persons killed.

The move "creates an interest, an awareness in the situation," he said.

Groos Decries Tory Alarms In Election

He said when he hears statements made by other candidates he wonders if he is living in the same Canada.

"Certainly we have our problems but try to name a country that doesn't," he told a gathering at Liberal headquarters, 999 Fort.

Mr. Groos said it was true interest rates are high and more emphasis should be given to housing but the government is increasing its aid to low cost housing.

He also said:

- Housing starts were up 25 per cent and exports up 14 per cent in the first quarter of 1968;
- Canada's output is up 40 per cent since 1961. Gross national product up 42 per cent since 1962.
- Overseas trading in 1967 was $700 million above the previous year.
- Dollar reserves gained more than $170 millions (U.S.) in April, 1968.

In 1967 the Liberals spent $14.50 of every $100 of the GNP compared to the Conservatives who in 1958 spent $16.50 of every $100.

Beatty — Nordby

The Hope Lutheran Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Friday, May 24, 1968 at 7:30 p.m. when Reverend A. F. Otke united in marriage Wendy Maureen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice N. Nordby of 2528 Roseberry, Victoria and Gerry Warren Beatty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald M. Beatty, 5835 Parker Avenue, Victoria, in a double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a floor length Empire line gown, the bodice with wedding ring neckline and bracelet sleeves of Italian lace, the skirt and train were of Peau de Elegance. Small buttons accented the back from the neckline through the lace appliqued train. An arrangement of seed pearls, satin petals, lily of the valley held her three-tiered chapel veil. She carried a cascade of talisman roses, white heather and lily of the valley. Her only jewelry, a borrowed heirloom from her paternal grandmother, originally owned by her great great grand-mother was a small pearl sunburst.

The bride and her attendants are well known figure skaters of Victoria. Miss Lorraine Hyne, maid of honor, bridesmaids Miss Sandra Kattler and Miss Karin Kattler were attired in identical floor-length Empire line gowns of mauve Peau de Elegance with floating panels flowing from the neckline. Their headpieces were matching rosettes and tulle and they wore silver crosses, gifts of the bride and carried bouquets of bronze orchids, white heather backed with moss green tulle and ribbon. The gowns worn by the bride and her attendants were made by the bride's mother. Best man was Mr. Dennis Beatty, brother of the groom and ushers were Messrs. Jim Freeman and Mr. George Hyne. On leaving the church the bride's little cousin, Sherry Kaye, presented the bride with a silver horseshoe sent from Scotland.

A three-tiered wedding cake made by the bride's mother, centred the head table at the reception held at the Red Lion Inn. Pastor Otke said grace. Mr. Ed Carter proposed the toast to the bride and groom. The bouquet was caught by Miss Heather Carter and the garter by Mr. Jim Freeman.

The young couple will make their home in Vancouver.

In general, the lower the contract the more variations are possible in the play. At the one level you expect to let your opponents gain the lead several times and can hope they won't find the best return.

Opening lead—♥ J

In slam contracts you can't afford to give the opponents the lead more than once. If they get in a second time you will have been set.

South was one point shy for his jump to three no-trump and North was quite a bit shy for his jump to six. Not that the contract was hopeless. South had 10 top tricks and would make his slam if East held both the king of spades and ace of diamonds.

The first trick went to dummy's ace of hearts and South looked things over. Should he start by running off the club suit? East and West would have no trouble discarding but South would. Furthermore, play of the clubs would give East and West a chance to see what South's problems really were.

Therefore South played dummy's three of diamonds at trick two and went right up with his king. At this point West could have taken his ace and returned a diamond to set the slam two tricks or he could just have taken his ace and let South whistle for his 12th trick but unfortunately for the defence West had been planning his play and West had come to the conclusion that South's hand was just what it was plus the queen of diamonds. In that case, if West took his ace of diamonds South would fall back on the spade finesse for his 12th trick, while if West ducked South might lead a second diamond to make the needed trick in that suit.

But after the king of diamonds held South cashed the clubs and hearts. Then he took the spade finesse to make his contract.

OFF NEWPORT IN OAK BAY —
A really interesting view of Oak Bay Marina is afforded from the property on this quiet English lane. Over the threshold from a broad red porch on which a flowering climber blooms is an entrance foyer which will stop you. From here to your left a sedative charm floods the parlour (24x17) with an oyster coloured colonial pillared fireplace and broad mantle. Through a gothic type arch a separate dining room can be seen with leaded bay window overlooking the sheltered garden gate. The presence of dignity is apparent even in the kitchen. Well planned, practical, and with the upper half or a dutch door open, greeting hot coffee with a cool summer morning. Both sleepy bedrooms are large and the roomy bath is complementing with its mirror topped vanity.

WANT A SLOUGH
AND A HORRIBLE
4-BEDROOM HOME
4.14 ACRES
You won't like this at all. On top of this home which needs about $4,000 spent on it (probably more) You have to put up with a real eyesore — 4,000 sq. ft. of greenhouse that could possibly rent for $50 per month. They tell me a lot might be subdived from the property (doubtful) and that it could bring $6,500-$7,000. (Definitely too much for a piece of raw wilderness even though it's on city water). Then the slough. Sort of picturesque, with the stagnant waters reflecting tall pines and firs all the way (5 feet) to its peat bogged bottom.

The master bedroom has its own vanity bathroom en suite. There is ample room in the basement for a recreation room. A most beautiful patio extends across the front of the house and the landscaping has been tastefully chosen to complement the overall picture. Lovely green lawn leads down to warm sandy beach and private deck and the outlook is truly magnificent. The full half acre is beautifully treed with Monterey cypress, arbutus and fruit trees. ## WILD ANIMALS TABOO PETS

Well-meaning nature lovers are advised to leave young animals where they find them.

Dr. James Hatter, director of the Fish and Wildlife branch, points out that it is not only illegal but unkind to try to "adopt" young animals that may only appear to be lost and abandoned. In most cases the parent animal has only been temporarily scared off by human intruders.

Separated from the expert care that only the parent can give, the young only rarely survive.

Luxury Boat Launched At Sidney

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

A high-powered giant enters the B.C. cruising fleet today.

The 54-foot Crystal C, every inch a luxury craft, was scheduled to be launched from Philbrook's Boatyard, Sidney, this afternoon.

Designed by Bill Garden for former Victorian, Vancouver businessman Art Christopher, Crystal C boasts twin 375 h.p. Cummins Diesel engines to develop 27 m.p.h. cruising speed, a double-planked, fibreglassed yellow cedar hull, 110-220-volt electrical system, a full-sized refrigerator-freezer, color television and 12-speaker stereo tape recorder.

The radar-quipped bridge deck is enclosed by shatterproof tinted glass to allow 360-degree visibility.

Some observers feel Crystal C is the largest and most luxurious motor cruiser of her type ever built on Vancouver Island.

She has been under construction for a year.

Interior design features teak panelling and green shag carpetting. There are three staterooms and two vanity bathrooms, complete with hot and cold running water and showers. The kitchen features an electric stove and an oil cooking range.

Crystal C carries a fibreglass Boston whaler and 9-foot Davision dinghy as tenders.

Overall lenghty is 53 feet, 10 inches, breadth 16 feet, 6 inches and draft 3 feet, 5 inches.

Change Traffic Signal Sequence

The traffic signal sequence at Government and Humboldt streets will be changed Tuesday.

The new signal sequence is necessary because of increased traffic volumes at Wharf, Humboldt and Government streets, traffic engineer David Campbell said.

'Abandon Unity Election Issue'

Liberal strategy has switched from the unity issue to fiscal responsibility following statements by Conservative leader Stanfield, George Chatterton said Friday.

The Esquimalt-Saanich Conservative candidate told an election meeting that Liberal minister without portfolio Jack Davis led the about-face after Mr. Stanfield's election promises concerning a Newfoundland-Labrador tunnel and guaranteed minimum income.

"It seems they are changing their tune in midstream," Mr. Chatterton said.

Mr. Davis said the Tory leader's proposals will require a substantial tax increase, and local Liberal candidates have taken up the call, Mr. Chatterton said.

The Stanfield promise concerning the tunnel was for "a feasibility study which will cost about $100,000," Mr. Chatterton said.

He said the guaranteed minimum income scheme applies only to the elderly and disabled.

Mr. Chatterton quoted the Tory leader: "Those Canadians who are old or handicapped and cannot work need a decent income. Those who are able to work but do not, need training and the incentive and opportunity to work — and these we shall provide."

He said it is Mr. Stanfield's hope to combine the multiplicity of welfare legislation "into one simple act which everyone will be able to understand."

The fiscal irresponsibility of the Liberals "by overspending $1,250,000,000 in the last years" and fiscal responsibility in the next government are major election issues, Mr. Chatterton said.

Home Service Will Relieve Bed Shortage

The provincial government Friday voted $250,000 to set up home treatment services for patients suffering from chronic kidney ailments.

The service is expected to begin soon in the Victoria and Vancouver areas and involves installation of portable haemodialysis units in patients' homes.

A cabinet order voting the special warrant noted that substantial savings result from freeing hospital beds by using the home units.

Patients require special training to use the units and initially Victoria patients may have to acquire the skill at a training centre to be established in Vancouver, a health department spokesman said.

Another Magistrate To Hear Case

Arraignment of three Ganges men was delayed Friday pending appointment of a new magistrate.

The men were appearing in Ganges magistrate's court following a haircutting incident on Salt Spring Island last weekend.

Defence counsel Jakob de Villiers of Victoria asked Magistrate M. F. Peiler to waive jurisdiction because "you may find it embrrassing because of social venture between you and one of the complainants."

Mr. Peiler said he didn't consider this sufficient grounds to waive jurisdiction "since this is a small community and everyone knows everyone else anyway."

However, RCMP Corporal Fred Rhodes, appearing as crown prosecutor, said he concurred with Mr. de Villiers and asked for a change of magistrate for similar reasons.

Charges arose following complaints of four youths that their hippie-style hair was forcibely cut on the night of May 31 and the morning of June 1.

Police originally charged Brian Percy Beech, John Lawrence Quesnel and Gilbert Moise Marcotte, all of Ganges, and Mervin Douglas Walde of Fulford Harbor with the alleged offence. All are in their 20s.

Careless Drivers

Fined Friday for careless driving were: Ronald O'Brien, 2515 Quadra, racy driving at Douglas and the Trans-Canada Highway Aug. 3, 1967, $40; Dorothy Chattell, 167 Garnet, accident on Tillicum Road April 30, $40; Gregory Baker, 1401 Mount Douglas Cross Road, collision at $35.

Couple Here Loses Son In Vietnam

The 21-year-old son of a Victoria couple was killed May 21 while fighting with the U.S. Army in Vietnam.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester P. Collins, 1150 Rockland, learned this week their son Mark died when a mine exploded while he was serving with the American Fourth Cavalry division.

He had been recommended for the combat infantryman's badge and at least two bronze star medals for valor.

With the rank of specialist four, he interrupted his education at Humboldt State College, Arcata, Calif., to enter the armed forces in January, 1967, and had been in Vietnam since last June.

He had planned to return to college and complete his course in marine geology.

B.C. Ferry Ship Presented With Weather Award

An award for outstanding contribution to weather observation was made Friday to the B.C. Ferry MV Queen of Prince Rupert.

J. A. Lenihan, regional director of air services for the Department of Transport, made the presentation in the presence of Premier Bennett in his office.

Mrs. Tom Parkinson, widow of the late Captain Parkinson, senior master of the ship during 1967, received the "Ship Award" for 1967, an illustrated book on the history of ships. Representatives of the federal Meteorological Office which sponsored the award were also present.

Premier Bennett said the contribution of the ferries to the weather service is another example of the close co-operation which exists today between the federal and provincial governments.

Mr. Lenihan said the captain and crew of the Prince Rupert were responsible for more than 500 accurate observations.

AWASH in 200 varieties of iris he says represent a hobby that got out of hand, Maurice Atkins, 5970 Old West Saanich, surveys late spring blooms on his iris farm. The farm and Mr. Atkin's hybridizing technique are subjects of a 15-minute CBC documentary to be shown on the Bernard Moore Gardening Show, Channel 2, July 28. Mr. Atkins explains that this time of year is best for planting new stock and dividing old plants. "Unfortunately," he said, the show was filmed in black and white.

TIPS FOR HOME GARDENERS

Don't Let Withering Fool You

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

Interest in clematis is increasing every year and questions concerning the culture of these lovely shrubs and climbers are also increasing. Let it be stated right at the start that clematis are easy to grow.

There is no reason why the clematis should not thrive for everyone. For generations it was considered a tricky plant to handle, but that idea has long been dispelled.

It is not a plant to "bung" into a hole and forget, in fact, it is the positioning and planting that determines whether or not the gardener will have success.

The unsuccessful gardener blames clematis wilt disease for his losses. While such a disease does exist, it only attacks one and two year old plants.

Since most clematis offered by the trade are established plants of more than two years, there is no need to be any more concerned than we are with roses.

●

The one habit of the clematis that fools the unwary is the production of a strong shoot early in the spring after planting, and the withering of this shoot in May or June.

However, if the plant is provided with just enough water to keep the roots from drying out, it may put up another growth later in the season, or remain inactive until the following spring when it will grow like a beanstalk.

Hundreds of live and healthy clematis roots have been thrown away by home gardeners because this unorthodox way of getting established was not understood.

Probably some losses are due to the clematis being described as completely hardy.

To many gardeners the term "hardy" is interpreted as meaning "able to take care of itself," when it actually indicates a plant's ability to resist adverse weather.

But most of our troubles in starting clematis in the garden are due to failure in giving that little bit of extra care while the plants are becoming established.

The first consideration is a suitable place, and to locate such a place we must remember we are dealing with a climbing plant.

This brings the question: Why do plants climb? The answer is easy; they climb because of competition for light.

All natural climbers start out under the protection of taller vegetation. This protection seems to be essential for the early months of a seedling climber, but once it has become established it quickly clambers from darkness into light and smothers the protective plants.

Planted beneath a sturdy shrub with evergreen foliage, the clematis finds perfect conditions and will soon display its masses of flowers all over the sunny side of its benefactor.

It will spread upwards or downwards over rocks, scramble along fences or clothe the branchless portion of a conifer trunk. But in all instances it must have its roots protected by other vegetation.

Clematis will succeed on the wall of a building, providing dense shrubs are at its feet if the wall faces east, west, or south. Less shrub growth is needed on a north wall.

While shrubs at the base provide the moist cool soil needed by clematis roots, they also provide incentive to climb.

●

When a natural climber can obtain all the light it needs at soil level, there is no need for it to climb because there is no competition. That is another reason why all climbing plants need shrubs over their roots.

Having found an ideal position, the next step is planting. Clematis are always sold in containers since it would be impossible to lift enough roots from the open ground for the plant to survive.

We remove the plant from its container and set it in a prepared hole, placing the top of the ball of roots at least two inches below soil level. That is the important point in planting; two inches below soil level.

Unfortunately, most gardeners want a lot of plant for their dollar, therefore clematis for sale usually have three to five feet of top growth attached to a bamboo stake.

●

The wise gardener cuts the top growth back to 12 inches before removing the plant from the container. This should be done whenever a Clematis is planted because its job now is to make a large root system to support a large vine.

To expect the plant to make a dozen six-inch flowers and climb halfway up a wall on a canfull of roots is expecting the impossible. It will try very hard to please, but will probably perish in the attempt.

Planting holes for clematis have to be deep and perfectly drained. The roots will be about eight inches deep. Add two inches for buried stem, plus four inches of soil beneath the roots, and two inches of broken pots and bricks for drainage, and you have a hole 16 inches deep.

Break up the subsoil well and add rotted humus to hold it open. Cover this with the two inches of rubble. Mix enough good soil, rotted compost, coarse sand, charcoal and, if you have it, mortar rubble, to fill the remaining 14 inches and place four inches over the drainage material.

Set the plant in place and fill in with the prepared mixture packing it fairly firmly and close to the root ball. Add water from time to time to drive out the air and settle the soil.

Regardless of what type of clematis is planted, cut it back to a leaf node about six inches above soil level in February of the following year. This will encourage one strong lateral shoot, or more, to develop.

When this shoot, or shoots, reach 12 to 16 inches in length, pinch out the growing tip, or tips, to encourage further branching.

Remember, clematis are lime lovers. For this reason they do well planted 24 inches out from a concrete foundation. They will not thrive in soil that is perfect for rhodos, azaleas, and camellias, nor will these acid lovers thrive where a clematis is happy.

He'd Build Communities On Rafts in New Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Huge steel-hulled rafts covering 4½ acres and capable of holding 5,000 dwelling units plus stores and other conveniences are envisaged for Toronto by Buckminster Fuller, creator of the geodesic dome and designer of the American pavilion at Expo 67.

Other ideas include a huge glass-enclosed pyramid containing shops, a transparent enclosure for a major street and self-contained suburban villages.

Mr. Fuller, 73, was retained last February by the Toronto Telegram and CFTO-TV to make a feasibility study of the city and recommend future development of the whole area.

Among suggestions revealed Friday at a news conference were:

- Converting the Canadian Forces Base in north-end Downsview into a redevelopment for an Olympic site and a new site for the Canadian National Exhibition, and turning the present CNE lakeshore site into a research centre for urban studies.
- Building a $75,000,000 crystal pyramid 400 feet high and 800 feet along each side of the base to hold 20 storeys of buildings in south-central Toronto.
- Building a $10,000,000 glass enclosure covering downtown University Avenue from Front Street to the harbor, with pedestrian skywalks connecting the pyramid.
- Constructing the huge rafts and enchoring them behind breakwaters, where they could be towed elsewhere if necessary.
- A huge development along the lakefront with housing developments and marinas.
- Building suburban villages, each with about 5,000 units, called Pro-To Cities, derived from the name of the study, Project Toronto. The vollages, each with 3,500 to 6,500 persons, could be merged into larger communities.

Mr. Fuller said he had not studied traffic or feasibility problems to determine how satisfactory his ideas would be, but that he would be satisfied if his ideas served only as an impetus for future planners.

An aide said the plans were purely conceptual and there had been no intention to work out details.

Mr. Fuller said Toronto was less troubled than any other city he had visited, and this might be a drawback to motivating citizens toward change. He said his ideas, if implemented, would cost about $1,000,000,000 over a 25-year period.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Lawns require watering every 10 days, or according to the measured amount of rainfall in the area.

With young shurbs of deutzia, phildelphus (Mock-orange), tamarix, and the early pink weigela, cut back the wood which bore flowers and remove weak shoots. Old shrubs can have the oldest branches removed at ground level, leaving the newer branches.

Leaves of fall-blooming colchicums may be wilting now. Wait until they become brown before cutting off. These bulbs will bloom again in late August.

Give chrysanthemums first feeding of general garden fertilizer, and be sure the plants do not lack water.

Side shoots of staking varieties of tomatoes should be removed as soon as they form; but no pinching out of any growths is needed with bush or determinate varieties.

Flower buds should be already visible on the earliest kinds of bush tomatoes.

Draw soil away from onions, shalotts and garlic to hasten sizing and ripening. Keep these plants clear of weeds.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q. A clematis with small pink flowers has been flowering for weeks now, and the vine is far too big and heavy. Can I cut it back quite a lot now, or should I leave it until fall?—A.W., Victoria.

A. You probably have a pink Clematis montana which may safely be pruned now after flowering. You can be drastic, although the growth during summer will be considerable.

However, control it as it grows by shortening the long ends and training in the portions needed.

Q. I have a lot of irises which seem unlikely to flower this year. When is the earliest I can dig them for moving? —W., Tillicum.

A. Early July is a good time, if you have the German or Bearded Iris with heavy rhizome rootstocks something like a potato. Discard worn-out pieces, keep new sections, replant in well drained sunny spot. Use only bonemeal as fertilizer, no manure.

ROCKEFELLER NOT AFRAID TO CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK (AP) — Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller, a candidate for the Republican party presidential nomination, said Thursday he has "no fear" and will campaign in his old style among the people.

"If a presidential candidate cannot expose himself to the people," he said, "then we have lost the greatest strength America possesses — the freedom to go out and be with the people."

Rockefeller was assigned 20 Secret Service agents as part of security precautions ordered by President Johnson after Senator Robert F. Kennedy's assassination in Los Angeles.

Canadian Violence 'Matter of Time'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sooner or later a Canadian public figure will be attacked by a deranged person, Liberal minister without portfolio Bryce Mackasey said Thursday.

"Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau has received more mail on the subject of firearms control than on any other.

"You can see it from some of the hate literature coming out of Quebec.

"There is no reason to believe (an attack) just couldn't happen in Canada."

Mackasey, 46, seeking re-election in the Montreal riding of Verdun, said there is a strong lobby operating in Canada against the proposed criminal code amendment on possession of firearms.

He said the lobby in Canada is a spill over from the one now operating in the United States.

Mackasey added that the firearms manufacturers, mostly American companies, have pointed out to distributors the affect proposed changes in the criminal code could mean to sales.

A few sporting gun clubs are also lobbying against changes, he said.

Mackasey said he supports penalties for anyone with criminal records being in possession of firearms. He said he would demand investigation of all people buying guns.

Meanwhile, Roger Regimbal, of Lachute, Quebec, the Conservative party's deputy whip in the last Parliament, proposed an investigation to determine to what extent demonstrations are spontaneous or, as he put it, "orchestrated."

Bandits Gets Coins

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two masked men, one armed, Thursday took a $3,000 coin collection concealed under mattresses in an apartment. The men knocked Maurice Carey, 70, to the floor, and later tied him to a bed with a telephone wire wrenched from the wall.

Space Maker De Luxe

Here's an idea that should fit into almost any informal room in your house, preferably a den if you have one that must double as a guest room from time to time. Instead of using an alcove for furniture pieces, a built-in bunk serves the function of a sofa, and can be used as a bed when need be. The structure is relatively simple, a platform with sliding panels across the front, so that bedding and pillows can be stored conveniently near.

●

An upholstered foam rubber pad cushions the platform, and 12-inch square bolsters at each end are arm rests. A matching bolster across the back would have provided additional comfort and shortened the depth of the seat cushion, but the owners preferred an assortment of small pillows in varied fabrics and colors.

Let us face it. A foam rubber pad does not offer the sleeping quality of a mattress and box springs, but perhaps guests should not become too comfortable and thus prone to linger. However, a mattress and box springs could work into a platform arrangement, simply by lowering the height of the platform. Amount of storage space below would be reduced, of course.

The slim foam rubber pad looks better than the mattress-spring combination, and is easier to handle. Pictures on the wall and the small corner bookshelves enhance the alcove's attractiveness, and a hanging ceiling light fixture provides good illumination for reading.

Camera Theft Leads to Fine

Magistrate Ostler said Peter Holbrook, 41, of 1319½ Broad would have to pay the fine immediately or spend another 30 days in jail.

DREAMS UP IN THE AIR

Pussywillow is enjoying a beautiful dream — at least from a kitten's point of view. What is she dreaming about? To find out, simply draw a line from dot 1 to dot 2, and so on, to dot 15. If an orange crayon is handy, draw line with that. Afterwards color the entire scene appropriately. Add colors neatly, natch.

LITERARY ENIGMA TO PONDER

I'm a strange contradiction:
I'm new and I'm old,
I'm sometimes in tatters and sometimes in gold;
Though I never could read, yet
lettered I'm found;
Though blind, I enlighten,
though free, I am bound.
I'm English, I'm German, I'm French, I'm Greek and Latin, and I'm Dutch;
Some love me to dearly, some slight me too much.
I often die young, though I sometimes live ages,
And no queen is attended by so many pages.
What am I?

Answer: I am a book.

SMART GALLERY

MAGIC TEST WITH BOOKS

When there's a lull at your next party, try this to perk things up:

Select six books or magazines; place them on the floor. Announce to guests that when you have left the room you would like someone to select one of the books. You will identify it immediately upon your return.

You can do it, too. For you have arranged to have a confederate. When you place the books on the floor, place them in the form of a human face — two on top for eyes, one in the centre for a nose, one to each side of the nose as ears, and one at the bottom for a mouth. The confederate signals by touching whichever part of the face corresponds to the selected book.

The performer notes his signal, of course, and has a ready answer.

Pass white light through a prism and a rainbow of colors appears. Here is a simple demonstration of this process in reverse. Trace and cut the disc above from cardboard (use a compass or bowl to make a larger circle, if you prefer). Then pierce the disc at its centre. Now divide the disc into six equal segments and color one red and the others green, yellow, orange, blue and violet, as indicated. Fit the wheel atop a sharp pencil. Here is where you get a surprise: Spin the disc and see what happens.

JUDGE MEN OVER 40?

Four brothers' ages total 224 years. Albert's age plus Bradley's age totals 92. Bradley's age plus Charles' age totals 112. Charles' plus Dan's is 132. If Dan is 30 years older than Albert, what is the age of each?

Answers: Albert, 41; Bradley, 51; Charles, 61; Daniel, 71.

CHIP DOWN CHECKER TEST

White can win this contest in six moves if he plays wisely. White side, moving up the board, has first turn. Can you deduce the winning plays?

Hint: Black is first to gain a king.

Solution: White 31-27, Black 24-31, White 22-17, Black 31-22, White 18-9, Black 22-13, White 6-1, Black 13-6, White 1-10-3-12-19.

PETE MAFFEO
. . . "Mr. Nanaimo"

Dedicated His Life to Serving His Community

NANAIMO — Peter Maffeo, OBE, 11 years mayor of Nanaimo whose life was described as one of service to humanity, died Friday in Nanaimo General Hospital. He was 71.

Born here, Pete Maffeo was orphaned at nine. In later years he battled for civic parks and recreation facilities for young people and directed city track and field meets for 25 years.

He died in his sleep after being in hospital for three weeks. His wife Vera and daughter Joyce, Mrs. James Huff of St. Catharines, Ont., were at his side.

First elected mayor in a 1956 landslide victory, he was unopposed in seeking the office until his retirement in 1967.

Frank Ney, his successor as mayor, said:

"The hearts of the citizens of Nanaimo tonight express sorrow and anguish. Service to humanity is the greatest work in life. Such a man was Pete Maffeo."

Mr. Maffeo's business, Davenport Ice Cream, was located on Prideaux Street, the street where he was born.

During the war he served with the 6th Field Canadian Engineers and on his return started the Davenport Cafe.

Mr. Maffeo received the Order of the British Empire for civil defence work during the Second World War.

Much of his effort was directed to helping elderly persons and the Nanaimo health centre auditorium was named in his honor.

His work was largely responsible for construction of Nanaimo city hall. He was named to the Nanaimo harbor commission upon retiring as mayor.

Long involved with sport, Mr. Maffeo suffered a near-fatal head injury in a 1965 fall while curling at Courtenay. Despite continuing discomfort caused by the injury, he maintained his civic functions.

Mr. Ney said the former mayor "dedicated his life to the community of Nanaimo. He served our city and will go down in history as one of its great citizens."

The funeral will be in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Thursday, at 2 p.m. Burial will be in Nanaimo cemetery.

Mayor Fred Bishop of Port Alberni said of Mr. Maffeo:

"If anyone ever earned the title of Mr. Nanaimo, he did. He spent all his life working for the young people and was always working on some project for the betterment of the city."

Mr. Maffeo's love of sport and feeling for humanity resulted in a long-time friendship with the Harlem Globetrotters Basketball team that grew out of the mayor's refusal to countenance racial discrimination.

When the celebrated Negro team first toured the province in the 30s, prejudice often made it impossible for them to rent accommodation.

Mr. Maffeo and his wife threw open their home to the team, fed them and gave them a place to sleep. The Globetrotters continued to visit the Maffeo home during tours and members frequently stayed there.

A veteran Gyro Club member and member of Doric Lodge 18, AF and AM, Mr. Maffeo was diligent in assisting other local service clubs.

Funeral arrangements are by the Westwood Chapel of Flowers.

Long Walk For Youth

Wayne Lofthouse, 2815 Spring, was sentenced to a further seven days after he pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by being drunk at Yates and Douglas May 22.

DUNCAN MEETING

All Parties Cheer As Heckler Hushed

DUNCAN — A solid block of Liberal supporters were the only ones to interrupt their candidate with cheering at an all-party meeting here Friday night.

Cowichan Liberal candidate Mladin Zorkin was applauded when he declared anyone preaching isolationism, either at the provincial or international level was blind.

This was the only reference to the constitutional issue.

Mr. Zorkin drew cheers from the entire audience of some 300 when he crushed a heckler who asked: "Can you trust a Frenchman to lead us in Parliament?"

'PIPELINE SELLOUT'

Heckler Dee Shoolingin criticised former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent for what he called the "pipeline sellout."

Mr. Zorkin, speaking in French, asked Mr. Shoolingin if he wanted his answer in French or English.

The questioner replied in French that although Canada is a bilingual country, B.C. was English speaking.

The audience was enjoying the exchange and Mr. Zorkin, in English, said, "You tell us in French you can't trust a Frenchman."

Mr. Shoolingin left the hall.

Tory candidate Jeff Brock said the Liberals were not giving the country leadership. While asking the people to tighten their economic belts the government was increasing its own expenditure by $400 million.

750,000 HOMES

Mr. Brock said just one aspect of our problem is the need for 750,000 new homes by 1970.

He said, "There is no realistic way in which we can manage it."

Mr. Brock advocated establishing a fund from which the federal government could encourage provinces and municipalities, where they foresee urban growth, to provide land banks with services and pass it on to the people at reasonable cost.

He repeated the Tory platform or removing the 11 per cent sales tax on building materials and freeing Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to find Borrowing money in the open market.

Mr. Zorkin said the Liberals were the only party not making rash promises of taxation cuts at a time when government must concentrate on a balanced budget.

He attacked Mr. Brock for not knowing that the NHA Act has for 10 years provided for land bank purchase and the elimination of land speculators.

Mr. Cameron quoted a Montreal Stock Exchange official as saying Canada cannot allow savings to continue to pour into United States' investments.

He said this was the reason for capital shortage and the NDP advocates exchange control to keep capital funds at home.

Pressing the NDP program for a capital gains tax, Mr. Cameron said, "Canada is the only industrialized western nation which hasn't got a capital gains tax and neither the Tory or Liberal parties will do anything to put taxation where it should be."

SAME ARGUMENT

Social Credit candidate Lorne Lee followed the same line and said the main issue of the election is "putting the tax load where it belongs."

He said, "The actions of the two old parties make me sick and they are forgetting the working man in trying to defeat each other.

"In the present political atmosphere we are in danger of sinking further into the economic swamp."

Board Eyes Staff Cuts To Live Within Budget

DUNCAN — Cowichan District Hospital may have to face a cut in staff.

Board members and administrator Ken Noton are to meet B.C. Hospital Insurance Service officials next week.

BCHIS has expressed concern at Cowichan hospital expenses running in excess of budget predictions.

Mr. Noton said Friday: "We are going through each department with a fine tooth-comb to ensure that no unnecessary expense is incurred.

"We are taking a particular look at the staffing situation as it accounts for 75 per cent of our total expenditure."

Mr. Noton said drug and medicine costs at the hospital are running at a figure regarded as above normal by BCHIS.

He said: "We are analysing our figures now and trying to find out why we are higher than other hospitals in the province.

"We are going to do everything we can to make sure there is no wastage on any item."

Mr. Noton said Cowichan hospital's electrical costs are above the estimate made by the consultant before the hospital officially opened in September last year.

The administrator said the board is unable to pay a tax bill of $6,073 received from city hall in respect of the former King's Daughters' Hospital building.

The former hospital is empty.

Mr. Noton said: "The board just doesn't have the money and BCHIS will not contribute to anything which is not a direct operating cost.

"This tax bill has become a community problem and I don't know how it can be settled."

Mr. Noton reported that practical nurses, maintenance, administrative, dietary and laundry staff at the hospital have received a 9 per cent wage award.

The award to the hospital employees' union members is 9 per cent or $28 a month whichever is the highest with a further 7 per cent or $24 in 1969.

Mr. Noton said staff in Island hospitals will probably be receiving an additional 4 per-cent on their present wages to bring them to parity with their counterparts on the mainland.

Medals-Cash Won By Indian Pupils

Five outstanding Indian students from lower Vancouver Island have been named winners of medals and cash prizes, a legacy from public generosity a year ago.

The awards come from interest earned on the surplus collected to send the Kuper Island fife and drum band to Expo.

Winners are Douglas Underwood from Saanichton school, Patricia Margaret Williams from Queen of Angels school at Duncan, Lorraine Thomas from St. Jospeh's school, Chemainus, Karen White of Quennel school at Nanaimo and James Frances Charlie of the Kuper Island residential school.

Each will received an engraved medal, $10 in cash and $35 in a bank account. All are Grade 7 students.

About $5,000 is being held in a trust fund and annual awards will be made from the interest it earns. Winners are chosen on the basis of all-round activity, including sports ability, leadership, special interests and academic record.

Grants Approved

Grants of $50,000 to the Mount Benson Senior Citizens Housing Society of Nanaimo and $35,300 to the Ladysmith Senior Citizens Housing Society were among $341,000 in grants to senior citizens housing projects approved by the provincial government as its 30 per cent share of the capital cost of the projects.

Accused King Assassin Caught

Last Kennedy Rites Seen By Multitude

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator Robert F. Kennedy, eulogized by the last Kennedy son, Senator Edward M. Kennedy, as a man who "gave us strength in time of trouble," began a sombre journey today to a final resting place in Washington's National Cemetery near his brother, also the victim of an assassin.

The flag-draped coffin, put into a hearse after a funeral mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral, was taken to Pennsylvania Station and borne in a black-draped train to Washington.

As the cortege passed slowly through the hot streets of New York, many thousands stood by—a sad, silent reminder of the wildly cheering crowds that had surged about Robert in a drive for the presidency ended so abruptly by an assassin's bullet Wednesday.

The widow, Ethel, dressed in black and wearing a black veil, was seldom far from the coffin during the day. She had been near it since Kennedy, 42, died in Los Angeles Thursday.

President Johnson, four men seeking that office, world and national figures—including Canada's Lester Pearson—gathered in the splendor of St. Patrick's for the solemn requiem.

The widow, her eyes almost unblinking, moved her lips silently, as though in prayer. President Johnson listened intently to the 10-minute eulogy.

As the funeral mass was ending, the FBI in Washington announced that James Earl Ray had been arrested in London in connection with the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. The widow of the civil rights leader was among the mourners.

Funeral Train Takes Thousand

The funeral cortege moved slowly to Pennsylvania Station. There, a 21-car train took the body and about 1,000 persons to Washington.

Edward Kennedy said the late senator from New York wanted to express "real love" toward his fellow man. He quoted his brother as saying that "real love is something unselfish and involves sacrifice in giving."

Robert was slain as he sought the U.S. presidency once held by his assassinated brother, John F. Kennedy. An older brother, Joseph Jr., died in the Second World War.

Earlier, the police search of persons entering the cathedral turned up a man with a gun. He attempted to enter through the huge bronze doors at the front about 15 minutes before President Johnson arrived.

Archbishop Terence J. Cooke, chief celebrant of the funeral mass, told the 2,100 mourners: "We are all together in our bewilderment and grief in these days. Words are such inadequate messagers of consolation at this time."

Cathedral Service Amplified

Loudspeakers mounted in the leafy maple trees on either side of the cathedral carried the church service to the many thousands standing in the sultry heat across Fifth Ave.

"Our sense of shame and discouragement tears alone will not wash away," Archbishop Cooke said. "Somehow by the grace of God, and with the strength that still lies deep within the soul of America, we must find the courage to take up again the laborious work to which Senator Kennedy devoted all his energies: the building of a great and honorable nation.

"Especially in this hour, we must keep faith with America and her destiny and we must not forsake our trust in one another."

Archbishop Cooke said:

"Gifted by nature to a rare degree, he might have sought a life less arduous, a manner of life that left more time for personal interest and for the enjoyment of the wonderful family with which God blessed him.

"Instead, he chose the broader, more demanding challenge of public service, seeing it as an opportunity to build a better world for all his fellowmen. He died in the course of that service."

John's Widow Kneels Before Casket

Before the service Mrs. John F. Kennedy, widow of the assassinated president and sister-in-law of the senator, knelt by the coffin before taking her seat. She was accompanied by her children, John Jr. and Caroline.

After the offertory of the mass, Leonard Bernstein led 30 members of the New York Philharmonic in a movement from Gustav Mahler's Fifth Symphony, a solemn, flowing piece that echoed in the far corners of the massive cathedral.

As the orchestra played, the Kennedy children went slowly to the altar and one by one handed wine and wafers to the archbishop.

Archbishop Cooke, with the other concelebrants of the mass, consecrated the bread and wine, raising the host and then the chalice for all to worship.

Cooke administered the Holy Communion to the sons and nephews of Senator Kennedy, who served as altar boys.

Then the widow, dressed starkly in black, her solemn face veiled, and other members of the Kennedy family approached the altar for the Communion.

Shipyard Deal Involves 1,000 Quebec Workers

QUEBEC (CP) — The provincial government has threatened to pass legislation to save the jobs of 1,000 shipyard workers involved unwittingly in a complex skein of business deals and contractual problems.

Premier Daniel Johnson told officials of the shipworkers union Friday night he will ask the federal government to transfer a ship-repairing contract from a firm which has been taken over by another.

Davie Shipbuilding Co. of nearby Lauzon, had contracted to effect repairs on the ship New Liskeard. But the shipyard was purchased recently by George T. Davie and Sons Ltd., which has decided to close down the yard and lay off today 1,000 employees.

Mr. Johnson said he was to recommend today in a telegram to Industry Minister Drury that the contract be transferred to George T. Davie and Sons Ltd. and the work be continued.

He said his government was prepared to pass legislation postponing completion of the shipyard sale to enable the contract transfer to take place.

The union, affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions, said Friday night Mr. Johnson appeared to have accepted the situation the ship would not be repaired because of the sale of the yard.

The premier, however, has said Davie Shipbuilding Co. is legally bound to accept the contract under the terms of agreements it had with the union.

About 50 union members have encamped on an adjacent federal government pier to protest the layoffs.

EX-FRENCH PREMIER ENDS SIX-YEAR EXILE

BIDAULT
. . . charges to be dropped

PARIS (AP) — Former premier George Bidault, 68, who broke with President de Gaulle on the issue of Algerian independence, returned to France today after six years of exile. A prosecutor indicated that long-standing charges of subversive activity against him would be dropped.

Bidault's return apparently was preceded by secret negotiations with French judicial authorities. He passed into France from Belgium accompanied by three lawyers, and was met at the frontier by police. He disappeared from France in April, 1962, and had since lived in Brazil and Belgium.

French Crisis Worsens Again

PARIS (CP) — The lingering French social and political crisis today looked likely to flare again only hours after a radio and television broadcast by President de Gaulle.

The president, in a recorded interview Friday night, dismissed both capitalism and communism in favor of his concept of participation as the cure to rebellion by both workers and students.

He also warned the French people that the republic and freedom itself were at stake in general elections this month.

But even as he spoke, bands of workers and students rampaged through the countryside near Paris, setting up barricades across roads, setting fire to haystacks and fighting a running battle with police.

And in a move likely to paralyse most mail deliveries into the capital, post office workers at all but one of the Paris railway stations decided to go on strike again.

Labor and opposition political leaders used epithets ranging from "hollow" to "outrageous" to denounce the reform plan de Gaulle proposed as better than capitalism or communism.

Thousands of French auto and metallurgy workers were preparing to go back to their jobs at substantially higher wages won in the general strike that paralysed France.

Sirhan Hears Murder Charge Read in Court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan was arraigned Friday on a charge of murdering Senator Robert F. Kennedy in a hearing held behind by an unprecedented wall of security.

Sirhan, 24, calm and composed, sat Friday in the chapel of Los Angeles County men's jail as a deputy district attorney read the murder indictment, returned 62 minutes earlier by the county grand jury.

And in the same central jail building a woman was arrested Friday night on suspicion of smuggling guns to a prisoner.

Edyth Grant, 55, was booked after sheriff's officers said they discovered three handguns in a typewriter she was taking to another prisoner's cell.

A sheriff's officer said a .22-calibre Derringer pistol, a .32-calibre revolver and a 6.35-millimetre automatic were found.

The typewriter had been authorized for the prisoner, quartered in a separate wing from Sirhan's isolated cell, the officer said, and it was that prisoner, not Sirhan, to whom she was suspected of smuggling the guns.

The indictment against Sirhan said the slight, olive-complexioned native of Jordan did "wilfully, unlawfully, feloniously and with malice aforethought murder Robert Francis Kennedy."

ENTERS PLEA JUNE 28

The judge ordered Sirhan to return to court June 28 to enter a plea and agreed to a defence request that he be examined by two psychiatrists before that date.

Superior Court Judge Arthur L. Alarcon, using the chapel altar as a temporary court bench, spelled out for Sirhan his constitutional right to a fair speedy trial.

Then, Alarcon ordered all police, lawyers, court officials and witnesses to say nothing about the case or release any evidence that might in any way jeopardize Sirhan's right to a fair trial.

Any violation, he warned, will result in "swift action" in the form of a contempt of court citation.

Scotland Yard Gets U.S. Man

A spokesman for Scotland Yard said Ray was arrested at London's Heathrow Airport and was being held at Cannon Row police station in central London.

RAY (Galt)
. . . Canada passport

Announcement of Ray's arrest, while carring two Canadian passports and a loaded gun, was made here after the arrest was disclosed in Washington by the FBI and the attorney-general's office.

Ray was charged under the name of Ramon George Sneyd, the name on the passports, with possession of a firearm without certificate and possession of a forged passport.

He was picked up as he was about to embark on a flight for Brussels, with the FBI, the RCMP and Scotland Yard cooperating.

The passport descrition said Sneyd was 35 years old, born in Toronto, unemployed and had no fixed address.

CAUGHT AT AIRPORT

Ray also known as Eric Starvo Galt, was reported to have been arrested at Heathrow Airport as he was going through immigration procedures on arrival from Lisbon, Portugal.

Ray had been sought since shortly after the Nobel Peace Prize winner and civil rights leader was gunned down April 4 in Memphis, Tenn.

The announcement in Washington was issued under the names of Attorney-General Ramsey Clark and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover but neither was present when it was given to reporters at the justice department. Other FBI officials declined to elaborate on it or answer questions.

The Washington announcement said Ray was passing through England en route to Brussels when taken into custody at 11:15 p.m. London time. It said he was being held under maximum security conditions and extradition proceedings would be started shortly.

It was not explained how Ray, previously described as poor, obtained the money to travel to Europe. There has been speculation King's murderer obtained aid from conspirators and even might have been a paid assasin.

RIOTS BEGAN

King's killing sparked racial riots in more than 100 U.S. cities and came as he was organizing the Poor People's Campaign — an attempt to push the U.S. government to greater efforts on behalf of the nation's poor.

U.S. state department officials said they expect a formal request to be made by Britain for return of Ray through the U.S.-British extradition treaty. They said murder is one of the crimes included in the treaty.

The officials expect Tennessee, the state where a murder indictment was returned against Ray, to initiate the proceedings. This in turn would probably be the basis for the U.S. government's request, they said.

Ray Stayed In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—James Earl Ray, arrested in London in connection with the April 4 assassination of Martin Luther King, lived in Toronto for a month, the RCMP said today.

An RCMP spokesman said the suspect lived in two rooming houses here from April 8 until May 6. He said Ray boarded a BOAC plane from Toronto May 6 for London.

The spokesman said RCMP here started investigations after word from Ottawa headquarters that a picture of a man resembling Ray turned up in an exhaustive check of passport files.

A clerk in a travel agency here said Ray booked a reservation May 6 to fly direct to Lon-

The two-hour debate starting at 6 p.m. PDT will be carried by the CTV, all TV and radio networks of the CBC and a number of non-network stations.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Brokers Expect Summer Rally

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An unexpected surge swept through Canadian stock exchanges in the last two days of the week, carrying prices to their best levels since May 16.

To brokers' surprise, the shooting of Sen. Robert Kennedy made only a mild dent in the market Wednesday and his actual death the following day failed to keep prices down.

Earlier in the week, Canada's markets were sluggish in contrast to the strong advance in New York. However, the upward trend eventually caught on.

Analysts said institutional funds were the main source of strength. They believe this is the factor which has overridden both tragedy and unfavorable economic news.

The major funds are extremely anxious to invest a higher proportion of their huge cash reserves before presenting half-yearly reports to stockholders.

Exactly a month ago, when the market had no support to lean on, rumors of mysterious Russian troop movements in Poland hit prices four times as hard as Wednesday's shooting.

Looking at the economic horizon, brokers were depressed by news from Washington that the vote on the income tax-spending cut bill has been put off until June 19.

There was also more talk of another sterling devaluation and renewed fears for the future of all major currencies.

On the brighter side, Stephen Handfield-Jones, Canada's director of the International Monetary Fund, said Monday he thought that "paper gold" — the new form of international money based on Special Drawing Rights from the IMF — could be in operation by early next year.

He told the Canadian Institute of International Affairs that this should restore confidence in exchange rates and the value of money.

Both the U.S. Senate and the IMF's 107-nation board voted in favor of the plan this week.

Optimistic brokers are now looking forward to a strong summer rally, with the indexes rising steadily through June, July and August. They feel this should be the seasonal pattern if no foreign crisis interferes.

U.S. Boosts Margin Scale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board, moving to slow speculation in stocks, now requires that persons buying stocks and convertible bonds on credit make bigger down payments.

The board raised the down payment to 80 per cent of the purchase price on stocks and 60 per cent on bonds which can later be converted into stocks. The action was announced Friday.

The old margin requirements were 70 per cent on stocks and 50 per cent on bonds.

Although the new requirements went into effect today, the first practical effects will come Monday when the stock exchanges reopen.

Eaton Officials In Visit to City

A member of Canada's most famous merchandising family made his first visit to Victoria this week in company with officers of the Eaton store chain.

It was an informal trip, in which the company held a reception for about 140 Victoria businessmen at the Empress Hotel.

A spokesman said Alan Y. Eaton, director; G. D. Wotherspoon, vice-president, and C. M. Beatty, secretary, all of Toronto, were here for the first time and wanted to meet a representative group from the business community.

Also in the party were first vice-president David Kinnear, formerly director of the store's Pacific region in Vancouver, and director F. E. West, of Vancouver.

Display Intrigues U.K. Commissioner

A British fibreglass car which can accelerate from zero to 100 miles an hour in 24 seconds caught the eye of Sir Henry Lintott, British high commissioner to Canada, Thursday.

"It should do well on your wide Canadian freeways," said Sir Henry during his tour of the $1,000,000 British Festival of Arts at the Hudson's Bay store.

"It is safer because in the event of a collision the fibreglass breaks up around the passengers," a spokesman for the B.C. agents said.

The low-slung, yellow-painted sports model is said to run 30 miles to the gallon.

"I declare this festival open," he said.

"At The Bay we are proud of our British accents."

"You must have a variety of them," he told store manager J. H. McKay.

He toured the exhibition with Acting Mayor Cecil Parrott, Cr. Mrs. Frances Elford of Oak Bay; John Saunders, principal British trade commissioner in B.C., and Mr. McKay.

Sir Henry and Lady Lintott were guests of Mr. McKay at luncheon in the Union Club before leaving for Vancouver.

Today Sir Henry will speak on Canada and Britain In An Age of Change at a meeting of the Men's Canadian Club in Hotel Vancouver.

DE HAVILLAND TWIN OTTERS

$40 Million Canadian Plane Order

TORONTO (CP) — De Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. has announced the signing Friday in Reading, Pa., of an agreement with Miami Aviation Corp. for its largest single order of Twin Otter aircraft to date.

Miami Aviation, which distributes, sells and leases aircraft will pay an estimated $40,000,000 for 100 Twin Otters over the next 2½ years.

Miami Aviation had already bought 30 Twin Otters for delivery up to the end of 1968.

Mr. Hart said his company probably will sell most of the aircraft to commuter airlines to provide fast service from major airports to smaller ones.

Twin Otters are especially designed for small airfields. They land and take off in distances of less than 1,000 feet.

Bond Market Displays Strength

TORONTO (CP) — In the face of a new $500,000,000 issue by the government at the start of the week, the Canadian bond market surprised most brokers and closed stronger.

Brokers had thought the new issue might not be absorbed by the market but Prime Minister Trudeau revealed Wednesday the issue had been oversold. The government needed $420,000,000 to redeem an issue maturing June 15 and now has this plus an extra $100,000,000.

Of the three maturities issued, one closed higher, one closed at the offering price and one closed lower. The 6¾-per-cent July 1, 1969 issue, picked up 10 cents to 99.85, the seven-per-cent Oct. 1, 1970 issue, closed at 99.75, its offering price, and the seven per-cent June 15, 1974 issue, slipped 13 cents to 98.62.

In other long — and short-term Canadas, the 4½-per-cent Sept. 1, 1983 issue, rose one to 77¼ bid and 78¼ asked, the 5¾-per-cent Sept. 1, 1992 issue, three-quarters to 88¾ bid and 89¾ asked, the 4¼-per-cent Sept. 1, 1972 issue, 75 cents to 89.50 bid and 90.50 asked and five-per-cent Oct. 1, 1973 issue, 50 cents to 89.75 bid and 90.50 asked.

Arthur Mayse

If there is one thing no gardener can abide, it is a plot of earth in which nothing has been planted. It offends his eye or hers. Sooner or later, he, she or both will conspire to plunk something into it, and thus increase their labors.

We have just such a patch at our place, left bare when we cleaned up the mess the ivy that came to earth last winter along with the clothesline pole around which it twined in a yard-thick mass. The space isn't large . . . maybe four paces one way and six the other . . . but it irritates us, and lately we have taken to studying it where it lies flanked by somewhat tousled rose bushes.

The other evening we downed tools after a spell of lawn work and strolled across to it.

"Well," I said, "there's nothing to stop us putting some more rose bushes there."

"Yes, I suppose we could," Win agreed, without noticeable enthusiasm.

★

I reacted for several minutes. Nobody planted vegetables in a rose garden, even if it did happen to be around back. Anyway, it was too late in the season. And besides, hadn't we decided years ago that growing your own simply wasn't worth the bother.

Remember the weeding? And the watering? And the carrot-fly, the cutworm and the aphids?

Surely we didn't want to go through all that again?

This until I began to repeat myself, and finally stopped for lack of breath.

"I know," Win said. "But this wouldn't be a big garden." She traced a row with the points of her lawn clippers. "We could put carrots here. Remember how nice those tender young carrots were with butter? I suppose it's a little late but we could set tomato plants back by the fence, and dwarf peas . . ."

Such enticements were hard to resist.

I said grudgingly, "If we do, I want a row of potatoes and another of leaf lettuce."

"Yes, and I especially want some green beans.

"We'll pick 'em young," I abetted her. "How about radishes? We ought to have them too."

★

The pheasant had finally settled himself, and twilight was deepening. So we went indoors, still planning how best to utilize that tablecloth-sized patch.

I'd spade it next evening, and since no time was to be lost, we'd better get our seeds without delay. To the list we added a row of beets for pickling, and a couple of well-started cucumber plants.

"What we can do," Win pointed out, "is move those two lower rosebushes up with the others. That will give us a little more space. We might even manage head lettuce and leaf lettuce both."

And so we might. We thought about the midget garden for a while, then, without saying anything, Win hunted up a pencil and a sheet of paper.

Somehow or other, we had managed to acquire a surprising number of rows.

"What we've done," she announced, "is to just about duplicate the big garden we used to have. I'll give up the head lettuce if you'll knock out the cucumbers. And how about the beets?"

"Scratch them and the potatoes," I said, grateful that we'd escaped the trap in time. After all, says the wise old saw, a fellow should plant only as much as his wife can tend.

There matters stand. We plant tomorrow, and with luck and a warm summer, we hope for a crop before Christmas!

★★★BITTERMAN FUNERAL MONDAY

'Miracle How Well She Is Taking It'

By DON VIPOND

Relatives of Ernest Bitterman began a sad task today — deciding who will care for the sole survivor of the family wiped out in a landslide Wednesday.

Object of their attention is six-year-old Janet Bitterman who was thrown clear of the car in which her parents and two sisters died.

"She's fairly fully aware. She knows her folks are gone," Rev. Frank Funk, an uncle from Kelowna, said today.

★ ★ ★

Janet suffered only scrapes and bruises in the tragedy near Revelstoke. Killed instantly when the slide swept their car from the highway were Mr. Bitterman, a grocery warehouseman, his wife Annette and daughters Terri-Lynn, 4, and Sandra Lee, 2.

The mountain slide was over half a mile long, 600 feet wide and up to 20 feet deep. It drove the car 50 feet off the highway and down an embankment, demolishing it.

★ ★ ★

Two further slides followed it later Wednesday. Rescuers blamed a cloudburst in the mountains for loosening the piles of mud and rocks.

Highway workers, using bulldozers and dynamite, opened a single lane for traffic Friday.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Funk took Janet to his home after her day's stay in hospital.

"My mummy's up in heaven, isn't she?" Janet asked along the way.

"The further we got from where it happened the more she thought about it," said her uncle. "She was crying over the last hundred miles or so."

Rev. and Mrs. Funk brought Janet to her grandparents' home in Victoria Friday night, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Leland of 3105 Yew. The family talked things over today.

★ ★ ★

One thing that has helped the little girl adjust has been her utter preoccupation with seven-month-old Kevin, son of the Funks.

She played with him constantly since the accident, said Mr. Funk.

Funeral services for the four members of the family will be held Monday afternoon with McCall Bros. in charge.

National Unity His Main Theme In Wooing Vote

By ERIC MAURICE

Calm, cool and collected—and concerned.

The time is critical, and if we can't solve the unity problem, there may not be any Canada left to solve the other issues, he said in a Times interview.

What about the candidates? Why are they running? What do they stand for? What are their objectives?

Mr. Anderson, who comes from an old Victoria family, is an imposing figure with an imposing record in the external affairs department since he graduated from the UBC law school. He served as legal adviser to the Canadian Commission in Vietnam and for three years as assistant trade commissioner in Hong Kong, where he learned to speak Chinese. He is fluent in French.

He was a member of the UBC silver medal-winning rowing crew in the 1960 Rome Olympics.

Mr. Anderson said national unity is critical this year because the continuing nature of Confederation is a primary national problem.

The Conservatives in their espousal of special status for Quebec are standing for some pretty fundamental constitutional changes without really saying so, he said, but nobody really knows how the Conservatives intend to interpret the term.

"The whole country is waiting to know what it means."

If the Conservatives don't explain exactly what they mean by special status, they will have failed to put across a viable national policy. If this happens, the Liberals will win about 160 seats, Mr. Anderson predicted.

The Liberals have a record of a "flexible, sympathetic approach" to the difficult questions of federalism, he said.

"We need flexible men who have a clear grasp of what a federal state consists of."

They must be responsive to the legitimate expectations of any province on the basis of provincial rights set out in Section 92 of the British North American Act, he said.

'Through Flexible Agreements'

The Liberal policy is to allow provinces to deal with matters legitimately of their concern through flexible over-all international agreements, "preserving the federal government's ability to deal with matters specifically of its concern," he said.

Under this arrangement, legitimate provincial undertakings with other countries can be made except where they are contrary to the international policies of the federal government, such as trade with Rhodesia, Mr. Anderson said.

When the Conservatives took in Marcel Faribault as a federal candidate, they lined themselves up behind the Quebec policy which initiated the Gabon feud, he said.

(Mr. Faribault is the constitutional adviser who recommended to Quebec Premier Johnson that Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal represent Quebec at an education conference for sovereign French-language states in Gabon, thus precipitating the severing of Canadian diplomatic relations with that country.)

Economics and housing will be important issues once the unity question is satisfactorily resolved, Mr. Anderson said.

All Western economies — not merely Canada's — are geared to the United States, he said. Therefore, Canada must work out a system to make best use of American money and technology without adopting the "inferior" American social structure.

David Anderson both sees and personifies a new political "concern and awareness."

"We now realize that political parties are nothing more than the people who make them up."

This firm conviction of the need for important decisions to be made by competent legislators has drawn him into politics.

He has the knowledge, background and innate political sense to make a dynamic contribution to the political process, but he must first displace a solidly entrenched incumbent, and that, as Mr. Anderson himself readily concedes, "will be an uphill struggle."

Ask The Times

Q. Where may I obtain tourist information on Montana State? J.S.

A. Information on the various states may be obtained by writing to the Chamber of Commerce at the capital city of the state in which you are interested. The capital of Montana is Helena.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Tuneful Welcome To New Home

Major-General Pearkes leaves his post at the end of the month and he and his wife will take up permanent residence in their home at 1268 Tattersall Drive.

So neighbors got together for a surprise tribute and welcome this afternoon. The Gordon Head Junior High School band led the march to the Pearkes' house for a brief program of music and singing.

The Pearkes were presented with a certificate for an "Instant Dogwood Tree" as a reminder of the occasion.

AWARDED the Robert Forsyth Prize in surgery at McGill University's school of medicine is Dr. Frank Victor Buffam, son of Dr. and Mrs. G. B. B. Buffam of 2855 Beach Drive. He headed his class at Oak Bay Junior Secondary School and won a Governor-General's medal while earning a science degree at McGill.

Separate State 'Now' Permitted

Due to a misprint in Friday's Times, Bishop Remi De Roo was quoted as saying that a conservative group (in the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary) is "NOT permitted to function as a separate community."

He actually said "is NOW permitted."

Whoop-de-Doo Set For National Leaders

By PETE LOUDON

Liberal and Conservative campaigners today are thrashing out plans for the Victoria visits of their two national leaders June 13 and 17.

Both are counting on crowds in excess of 8,000. Both plan triumphant cavalcades through the city. Bands and cheering squads and unrestricted political whoop-de-doo are on programs.

Tentative plans are for use of the south slope of Beacon Hill with the prime minister addressing thousands of local voters seated on blankets, shooting sticks and portable deck chairs.

Also in the planning are a dramatic arrival by Mr. Trudeau in a helicopter, a post-rally cavalcade to Victoria airport with the PM in an open convertible, and a rousing send-off in the form of another crowded gathering there.

Arrangements are in the hands of the provincial campaign office at Vancouver and B.C. Liberal Association president George Van Roggen today said he would release no plans until the full program is fully set — probably not until Monday.

City approval of the use of the park is expected to be obtained early Monday.

ARENA BOOKED

Victoria and Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal campaigners had originally intended using Memorial Arena which can seat 8,000 for the Trudeau rally. But Mr. Trudeau's itinerary was changed and the Arena already was booked by a circus during the only date he could be here.

An open air meeting seemed a logical alternative. But if weather interferes with this plan, the alternatives are grim. About the best is Esquimalt Arena — where there are 1,600 seats, room for 1,000 to stand and room for another 2,000 seats on the arena floor — a total capacity of 4,600.

The Conservative rally will end a long day of campaigning for national leader Robert Stanfield. He will arrive on the Island at Nanaimo at 10:30 a.m. on Thursday, attend a lunch and reception, then fly to Comox and Courtenay.

He arrives at Victoria airport at 5 p.m. and will be driven immediately to Empress Hotel where a quiet reception will precede the 8:30 p.m. rally at Memorial Arena.

Doors at the arena will open an hour early and the only seats reserved will be for buses from up-Island points. There will be a band and singing group in attendance.

Mr. Stanfield will be present for only one hour before leaving either for the hotel or a brief radio hot line appearance.

His travels through the city will be in an open convertible with an escort of horn-tooting campaigners. He will stay here overnight and leaves Empress Hotel for the airport at 8 a.m. Friday.

Plans are still incomplete for the NDP major rally of the campaign, Sunday, June 23 when national leader T. C. Douglas will be presented with a similar flourish at Memorial Arena.

17 DAYS TO GO

Socred Support 'Uncommitted'

Victoria Social Credit members are free to support any local federal election candidate they desire.

President of the federal Socred association, Victor Smith said today, "When we decided not to run a candidate we left our members free to vote as they please.

"We are not backing (Eric) Charman (Victoria Conservative candidate) or anyone else."

Mr. Smith was commenting on a report that the Dogwood Women's Auxiliary of the Social Credit party held a coffee meeting Tuesday for Mr. Charman.

One woman member said that when she was invited she was told "We are supporting Mr. Charman."

Mr. Smith said the meeting was sponsored by "some of our members entirely on their own."

Mr. Charman today said he knows of no decision by Social Crediters to support him although at the coffee party in question about 10 women members of that party were present.

"I'll take support wherever I can get it. I had a coffee party with Liberal women two days ago on Beach Drive and several of them left with Charman stickers for their cars."

One of the reasons there are so few political rallies in public halls in the current campaign is that unless a national leader is on stage, people stay away in droves.

This was proven again Friday when Esquimalt-Saanich Liberl candidate David Anderson held a meeting in and Esquimalt hall. Aside from party workers there were three members of the public and a Times reporter present.

In his speech Mr. Anderson noted he was speaking largely for Times readers because the Times made up such a large part of his audience. (Times policy is to report candidates' views in public speeches rather than accept press releases or speeches to coffee parties, which have largely replaced mass meetings.)

Upcoming political gatherings:

All Esquimalt-Saanich candidates will address Sidney Silver Threads at K of P Hall, Sidney, Monday, 2 p.m.

All candidates for both ridings will address a Victoria Silver Threads meeting at their Centennial Square headquarters, Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.

MASS WALKOUT IF GRANT FORMULA CHANGED

Band Chiefs Strike War Drums

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation has threatened a mass resignation of Indian leaders and band administrators if a new federal grants program is implemented.

Band chiefs and councillors, paid band administrators as well as voluntary workers would resign, leaving the entire administration of reserves to local Indian agencies.

The agencies haven't adequate staff to cope with reserve affairs which have been handled by the Indians themselves in the past three years.

Chief Philip Paul of the Tsarlip reserve said the walkout talk is not an "idle threat."

"We will walk off our jobs if they try to force the program down our throats. We have no alternative."

The proposed new formula provides a grant of $10 per capita for the administration of band affairs. It also suggests that Indians take on th eresponsibility of social welfare.

This means that a band like the Cowichans with 1,000 members would receive $10,000 to pay the salary of a band administrator, the collection of garbage, the maintenance of schools and waterworks, plus office equipment and an office clerk.

The formula allows for an increase in grants if the band takes over social welfare.

Under the present grant system, grants are allotted in accordance with the band's needs.

QUIET CAVALCADE carries Conservative leader Robert Stanfield through the streets of Riviere-du-Loup in Quebec this week. Cool, relaxed ride matches the leader's approach to campaigning.

REACHING OUT to respond to forest of hands during stop at Kapuskasing, Ont., is Prime Minister Trudeau, who found similar excited crowds this week in backwoods of Ontario and Quebec.

IT'S NOT LIKE DIEFENBAKER ERA

Speed the Theme of Vote Race

By CARMAN CUMMING

OTTAWA (CP) — Outside the Lakehead Coliseum, a tiny knot of men lingered to discuss the speech they had just heard from Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield.

They ran out of comments, stood silent for a moment and then one of them observed: "It's not like when Diefenbaker was here."

The campaign for the Tuesday, June 25, general election will be remembered in many ways: the pace is fast and the impressions transient.

But whatever it is, it's not like when Mr. Diefenbaker was here.

For one thing there are the children—screaming, grasping, pushing up little pieces of paper to be autographed by Prime Minister Trudeau or Mr. Stanfield.

For another there is the frenetic shopping centre parade, with bands and cheerleaders, and people pushing up to touch The Man. And, of course, there are the kisses.

Cool Tones

Behind the frenzy there are cool undertones.

In what other campaign could a prime minister have flipped a dime to a teen-ager and suggested he buy a paper to find out what's going on?

In what other campaign would the Conservative party have spent thousands on a television film of its leader, only to watch whole precious minutes slip by while the camera panned idly over a logging operation?

Or when has a prime minister communicated with the voters by smiles or an expressive shrug of the shoulders? Or insisted that only his opponents were promising to spend more money on programs for the voters?

The mode of transportation used by the three main leaders may say something about what they are trying to get across.

While Mr. Trudeau is swinging across the country in a DC-9 jet, Mr. Stanfield is setting a steadier, more restrained pace in a piston-driven DC-7C.

Small Plane

At one point, he chartered a smaller craft which reporters instantly and dubiously called the Crashmaster.

On the ground, the contrast in styles of the leaders is even more marked.

For Mr. Trudeau there have been a series of mini-rallies on street-corners or in shopping centres, with short speeches and plenty of give and take.

The prime minister apparently welcomes heckling, although on a couple of occasions he has shown annoyance. He commented once that he gets tired of listening to himself and feels hecklers sometimes improve his speeches.

Reporters often find the news of the day in these exchanges, rather than in what Mr. Trudeau has to say in his speeches.

Meaty Speech

Mr. Stanfield on the other hand tries to lay on at least one meaty speech a day, usually to a formal, all-evening meeting.

Texts are given out in advance and reporters leaf through them in unison as Mr. Stanfield forges through his own copy, sounding at times as though he hasn't seen the material before.

On a few occasions, however, the reporters have been stirred awake with snatches of eloquence as Mr. Stanfield talks simply and movingly of Canadian society and what it should become.

When the Conservative leader encounters a touch of Stanfield-mania, as he has once or twice, he eyes it with a mixture of pleasure and dismay.

Both Mr. Stanfield and Mr. Douglas tear strips off the prime minister's swinging image, to the apparent delight of partisan crowds.

Mr. Stanfield said that when Mr. Trudeau became prime minister, he set out for a Laurentian vacation and ended up in Florida.

He started to form a government and then changed his mind and decided not to. He decided against calling an election and then called one.

Mr. Douglas says his own wife shaves years off her age and so does Jack Benny, so there's no reason why Mr. Trudeau shouldn't do so too.

Next Budget

"But a fellow who can't add any better than that better not add up next year's budget."

A polished orator, the New Democratic leader can speak for well over an hour with no text or notes, putting together a smooth blend of seriousness, humor and hell-raising condemnations of the "profiteers" and "freeloaders."

Unlike Mr. Stanfield, Mr. Douglas appears to carry an audience with him, testing its mood and responding.

"Have you looked at our foreign policy lately?" he asks, leaning forward and putting the question to every member of the audience.

"Turn it over and it says: 'Made in Washington.' "

On the Doorstep

The report is an orphan, he says. It was conceived by the Conservatives and delivered by the Liberals and both parents have disowned it, leaving it on the doorstep for the NDP to pick up.

Leaders of the Creditiste and Social Credit parties meanwhile have stayed close to home and have been virtually ignored by the national news media.

FRIENDLY FIGHT

My Opponent Is Very Nice

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

FARNHAM, Que. (CP) — The big-party candidates in Missisquoi riding, on opposite sides of the linguistic fence, are almost identically nice about each other.

"He's a good guy," says Progressive Conservative Heward Grafftey of Liberal Yves Forest, a French-Canadian.

The gentlemanly approach seems appropriate in Quebec's Eastern Townships, this area of beautiful countryside and picturesque towns along the United States border. Settled by United Empire Loyalists and once an English-language preserve, the townships have become heavily French through the years.

GRAFFTEY
. . . uphill battle

Mr. Grafftey, 39, and Mr. Forest, who will celebrate his 47th birthday on federal election day June 25, agree on little besides their mutual personal regard. They were both members of the last Parliament—from different ridings.

TOUGH COMBINATION

Liberal spokesmen say the combination of a French-Canadian candidate, plus a French-Canadian prime minister with appeal for English-speaking voters, will be too much for even Mr. Grafftey, who has won a fireball electoral reputation.

Mr. Grafftey was all the things that, according to political theory, he should not be to win election here—a well-to-do Protestant Progressive Conservative raised in Montreal's exclusive Westmount. Nevertheless he won four elections in predominantly French-speaking Brome-Missisquoi, which had been Liberal since 1925 except for one Tory interlude.

Now redistribution has made Missisquoi a constituency of its own, bringing in the textile town of Magog, home of Mr. Forest and formerly part of Stanstead constituency which he won in the last two elections. Stanstead vanished in redistribution.

Mr. Grafftey puts the racial ratio in Missisquoi at 85 per cent to 15, wider than in the old constituency. Mr. Forest makes it more like 65 to 70 per cent French, and maintains that French - Canadian sentiment "certainly will" play a part in the election.

"You don't have to be an expert to realize that—it's only to be expected," he said in an interview.

MUST BE BILINGUAL

But Mr. Grafftey said in a separate talk that the French-or-English factor no longer swings elections either here or in Quebec in general, providing an English-Canadian candidate is biligual and has a "feeling for the French fact."

"There seems to be an idea that Brome-Missisquoi was predominantly English when I came, but no riding in the Eastern Townships has been predominantly English since the redistribution of 1935," he said.

Both are lawyers, Mr. Forest was educated at the Uiversity of Montreal while Mr. Grafftey went to Mount Allison University in Sackville, N.B., and McGill.

Neither candidate has found the constitutional issue foremost in the minds of voters, but rather bread and butter items—housing, cost of living, textile imports, regional disparities—in the region where the urban-rural ratio is about 60-40.

Women's Guild Names Officers

Mrs. K. L. Leeming was elected president of the Women's Guild of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Tuesday.

Mrs. J. Lewis McLean was elected honorary president; Mrs. Bruce Molloy, honorary vice-president; Mrs. J. P. James, treasurer; Mrs. C. E. Beirnes, recording secretary; Mrs. William White, corresponding secretary, Mrs. B. P. Allard, acting press reporter.

Douglas Showing More Confidence

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The New Democratic Party will make much larger gains in seats in the June 25 election that it had dared to hope five weeks ago, T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party national leader predicted here Friday.

"Many constituencies which we would have placed in the 'doubtful' column at that time we now record as 'sure wins'," said the optimistic Mr. Douglas.

He told a press conference that he had toured across the country twice now during the campaign. "I can report our campaign is going extremely well."

He forecast the NDP will pick up several seats in British Columbia.

MAKE GAINS

On the prairies the NDP will also make gains, he said. This would be particularly true if the Liberals showed greater fight in the western provinces than in the last elections. He said in recent past elections the Liberal voters had tended to vote for the Conservative party because their candidates had no chance of winning.

With the Liberals on the prairies becoming more confident that they might be able to challenge the Tories it strengthened the position of the NDP in several pairie seats, he declared.

The NDP leader also saw wind in some Ontario ridings that it did not hold in the last Parliament. He also saw it showing greater strength on the island of Montreal.

GRIM LOOK

He conceded that the Atlantic provinces looked "grim" from the NDP point of view in the campaign.

He scoffed at the Liberal party's declaration that it will have a re-assessment of foreign policy after the election.

It was first put forward by Louis St. Laurent then by Mr. Pearson and now by Mr. Trudeau.

"The Liberals advocate a re-assessment of foreign policy as if they had been the opposition seeking to gain office and forgetting they have been in office," said Mr. Douglas.

He said Canada should get out of NATO and NORAD. He said they were "obsolete cold war" organizations. He was in favor of Canada creating a strong peace-keeping force which it could offer to the United Nations to be used as part of an international peace-keeping force operated by the UN.
